SUMMARY.

Fierce sanguinary battles are raging on the greater part of the Stokhod front.

The enemy is exerting his whole energies to retain his line of defence, and is drawing troops from various points.

The Germans are stubbornly resisting five and a half miles west of the Stokhod, on the road to Kovel.

Russian balloon observers regard it as a rearguard action, as the road to Kovel is [illegible] with retreating troops.

The opinion is held in Petrograd that the enemy will be unable much longer to oppose successfully all three Russian advances.

The Germans claim to have repulsed Russian masses brought against General von Linsingen with heavy losses.

According to an Austrian communique, Russian night attacks west of Brody failed, and attacks west of Lutsk broke down.

Dutch reports show that there is a cessation of big movements among German reinforcements in the west.

This fact is said to prove that the German maximum man power is now on the east front.

Germany is still rushing up guns, hoping to counteract the British superiority in men.

Sir Douglas Haig, in an interview, is reported to have said that the tide had turned.

The only question, he added, was as to the time when we could claim a decisive victory.

Captured officers admit that Germany is beaten.

The fiercest fighting continues. The hot, clear weather is facilitating air work, in which the Anglo-French airmen maintain superiority.

The immediate Anglo-French objectives are Ginchy, Guillemont, and Maurepas, screening Combles, which has been made a fortress.

Correspondents state that the Germans have dug many new trenches behind Guillemont.

It is believed that 11 battalions garrison a vital stretch of trench, extending about 2000 yards, near Guillemont.

The British artillery toll is therefore correspondingly heavy. Some of the German wire entanglements are 50 yards deep.

British airmen made several raids, dropping bombs on German positions, which blew up a train and ammunition depot.

A French communique states that the Germans continue to make counter-attacks north of the Somme.

The French repulsed all attacks at Hem Wood and Monacu Farm, with serious losses.

There has been violent artillery fire at Thiaumont and Fleury, in the Verdun sector.

A Berlin communique says:—The enemy was repulsed everywhere on the whole front from Longueval to the Somme.

The Austrians claim to have repulsed several attacks by Alpini in the Tofana region.

The Turkish advance on the Suez Canal is being made along the caravan route from El Arish and El Kantara.

The Australian Light Horse are doing splendid cavalry work. They drove in the Turkish outposts, and captured prisoners.

Refugees supply shocking details of the situation in Syria.

The Christian population is starving, and wholesale executions are taking place.

A number of airships carried out a raid on the eastern counties of England after midnight on Monday.

Bombs were dropped indiscriminately on localities possessing no military importance.

Mr. Asquith outlined in the House of Commons the Government's attitude in regard to recent German atrocities.

When the time arrived, they were determined, he said, to bring to justice the criminals, whatever be their positions.

There are indications that the Germans are alarmed at the unanimous neutral reprobation of the Fryatt murder.

The Right Hon. H. C. Duke, K.C., Unionist member for Exeter, is the new Chief Secretary for Ireland.

Mr. Asquith presided at a Government banquet to the oversea Parliamentary delegates at Lancaster House.

Delegates said their visit had dispelled doubts and perplexities. They would go back convinced that Britain was aroused.

The Dutch mail steamer Koningin Wilhelmina struck a mine and sank off the North Hinder Light.

General Smuts reports that General van der Venter has occupied Dodoma, on the main central railway, East Africa.

Wattle Day was generally observed yesterday, the national flower being in evidence everywhere.

The Soldiers' Club was decorated with the wattle blossom, and quantities of wattle were sent to the military camps.

The catchment area has benefited by the rain, but more is needed yet.

A good deal more rain is required to ensure an adequate water supply in the Manly reservoir.

In the Assembly yesterday, Mr. Wade brought forward his motion in reference to the reinstatement of Mr. Griffith.

The Opposition leader said he could see no need for his motion being treated as one of censure.

It was, however, accepted as such by the Government, and the debate was carried on throughout the sitting.

Mr. Estell intends to move to-day that the Workmen's Compensation Bill be restored to the business paper.

In his address at Perth, Mr. Hughes said he believed the war was likely to be long, and the price of victory dreadful.

The Allies, however, were creeping closer towards the goal, and as certain as night followed day victory would be ours.

A roll of honour was unveiled at the establishment of Farmer and Co., Ltd., containing the names of employees at the front.

The close of applications yesterday for bonds in the War Loan caused a rush of business at the Commonwealth Bank.

Mr. Denison Miller says the loan was very largely supported by small and middle class investors.

The heavy rain yesterday caused a wash-away at the lower end of Macquarie-street.

About 20 yards of the recently erected stone wall, 20ft in height, crashed down across the footpath.

At the annual meeting of the Naturalists' Society, sanctuaries for the protection of all wild game were advocated.

The L.M.S. deputation to the Churches in Australasia was welcomed by the London Missionary Society yesterday.

It was stated by the Rev. T. Howard Smith [illegible] that a great awakening was happening in China and India.

The accumulated deficit in Western Australia now stands at £1,494,204.

An explosion occurred at a rehearsal by a theatrical company at Toowoomba. Two stage employees were injured.

The area sown with wheat in Victoria this season is estimated at 3,238,000 acres, as against 4,083,430 acres last year.

The Land Values League, at its annual meeting, urged that land values should be taxed, without exemptions or graduations.

At Victoria Barracks yesterday 87 men volunteered their services, and 65 were accepted.

Representatives of the unemployed in Victoria asked the Minister for Home Affairs yesterday to push on with public works.

It was stated that there were 3000 men out of work in Melbourne.

A train collision occurred at Lidcombe last evening. Two passengers were injured, and rolling stock was damaged.

Business was particularly brisk in Trong [illegible] dredging shares. Closing prices were above those of Monday.

Edna May Deep level gold shares were also the subject of speculation, but they fell is 9d in price on the day.

At yesterday's wool sales crossbreds were firm at late rates.

The London wheat market is cabled as unchanged. Prices are firm and unchanged.

Forecast.—Further rain on the coast and parts of highlands; some heavy falls likely; the island, gales north from Sydney, with heavy seas.

PEAPES' ECONOMIC TAILORING.

SPRING-SEASON SUITINGS.

On Monday next, stocktaking being then concluded, we shall make our first showing of materials for Spring and Summer wear.

The arrival of a representative variety of British materials at a time when it is particularly difficult to obtain reliable goods will again demonstrate the advantage of buying early, which we have consistently advocated, and practised, since war's commencement.

The Prices for our Economic Tailoring range from £3/5/ TO £4/10/.

WE PAY POSTAGE.

As prices stand to-day, these are appreciably low—a fact made possible only by our extensive purchasing at early dates, and by the unique facilities for production in our own workrooms.

Requests for Patterns will receive immediate attention. Greys now predominate, and can be more confidently recommended than other colours.

Simple self-measurement form and catalogue will be posted with patterns.

ANTHONY HORDERNS' SALE has done MUCH to REDUCE the COST of LIVING, LIGHTENING the TASK of FOLK who find it DIFFICULT to make a LEAN purse SATISFY the REQUIREMENTS of a BIG family, and enabling all sorts of people to secure LUXURIES, as well as the NECESSITIES of life, in SOME cases at HALF the ORIGINAL price.

The SUCCESS of this REMARKABLE SHOPPING EVENT has been PHENOMENAL; each day it GROWS in FAVOUR, extending its sphere of USEFULNESS, SAVING no end of MONEY for PEOPLE all over Australia, and adding to the RENOWN of ANTHONY HORDERNS' FAMOUS SALE PRICES.

ALL who WISH to become ENLIGHTENED upon the PLEASING employment of INCREASING the PURCHASING power of a SOVEREIGN will find MUCH to INSTRUCT and INTEREST them in the FIFTY departments. Indeed, the BIG BARGAINS in the form of GOODS that have been GENUINELY REDUCED in price bear ELOQUENT TESTIMONY to the MERITS of SPOT CASH, and very MATERIALLY BRING DOWN the COST of LIVING. We invite INSPECTION.

DUNCAN M'CLURE
DUNCAN M'CLURE
AND
THE POOR PARSON.
THE POOR PARSON.

An Intensely Funny 4-act Comedy-Drama,
by Steele Rudd,
Author of "On Our Selection."
A Screamingly Funny Story,
Full of Delightfully Humorous Incidents, and Permeated with a Delightful Australian Atmosphere.

Hundreds of thousands of readers throughout the Commonwealth and New Zealand have read "Duncan McClure and the Poor Parson," and, like its predecessor, "On Our Selection," it is certain to be witnessed by as many more thousands.

"DUNCAN M'CLURE AND THE POOR PARSON" is a story full of genuine merit, novel characters, and original situations, a play where the sadness of the bush has no place; a humorous story of the Men on the Land, told in such a way that the hardships disappear in the fast and furious fun that is never anything but good-natured.

POPULAR PRICES: 3/, 2/, and 1/. Early doors 6d extra. Booked Seats, 4/.

PRESS NOTICES of the VERBRUGGHEN and GOLL MELBOURNE SEASON, 1915.

Melb. Argus, Oct. 19th, 1915: "It was altogether a fine exhibition of 'give and take' in a most beautiful and elevated form of artistic expression, and beyond doubt the best example of duet playing music lovers in this part of the world have so far experienced."

The Herald, Melb., Oct. 22nd, 1915: "The executants surpassed themselves in a performance of truly fascinating intensity, and roused their audience into a state of excitement that vented itself in ever-renewed tumultuous applause."

The Age, Melb., Oct. 19th, 1915: "Let it be stated at once that the evening was one of distinguished success. . . This is high praise, but most thoroughly was it deserved, and the enthusiasm of a very large audience for once in a way was legitimately called forth."

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACTS, 1906.

NOTICE OF PROPOSAL TO ABOLISH THE DIVISION INTO WARDS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF STRATHFIELD.

In pursuance of the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1906," as amended by subsequent Acts, Notice is hereby given that a proposal has been made that the division into Wards of the Municipality of Strathfield be abolished.
The Council or any person representing at least fifty electors of the Municipality may, within one month after the date of this notice, make written representations to the Minister on the question as to whether the division into Wards of the said Municipality of Strathfield shall be abolished, as proposed; and within the said period of one month one hundred or more of the electors of the Municipality may, by petition, request the Governor to remit to a poll of electors of the Municipality the question whether such division shall be abolished.
Ordinance No. 19 requires (1) that such petition shall be accompanied by the statutory declaration of one or more electors that the signatures to the petition are the genuine signatures of the persons whose signatures they purport to be; (2) that such petition and declaration shall be forwarded to the Clerk, who shall compare the signatures thereto with the roll of electors, and shall certify whether such petition purports to bear the signatures of one hundred or more of the enrolled electors of the Municipality; and (3) that the Clerk shall, within seven days after he receives such petition, forward it to the Minister, with the statutory declaration and his certificate as aforesaid.
JOHN D. FITZGERALD, Minister.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

THE FARMLET LIFE.
THE ONLY GENUINE CURE FOR WORRY.
RICKARD'S CERTAIN REMEDY.

We have discovered AN ABSOLUTE CURE for most of the ailments of modern civilisation. It is guaranteed to free the mind from the anxieties attendant upon trying to make ends meet at a time when living is growing rapidly dearer, while wages are not rising proportionately.

The name of this Cure is THE FARMLET LIFE. As soon as you take to it you become a producer as well as a consumer, and you are thereby gaining instead of losing by the increase in the cost of ordinary commodities. By cultivating the soil yourself you become naturally self-supporting, as Nature intended you should. You no longer find it difficult to make ends meet—you begin to save—your smile grows broader—your heart lighter—your physique stronger.

The outdoor work gets you into the finest condition—coughs, colds, indigestion, and all such ailments disappear. No doctors' bills to pay—sunshine, good air, and fresh food are better than all medical science.

SO BUY A FARMLET

and change an existence of drudgery for one of peace and contentment. We can offer a large variety of excellent acres quite close to the city. We quote just two or three of the best of our farmlet estates:—

DOROTHY MOUNT, WENTWORTHVILLE.
If we described this beautiful place in adequate terms you would think it was "hot air," so take our advice and visit it. We think you will be surprised that there are such glorious lands unsettled, so near to Sydney, for it is only 43 minutes by train from the Grand Central Station.

We can give you a choice of lovely sites, from 1-acre to 2 acres, the larger blocks being adaptable for farmlets, as the soil is excellent. Home Sites from 18/6 per foot.

TOONGABBIE PARK.
A few good Farmlet Blocks are still left on this Estate, which is right at Toongabbie Station. They range from 1 acre to 4½ acres, and are now offered at only £40/10/ per acre. Home Blocks, 1-3rd to ½ acre, from £34 each.

PLUSHCOMBE FARMLETS.
These are situated at Blacktown, almost an hour from Sydney. Splendid Blocks of 2 acres are available on elevated ground, commanding fine landscape views. Only £20/10/ per acre. We are also offering ½-acre Blocks along the Plushcombe-road, the main artery from Blacktown township, to the Great Western road, from £28/10/ per block. Other ½-acre Blocks on Bathurst-street from £17/10/.

Remember that if you take adjoining blocks in any of these Estates you can secure as large an area as you may require.

BABY ACRES.—On the Bringelly-road, near Ingleburn.—You drive five miles from Ingleburn station (which is 25 miles from Sydney) along a good road, which winds round the hills, and affords fine views of the surrounding country.

On some of the farms are very fine waterholes, and there is splendid timber for fencing, etc. The soil is good, and the land has an easy slope, which means that water can be easily and cheaply conserved.

Areas from 5 acres. Prices, £6/15/ to £10/5/ per acre.

RICKARD'S EASY TERMS.—£1 Deposit and 10/ Monthly for every £25 purchase value.

AUBURN'S ADVANCE. INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS. BIG MONEY CHANCES.
We can strongly recommend investment in the Auburn district at the present time. There is no doubt that all that area between Lidcombe and Granville, along the Parramatta line, is about to go ahead fast, and will soon become the great industrial centre of the State. In addition to various established industries of great importance, including the Clyde Engineering Works, several important industrial concerns have just been opened, or will shortly be set in motion, including the big Government repairing shops at Auburn, intended to relieve the Eveleigh Workshops, and the immense Abattoirs at Lidcombe, which have given a great impetus to the progress of that locality. In spite of these improvements, we are still offering the best land in this district at original prices. We have just opened a NEW BRANCH AT AUBURN, on the South Parade, right opposite the Station. Our newly-appointed Agent will drive intending buyers over our estates. A few of them:—
HIGHLANDS ESTATE.—Situated on the line of Auburn's growth, lots 40ft x 164ft, upwards, from 12/6 per foot.
HEART OF AUBURN.—Less than 10 minutes' walk from Auburn Station, 40 x 133 ft., from 42/6 per foot.
RIVERSIDE HEIGHTS.—In the vicinity of the Abattoirs. Lots 66ft x 148 to 213 ft., from £36/10/.
MARNE PARK ESTATE.—Right opposite the main entrance to the Abattoirs, on the Parramatta-road, 50 x 132ft, from only 14/6 per foot. Twelve minutes' walk from Lidcombe Station. Splendid for home sites for employees of the Abattoirs.
GRANVILLE DOWNS ESTATE.—Between Clyde and Granville, and not more than 15 minutes' walk from either of these stations, we are offering good home sites, 50 x 127½ to 60 x 165ft, at the remarkably low price of 8/6 per foot. There are also blocks of ½ acre to 3½ acres, from £45 per acre. The soil is good for gardening, and in the vicinity of the Duck River there are ideal block for poultry farms.
LONGLAWN ESTATE.—Near Clyde, Auburn, and Granville Stations. Lots, 40 x 132ft, from 9/6 per foot.
RICKARD'S EASY TERMS:—£1 deposit and 10/ monthly for each £25 purchase value.

NINE HUNDRED PER CENT. INCREASE.
REMARKABLE RISE AT BANKSTOWN.
A LADY'S FINE INVESTMENT.
Mrs. E. Jones, of Stacey-street, Bankstown, has furnished us with the following eloquent statement of her experience in investing money in land at Bankstown:—
"In 1909 I purchased two large blocks of the Greenacre Park Estate for £105. To-day the estimated value of the same land is about £1000. I am perfectly satisfied with the treatment you have shown me in this transaction. I have always encouraged others to buy land at Bankstown, pointing out the great advantages of living in a fine, healthy suburb."
Not many have done as well as this lady, but hundreds have doubled and trebled their money at Bankstown in the past three or four years.
Yet, though remarkable profits have already been made at Bankstown, we believe that the biggest rises will be seen in the next few years, particularly in view of the fact that this line is to be the first to be electrified.
The following are excellent chances for quick rises:—
GREENACRE AND EXTENSION ESTATES.—A few odd Allotments have become available on these Estates, where such big money has already been made, and will be offered for a few days only at bedrock prices.
SUBURBAN PARK ESTATE.—Just opened up for private sale, in the vicinity of Bankstown Farmlets. Magnificent chocolate soil, 18 inches deep; will grow anything. Quarter-acre Blocks, from £10/10/ to £20 per block.
NEW ERA ESTATE.—Along Chappell-street, towards George's River-road, this Estate is well placed, and possesses good soil. Home Sites, 50 x 141 ft, from only 12/6 per foot.
BEACONSFIELD ESTATE.—In a good position, handy to Post-office, Schools and Churches, Quarter-acre Blocks, £25 to £33; Acre Blocks, £65.
RICKARD'S EASY TERMS:—£1 Deposit, and 10/ Monthly for each £25 purchase value. TORRENS TITLE.

THERE IS REALLY NO REASON WHY YOU SHOULD NOT OWN A HOME WHEN YOU CAN DO IT SO EASILY AT HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB. HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

As years pass by Sydney Suburban Property increases in value and most of the sites now unbuilt on will be gradually acquired, until your chance of obtaining a modern Cottage at bedrock price becomes less and less.
There is no reason why you should go further away than Haberfield to find the home you require—if your ideals of a home should combine convenience to the city, with modern and attractive style in building.
Haberfield is only a 30-minutes' tram ride from George-street, by either Haberfield or Abbotsford tram (alighting at O'Connell-street), or 12 minutes by through trains from the city to Ashfield or Summer Hill stations.
The suburb itself includes all up-to-date conveniences; electric light, gas, city water and sewerage, and everything that is conducive to comfort and extreme hygienic conditions.
In purchasing a home most people make health the first condition, and on this question there can be no doubt at Haberfield. Statistics show that since its inauguration Haberfield has proved conclusively that the work of Town Planning in this suburb has undoubtedly brought about the desired results.
WITH £50 DEPOSIT
we can deal with you at Haberfield. The balance is paid in easy weekly instalments, which in most cases are practically less than the property is worth on a rental basis.
INTEREST IS AT 5 PER CENT.
The following illustrates the type of home we are offering:—
Situate on a roomy allotment, this Cottage is of a most attractive design, containing wide entrance hall with lobby entrance, tiled verandah, also drawing and dining rooms with art finishings, mantels, stencilled friezes, fibrous ceilings, bedrooms of good size, breakfast-room, tiled bathroom, linen press, gas cooker, and all conveniences.
THE PRICE IS £935
and only an inspection is required to assure the visitor to Haberfield of the style and stability of the cottage homes we are offering for sale.
THE TITLE IS TORRENS.
We invite you to come out to Haberfield this afternoon. No trouble will be spared to take you round the suburbs to view our properties, and you are under no obligation whatsoever. We shall think it no trouble if you do not purchase.
NOTE: Our Haberfield Office will be open all day to-day and our salesman will be in attendance.
We have a handsome illustrated booklet of Haberfield Garden Suburb, which is yours for the asking. Call and see us for any further particulars you desire concerning Home-buying on Easy Purchase Terms at Haberfield.
We assure you that you will find purchasing a new and up-to-date Cottage on easy terms more preferable to the unnecessary and indefinite procedure of RENT-PAYING.

There are no legal expenses of any kind, and the company draw up plans and specifications free of cost; in fact, you have nothing to pay until you occupy your home, when your weekly payments commence. All materials used are of the best quality. AND WE GUARANTEE OUR PRICES ARE AS LOW IF NOT LOWER THAN ELSEWHERE IN SYDNEY. We are an established, reputable company, and court the strictest inquiry. We employ our own permanent workmen, and guarantee you satisfaction. Call and submit your business to us, which will be reasonably considered. THE HOME BUILDING AND INVESTMENT CO., LTD., Estab. 1910. 117 Pitt-street, Sydney.

SMALL FARMS ARE BIG FARMS,
IF THEY ARE NEAR THE CITY. EVERY ACRE CLOSE TO METROPOLITAN MARKETS IS WORTH A HUNDRED IN THE BACK COUNTRY.

OUR OWN REPRESENTATIVES will personally escort you to any of the following Estates:—

WAMBERAL.—RICH SOIL ESTATE, in the Beautiful Gosford District, 5½ miles from Gosford Station, 7 miles from Tuggerah Station, in the midst of Orange groves, only one mile from the Wamberal Lake and Ocean Beach, with its surfing, boating, and fishing.
RAINFALL, 52 inches. Splendid Soil; Fine Timber. ONLY TWO FARMS LEFT; one 24 Acres, at £8 per acre; the other 22 Acres, for £182 the lot.

WYEE FARMS.—Rich alluvial, on the Wyee Creek, only 2½ miles from the Railway Station, which is 70 miles from Sydney and 33 from Newcastle, thus providing two great markets for produce, etc. There is a never-failing supply of water in the creek, and good timber for fencing. The land is undulating, and almost the whole of it is very good. Some nice slopes for orchards, and rich flats for maize, lucerne, vegetables, etc. There is a very good orchard (oranges, apples, grapes, passion fruit), on a farm just over the fence from our estate, where maize and lucerne may be seen growing luxuriantly. The rainfall is 54 inches, which is equal to many parts of the famous North Coast. Here is land within 70 miles of Sydney, and only 2½ from railway station and at the very low price of from £4 ... to £... per acre. We have sold 8 and have 2 left. They are really cheap, and worthy of immediate inspection. Our representative will gladly drive you over the property if you give us one day's notice.

BUNGARRIBEE FARMS ESTATE, BLACKTOWN,
A busy, thriving centre, only an hour's train journey from the Grand Central Station.
Only a few farms left on this Estate, and the value of land all round is now increasing rapidly. Our farms are from 11½ to 21 acres in area, at £15/10/ per acre. There are some good water holes, with permanent water, on this Estate.

FACIAL EXPRESSION.

Mr. Walter Bentley has coined a new and not very pretty word for an old fact. "Faceology" is the name he gives to what used to be called physiognomy. Both are ugly terms, and hard to say. Face-reading would be better, only "faceology," about which Mr. Bentley lectured in a very interesting way last week, means more than just reading the face. It means the inward force or expression that builds up the outward and visible expression, as well as telling the tale of a person's character by reading it on that person's face. The character or disposition makes the difference in faces. Was it not Humpty Dumpty who complained that he could not go by the face in remembering Alice, because her features were of exactly the same number as the features of everybody else? We laugh at Humpty Dumpty for putting his grumble so quaintly, just as we laugh at the nigger who sang, "All Coons Look Alike to Me," but it is a very extraordinary thing, when one comes to think of it, that of all the millions of people in the world, no two faces are exactly alike, except, of course, in cases of accidental "doubles." It is strange that there are so few doubles among mankind.

Faces can be trained, just like any other part of the body, the difference in the training—and it is a great distinction—being that thought trains the face while muscular energy trains the body. A man or a woman by choosing a profession begins the face-training. Thus we have recognised types like the clergyman, the actor, the doctor, the schoolmistress, the housewife, the sales lady, the business woman; all are such well-marked types that we can pick them out as we scan—it is to be hoped we do not let the glance become a stare on fellow-passengers in the tram. In religious faces it is even easy to distinguish the Methodist face from the Anglican, and the Catholic from the Presbyterian; while among the women it is even easier. "She's an actress," we immediately say to ourselves, when a certain type arrives on the scene. That does not imply that the lady has been using paint and powder freely, for nearly every woman seems to "make up" more or less now. But the "footlight face" seems to be merely a reflecting medium, just as the windows of a house that faces the sea acquire a kind of expressive blankness that is unmistakable. Houses have expressions as faces have.

The cinema is teaching us more and more about facial expression. As the films develop the producers trust more and more for their effect to the power of the actors to show the story in their faces. Emotions of the cruder kind are expressed by "making ugly faces," and the number of moving picture actors who simply grimace is by no means small. It is laughable to see a pretty actress trying to look as if she has temperament, without the words to help her, when she has obviously only temper of a very violent kind; or a man with a face like the outside of a matchbox trying to work his wooden features into a melting expression of pure devotion. Yet the stern command of business is training the usually immobile American expression to break up a little more and more, for every grimace means a rise in the salary list. No doubt in a few years the audience, by lip-reading and face-reading, will be able to follow the story without words as perfectly as a blackfellow can trace the story, in the bush tracks, of every horse on the run, every blackfellow in the tribe, and even of the tribe a stranger belongs to. The blacks have the blackfellow's sight for tiny differences.

Some people wear masks, of course, but others have merely blank, bland faces. How hard it is to tell Chinamen apart. The Japanese are quite easy to distinguish, because they have energetic minds, which disturb the surface blandness of the Oriental. We can mentally recall any Japanese whom we have seen in the illustrated papers—Ito, Oyama, Togo; their faces are quite familiar.

An expressive face need not be a beautiful one. Expression denotes that vague something which we call "soul." Rupert Brooke, in his "Letters From America," has a criticism on the American face which is interesting. He says that the men are smooth-faced, and do not wrinkle. "It is a nation without a soul. They experience exhilaration and depression instead of joy and suffering." This bears out the singular testimony of the film drama alluded to above. To seek the most exquisite expressions we must look on some childish face, because they are like poetry, "exquisite expressions of exquisite impressions." It is very hard to state in prose exactly what is the beauty born of murmuring sound, which we see in a little girl here and there, but when it has passed into her face we recognise it at once.

IN FRANCE.

Dr. Elsie Dalyell, the Sydney woman, who, last year, spent some months in Servia helping to fight typhus, is at present acting as bacteriologist at the 30th Hospital Auxiliaire, Beaumont, near Paris. She writes of the British Red Cross Rest House on Boulogne Station:—

"They have a corner of the station which is roughly marked out by barricades of packing cases, into four parts. There is a kitchen, an eating room, a store-room, and a sort of office. There is not one piece of real furniture, but the whole is so sparklingly clean and cosy and neat. The three girls on the night 'shift' were as pretty as pinks and the quartermaster a quiet, keen woman, with a pleasant voice.

"I sat in a chair made out of half a barrel, and the others on packing case chairs, all made very comfortable with backs attached. The seats lift up, and give receptacles for stationery, books, or kitchen towels. I was much diverted by the tin mugs. They lost all their first supply of real mugs, and now they are made out of condensed milk tins. One of the Red Cross orderlies is a ... man, who, in ordinary times, is a plumber of Girton College, and he smooths out the tins and put handles on them. There are hundreds of clean ones packed in trays, and covered with a clean cloth waiting for a rush. Cocoa is made in bulk, and is always ready. Coffee and tea are made as required in big cans. Soup is always on tap, but 'cocoa and sandwich' is the favourite request.

"There are books in shelves all round the room, and they send these out in dozens. The staff of the ambulance trains come for them and pass them on when read. There were parcels waiting to go up on the next 'leave' train, taking back the daily contingent of returned men.

"Some army veterinary men came along for drinks—then stretcher-bearers and odd soldiers, in two and threes—then, to my joy, about eight Australians. They were so dusty and so lost. They were going to England on 'leaf.' They had coffee served out in big bowls.

"While I stayed in their 'day' rest room, about six nurses came in from the hospitals in the neighbourhood for a bath. They pay for a towel and have a hot bath whenever they can get in to Boulogne."

The friends of the 34th Battalion are reminded that private parcels for the front will be despatched through the depot, provided the special conditions are observed, particulars of which may be had on application to the depot, 2nd floor, Falmouth-chambers, 117 Pitt-street, city, on Tuesdays and Fridays, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

NEAR HOME.

One is often appalled at the cruelty witnessed day by day in Sydney's streets. The problem of the treatment of many classes of animals is a very big one. In spite of charitable people, who build and endow homes for his reception, the unfortunate, half-starved stray dog is always with us, and one is often tempted to appeal to the wealthy, not to try and patch the evil by taking the few into the dogs' homes, but to provide a thorough, if somewhat drastic, remedy by giving carts to collect the many dogs, and endowing depots where they may be painlessly destroyed. The City Council has done much in the past few years, but among the stray dogs private enterprise might find a field where it could do good. For what it costs to build and keep up one home where a severely limited number of animals can be received, almost any number of poor suffering strays could be put to rest.

Another evil which should be brought before the public is the intense suffering at present among horses in Sydney. Of course, the worst cases are generally found if one looks at the animals driven by hawkers and other poor traders. But feed is now so dear that many carriers' carts are drawn by horses which are certainly more than due for rest and good food. Many drivers, too, are absolutely ignorant of how to load a horse. A painful scene was witnessed near Darling Point the other day, when the removal of furniture was in progress. A horse so down in condition that it seemed practically unable to drag its own weight alone to the top of the hill, was attached to a cart packed high with household goods. Three men, where the road was flat, added their quota to the load, and one, armed with a whip, remained on it, even where the road was steepest. As the horse was utterly unable to pull the cart up the hill, the men proceeded to back the poor brute up. At first a free use of the whip was made, until a small but courageous young lady put a stop to it. Finally, after frantic efforts on the part of the sweating, trembling horse, aided to some extent by the men, the load reached the top of the hill. This is but one instance of the many cruelties practised on the horses of Sydney every day, where girth-galls and festered shoulders and many an injury are often carefully hidden from the eyes of the officers of the Animals' Protection Society.

WOMEN'S WORK IN WAR TIME.

The exhibition to be held in the Town Hall in September, entitled, Women's Work in War Time, promises to be the most successful exhibition arranged by the Girls' Realm Guild. Already very little space is left, the main hall, vestibule, basement, and even the side vestibules all being allotted. The Red Cross will have the toy and basket work, as industries for disabled soldiers, well shown. The old linen depot will be in working order. Battalion work will be illustrated by the 19th Battalion committee, the spinning industry in all its stages will be demonstrated, as this is the main activity of the 19th. It is hoped to have an exhibit from the Blind Asylum, showing the ways open to women and girls afflicted with the loss of sight. Various branches of commercial work will be included, from office management to the training of an architect. Needlework will be well represented; also arts and crafts. Artificial flower making is to be shown; this will be an attractive and beautiful exhibit. Recitals will be given at intervals, and all kinds of interesting demonstrations will be held on the platform.

Hospital work will be included, and different detachments of V.A.D's. will show each day what they are doing. One of the new departures—net-making—will be shown by the State Trawling Department; a beautiful model of the trawler at work will be included in this exhibit, and some of the strange objects brought up from the ocean bed will be exhibited. The vestibule will be set aside for the National Council of Women; here the conference on women's work will be held for the first three days of the exhibition.

The basement promises to be most attractive. In the centre will be a large space, devoted to horticulture for women. Here demonstrations will be given in all branches of horticulture by a trained woman gardener. The scientific application of botany will also be demonstrated by an expert. Agriculture has not been forgotten, and Government demonstrators will be ready to give all sorts of directions and advice in that subject. A very comprehensive poultry section has been arranged, and women students from the Hawkesbury College will explain correct methods. Various cooking demonstrations will be given. In short, every effort is being made to have the exhibition representative of women's work.

THE LUCK-BRINGER.

You wish to find a little gift to slip in your letter to the boy at the front, and it must not be a bulky or heavy one. The boys over there, face to face with death most of their time, are more superstitious than you are, and will pick out the bright-coloured or peculiar socks from the plain-patterned ones, because "they bring luck."

Send them something to give them a good heart, even though you laugh at the silly fancy. What would they like better than a lucky leaf from their own Australian homeland? Everywhere almost, in the barest plains and hills, the clover is now springing after the heavy and welcome rains. If you are keen-sighted you will almost certainly discover a four-leaved clover (perhaps even a five-leaved one) among the rich green foliage. How delighted will your "boy" be if he has even one drop of Irish blood in his veins with the inexpensive but not valueless gift, which you are not able, remember, to buy in any shop in the world. The finding of the four-leaved clover was formerly supposed to open your eyes to the wonders of fairyland, and to bestow all kinds of gifts upon the finder.

The leaves can be pressed, or they look pretty mounted upon a thin white card with "For Luck" printed beneath.

S. I. S.

"YOU SPLENDID WOMEN!"

With the above heartfelt panegyric, Mr. Commissioner Budden in the "S. M. Herald" of the 13th ult., conducted a very interesting letter. In it he makes appeal for scarfs for our troops. The scarf needed is not that light article of attire worn loosely about the shoulders or neck, but rather the kind mentioned in the interview with one of Admiral Beatty's heroes recorded on page 8 of last Friday's "Herald," where he states:—"But the most touching of all is the small parcels we receive. The smaller boats get nothing but woollen comforters." It is the ample warm woollen comforter the commissioner needs, of any dark colour—grey, drab, brown.

COOKERY DEMONSTRATIONS.

Cookery demonstrations for mothers, on the same lines as those which proved so useful last year, are to be begun to-day at the Glebe and Rozelle Superior Domestic Schools, at 2.30, continuing every Wednesday afternoon until the course of six lessons shall be finished. On Thursday demonstrations will be given at the Bourke-street (Surry Hills) S.D. School. Mrs. Rowohl will demonstrate at Rozelle, Miss Blackstock at Glebe, and Miss Nell at Bourke-street. The object sought to be attained by the teachers is to help housewives to relieve the strain which the family purse is feeling at the present time, and to demonstrate that tasty and wholesome meals are quite compatible with economy. The secret of scientific cookery, which turns out the cheaper kinds of meat in a satisfying, appetising, and nourishing form, is so very valuable that the action of the department in thus putting practical teaching before the mothers of school children is most opportune, and should be warmly appreciated.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

The many friends of Mrs. Dwyer have been congratulating her on her recent nomination to a seat on the University Senate. She is a pioneer in this field of women's activities, though the atmosphere of the University will not be strange to Mrs. Dwyer, who has been in scholastic circles nearly all her life. As a public-spirited woman, whose aim has always been to improve the surroundings of women, as well as men, workers, Mrs. Dwyer has met with the respect of everybody. To develop better conditions in the home is her most fervent aim, and her quiet enthusiasm makes itself felt, although she does not adopt any methods except straightforward ones. Her honesty of purpose and her knowledge of any subject she touches upon help her reputation as a convincing speaker. Her manner is most unpretentious and gentle, but her audiences are conscious that they are listening to a woman who knows what she is talking about. One of Mrs. Dwyer's ideals is to raise the status of housework and bring the teaching of cookery and domestic hygiene into line with scientific, instead of rule of thumb methods. Before the war, Mrs. Dwyer was a frequent contributor to this page, but for the last two years she has been very busy with new work that has arisen as a consequence of war conditions, and her pen has not been so much in use. Personally, Mrs. Dwyer is exceedingly popular, and the news of the honour bestowed on her has been received with pleasure by women of all shades of opinion.

In addressing the Clerical Women War Workers at Stanway House recently, Mdlle. Soubeiran said that, reading accounts of life near the French front, she had wondered at the cheapness of eggs and farm produce quite close to the firing lines, enabling our soldiers to obtain many a luxury, whereas one would expect in war time that famine prices would prevail. This has been mentioned frequently in the newspapers, and also by private correspondents. Quite accidentally, in conversation with a wounded French peasant who is at present in Sydney, he led her to believe that the peasants so greatly appreciate our men going from so far oversea to help protect the soil of France from further incursions by the enemy that they sell them cheaply the little they have. With their fine spirit, they give so generously that our soldiers do not even know what they are indebted to them. Speaking of the Disciplinary Corps, composed of the waifs and strays of society, for whom the French Australian League is packing billies to send to these brave lads, and in asking for contributions towards this gift, Mdlle. Soubeiran struck a very human note by suggesting that something not useful should be included. She said: "Don't we all love a present which we don't really need?" Contributions should be sent in before the end of August to the French Australian League of Help, MacDonell House, 321 Pitt-street.

Now that the rabbit is of such commercial value, a more humane method of capturing the little animal should be enforced (writes K. Kay). One has but to live in a rabbit-infested district to realise that they suffer unnecessarily; the piteous cries that rend the air at evenings, and the lacerated limbs of the bodies hanging on the carts of the dealers, tell too plainly that the tiny creatures have suffered from the cruel spring trap used for their destruction. They frequently sever a limb in their efforts to escape. Surely we may not close our ears to their piteous cries for help. Perhaps if women refused to purchase rabbits with an injured limb, the more merciful wire netting traps would be used.

Degree ceremonies have an added picturesque in English Universities this year, for a new note of colour has been introduced—the familiar khaki. At Cambridge (writes A.E.M.) there have been several congregations, and the old senate house has been filled with men in caps and gowns, and a very big sprinkling of men in khaki and navy blue. Indeed, of the able-bodied Englishmen by far the large number were in military or naval uniform, for many young officers were back on leave to get their degrees. Most of the men in academicals were foreigners from India, China, and Japan, theological students, or medically unfit. There are no other British students up now. One college, Peterhouse, the oldest of the colleges, was represented entirely by men in khaki; the tutor, who introduced the students, was a major, and all the students were lieutenants. In the case of another college nearly all the degrees were given by proxy, for the men, having kept their terms, have all gone out to fight, and were not here to take their degrees.

Miss Annie Kenny, who is coming to Australia as a deputation to Mr. Hughes, has a world-wide reputation as a loyal friend to all women. There may be differences of opinion as to her methods and her tactics, but the ideal which she has set before herself is worthy of the sympathy and admiration of women everywhere. Miss Kenny is a person who has put her life into the cause of the toiling masses of women in Great Britain. Along with Miss Mary McArthur, she has been an advocate of the women's point of view for years. Her most sensational feat was interviewing Mr. Asquith in a railway cariage, when she managed to get him alone and at her mercy. But the result of that deputation of one was that the Premier admired her spirit, and afterwards alluded to her as "my little friend, Miss Annie Kenny."

The 1st and 23rd Comforts Depot was gay with bunting and greenery on Friday night for the reunion of returned men belonging to those battalions. They were there in great numbers, and many friendships were renewed, as some of the men had not seen one another since they left the trenches. A musical programme was held. The following were the artists who assisted:—Misses Solomons, Rowling, Gardiner (2), Purves, Cree, and Sampson, and Messrs. Ad. Cree, Hindmarsh, Jamieson, Bartleman, Master Bornstein, Sergeant Vial, Signaller M'Clelland, and Mr. Lannen caused merriment with his ventriloquism. Amongst the soldiers present were Lieutenant-Colonel Parkes, Sergeant Freame, D.S.O., and Corporal Tallon, D.S.O. Supper was provided by the committee.

The Women's Horticultural Society and Home Industries Society, Ltd., are now prepared to accept pupils for horticulture, on Saturday afternoons, at Scarness, Darling-street, Chatswood, the land lent to them by Mrs. Harding, and shall be glad to receive applications, which should be addressed to the secretary, Feminist Club, Queensland Offices, Bridge-street, Sydney. For Saturday afternoons lectures have been arranged. The society will be pleased to welcome anyone interested in the subject.

The members of St. David's Ladies' Rowing Club entertained a party of soldiers from the military hospital, Broughton Hall, at Rodd Island, on Saturday. A very pleasant afternoon was spent, games were played, and a spirit of enjoyment prevailed. Afternoon tea was served in one of the large summer-houses. Mr. and Mrs. Kain assisted in making the outing a success.

A recent Saturday was holiday afternoon at the Women's College. Mothers, members, and workers of the University Settlement gathered together at the invitation of Miss Louisa MacDonald. The lawn was full of young girls, members mainly of the Settlement Club, entering with full zest into the sports and games that formed part of their afternoon's programme, while mothers, some of them formerly members of the Girls' Club, gathered in groups, holding their children by the hand, and talked of old days at the settlement. The link between the settlement and the University, mainly with the Women's College, has grown stronger and closer during the last two years. A crowd of happy women folk had tea, and chatted in the beautiful dark-panelled dining-room; another group had songs and recitations, etc., in the college sitting-room; finally, the mothers wound up with a Sir Roger de Coverley along the wide verandah.

HOME AFFAIRS.

TOYS.

Not quite five months to Christmas! Once we start thinking of Christmas billies and Christmas toys the end of the year is well in sight. Toys present quite a problem of their own, and one which some devoted and clever women among us are doing their best to solve, not only to the advantage of the children, but more with an eye to the disabled soldiers who are to make them. One of the prettiest exhibits at the sketch show of the Women Painters' Club, recently held, was a plasticine model in relief of a soldier, service rifle over his shoulder, all most lifelike, which Miss Theo. Cowan made as a guide for the toy-soldier makers. The toy industry we all hope will be in a very flourishing condition quite soon. But it is about home-made toys I should like to give some hints to-day. If stockings are to be filled on December 24, now is the time to begin operations.

Boys can make many pretty and practicable toys if they possess the carpentering knack. Dolls' houses and furniture can be beautifully fashioned out of old boxes and cases. The knack lies in the strong and yet neat way of constructing these little things. In the toy department of the big shops now, we still see a few left-overs in the shape of boxes of dolls' furniture. But any boy of 10 or over, unless he has no taste at all for hammering and gluing, could make up a much prettier set in his spare time. For a house, an essential is the right shaped box. A square case will not do, as when partitions are put in, the rooms are too long for the width and height. A longer and shallower shape is better. The amateur dolls' mansion must allow its whole front wall to be on hinges, with a "fake" door and windows inserted in the usual places for these openings. To make a pretty front wall it is worth buying some of the thin facing veneers now on sale, and cutting the same to the proper size, fixing it to the house with hinges. The wood lining could be used as panelling inside or as a wainscot, above which wall paper of a self colour or very tiny pattern can be hung. The average mansion of this kind has four rooms, dining-room and kitchen below, sitting-room and bedroom above. The floors are covered with bits of linoleum, and the greatest skill and taste shown in the edifice and its belongings are, of course, displayed in the furnishing. In making the little beds, chairs, and tables, it should be remembered that a child likes everything to scale. By far the easiest way to construct toy furniture is to leave the finishing touch to the upholsterer. With a few scraps of gay brocade, cotton wool for stuffing, and a handful of tiny brass tacks very pretty and "comfy" chairs, chesterfields, and cosy corners may be contrived. Making dolls' furniture is quite a fascinating branch of work and the results well repay the extra time and care necessary for giving a smart, workmanlike appearance to the toys.

A small bed may be very daintily constructed out of a cardboard shoe box, and the sides should be cut down a little to bring it to the right shape; the lid is placed upright at right angles to the box for the head, and this is, of course, covered with white calico, and adorned with netting and cheap lace finished with tiny ribbon bows. Sheets should be nicely made, and, if time permits, the top hemstitched, blankets cut from pieces of new flannel or flannelette and blanket-stitched at the edges. Mattress and pillows may be stuffed with cotton wool, or bits of rag cuttings, or even paper, and the pillowcases should be accurately made to "take off and put on," as doll's bedmaking delights the small girl's heart. If a tiny mirror can be affixed to the dressing table so much the better. Then the table is flounced around with the same kind of cretonne as the chair cover and bed valance are made of, and there you have a dainty and "real" looking doll's bedroom.

Tiny trunks filled with doll's clothes are a gift adored by most girls of tender years. To construct one of these trunks and supply the wardrobe to fit it would be a pleasant task for anybody on the look out for work to do for the benefit of some small niece or friend. Better even than making the trunk would be buying one of the small size suit cases (costing about 1s 6d), which are very plentiful now. The clothes present a most important side of the home toymaker's industry. In these wide fields imagination can roam at will. How very well a doll would look in one of the new farthingale skirts, with high boots of gabardine, and a hat with eccentric silk "ears." The difficulty is to get the doll to wear the clothes. Those elegant waxen beauties have vanished. The dolls on view now have more character perhaps, but they are nothing like as fashion-platey. Years ago, when those of us who are middle-aged were children, there used to be a most satisfactory kind of nursegirl, or perhaps she was a housemaid, who hailed from Ireland—or sometimes Scotland. She was guide and friend as well as nursegirl to her small charges. One art which she possessed in perfection was the manufacture of rag dolls. No expensive and elegantly clad doll of a later day ever quite came up to the rag doll of yester year, made for us by our immigrant nursemaid. The true rag dollmaker is born, not made, and rules or hints would be useless, for the beauty of each of the figures was that it had an individuality of its own. An "inspirational" rag doll would be a fine gift.

A prize of £1 is offered by the Strathfield-Homebush Red Cross Society for the best knitted, best shaped, and most durable pair of socks made from coarse wool. Also £1 is for socks made from fine wool; a prize of 10s 6d for best mittens, knitted from directions printed in the Red Cross knitting book. The competition will close on September 20. All goods must be sent to the hon. secretary, Strathfield-Homebush Red Cross Society, Council-chambers, Strathfield.

A successful sale of work in aid of St. John's Church, Woolwich, was held in St. John's Hall on the 22nd inst. Mrs. B. J. Mulholland kindly opened the sale, which netted £36.

SPRING TOILETTES.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

THE DAY OF THE CAULIFLOWER.

The day of the cauliflower is undoubtedly to-day. Wander into any greengrocer's in city or suburbs, and you will see window compartments and sections inside the shop itself stocked to the brim with cauliflowers of every size, from the tender youngling at 3d to the full-blown and enormous plant at 1s. Possibly boarding-house keepers may find it economical to buy the largest cauliflowers they can get, but the housekeeper of just the average house will be well advised to select either two small or one moderate sized plant, and to remember that the close white cauliflowers are the best. In every case, whether they are large or small, fresh or somewhat stale, they should be placed heads downwards in strong salt and water for an hour before they are cooked. All decayed leaves should be carefully cut off, and the stalks trimmed.

By far the commonest way of cooking the cauliflower is to boil it, and if the average cook were asked she would cheerfully confess that the cauliflower water in her kitchen always found its way down the sink, and that the sauce she invariably served with this vegetable was white sauce.

Yet cauliflower and either cheese or parsley sauce is very good, and can almost delude those who partake of it into believing it to be another vegetable—something of a feat when cauliflower is served as "second vegetable" several times in a week—a contingency quite likely to happen in many homes during this the "cauliflower day."

Cauliflower soup is delicious made according to the following recipe:—Take two small onions, peel and slice them; put into a stewpan 2oz of butter or very good dripping, and when it is melted strew in the slices of onion. Place the lid on the saucepan, and stand it where the onion will gently cook for one hour. Then add by slow degrees some of the water in which the cauliflower was boiled, a little salt and pepper, and a few pieces of stale bread, also half a tea-cup of washed rice, a few rinds of bacon, and a stick or two of celery. Let all simmer together for at least an hour, add a little (a teacupful) of boiling milk, and pass through a sieve.

Cauliflower with cheese is a favourite dish with some, but is not so widely known as it deserves to be. It may be cooked as follows:—Take one or two small cauliflowers—those at 4d each to-day will be quite large enough—soak them for an hour in strong salt and water, and boil till tender. Drain free from water, take away all the green leaves, and lay the flower carefully on a flat buttered dish. Make a thick white sauce, and stir into it two or three tablespoons of grated cheese (Parmesan for choice). Pour the sauce over the cauliflower, sprinkle with bread crumbs, and bake a golden brown in a quick oven.

It must not be forgotten that cooked cauliflower (which has not been covered with any sauce) and cold cooked French beans mixed together may be transformed into a delicious salad. The method of making it is as follows:—Divide the cauliflower into small pieces, and pile them up in the centre of the salad-bowl. Make a plentiful supply of salad dressing, and pour one half of it over the pieces of cauliflower, add the other half to the raw yolk of a well-beaten egg, and stir the tiny slices of French beans into this mixture. Pour this daintily about the cauliflower, and sprinkle a little chopped parsley over all.

Cabbages, like cauliflowers, are to-day both cheap and good; and as they lend themselves to many ways of cooking the housekeeper has at her command just now two valuable vegetables. Celery (at 4d a bunch) also lends itself to many uses, besides being merely good to eat raw and with cheese. Peas are still 2s 6d a peck, and are growing rather doubtful as to value. Broad beans are by no means well in. One may buy them here and there at 2s a peck, while French beans are with us at as much as 2s 6d a peck. Old potatoes are now only 2d a lb, new ones are 3d, and sweet ones 1½d and 2d. Rhubarb is still very good, and 3d a bunch. Tomatoes run from 6d a dozen upwards to three times that price; and mushrooms at 9d and 1s a basket abound.

In the fruit world, housekeepers' attention is drawn to the presence of excellent jam melons at 1s apiece. As pineapples may be bought for 6d and 9d each, the present is a favourable time for making melon and pine jam. Strawberries, very much spoilt by the late rains, are 1s and 1s 6d a basket. Apples, oranges, mandarins, and bananas are all plentiful and cheap, while good citrons should appeal to the marmalade cook at 2s a dozen.

Butter is still 1s 5½d a lb for the choicest quality, and 1s 3½d a lb for that known as "second quality." Eggs are much cheaper, being only 1s 6d a dozen for the very best suburban hen eggs, and 2s 4d for the best duck eggs. Other dairy produce remains quite unaltered in price.

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

In answer to inquiry from A.E.T., Loquat Jam: Top and stem the loquats. To every pound of fruit, after being stoned, allow 1lb of sugar. Put the fruit into the preserving pan, covering with cold water, next day boil slowly, till quite soft; add the sugar, and boil again till a rich colour; try a little on a plate, and if it jellies it is done. It is well to steep the seeds in water all night; next day boil for a few minutes, when strain and add the liquor to the fruit.

Loquat Jelly.—Proceed as above, only adding rather more water; bring to the boil, and boil gently until perfectly soft, and it will smash up; if necessary, while boiling add more water. When the boiled liquid tastes glutinous it is boiled sufficiently. Strain through cheese-cloth; then to every pint allow 1lb of sugar, and boil till it jellies. It is not necessary for fruit to be quite ripe for these recipes.

Loquat Jelly.—Another recipe: Required, loquats, water, sugar, lemon; wipe the loquats, cut them up, cover with cold water, boil for two hours, strain and measure the juice, and to every pint allow 1lb sugar and half a lemon; put in the pan, and stir until sugar melts. Boil till it jellies.

5th Field Ambulance Comforts Fund members and ... recruit ... are notified that each Tuesday the hon. secretary of the above is present at the A.M.C. Depot, fifth floor, Bull's-chambers, Moore-street, and will be glad to receive workers and contributions. Prizes will be given by the president for socks knitted with four-ply wool and for sox knitted with double knitting or wheeling. Also a prize (by Mrs. Phippe) for best pair mittens.

HINTS FOR DEPOT WORKERS.

Being one of the helpers privileged to work at the War Chest Depot, many small details come under my notice to show how much trouble and delay might be saved by a little more forethought on the part of those who work so industriously to help our soldiers. We will start with the socks, which pour in from every centre in hundreds and thousands. It is scarcely to be credited that after nearly two years so many faulty socks are made and sent in—toes finished off in hard knots, and still harder ridges. How could a soldier wear those under any conditions? Feet measuring 15 inches! Surely made for giants. A pair of socks with one foot measuring 9 inches, its mate 10 inches. Extra large socks, with impossibly narrow tops, cast on so tightly that no elasticity remains. Then the numbers of unwashed socks sent! All these have to be sorted, washed, toes and tops undone, and re-knitted. Unless you worked at the depot yourself you could not realise the hours it takes, when you long to be doing more useful work.

So many good patterns have been published, it puzzles me to find so many mistakes made. The wool is good, the knitting good, and the effort to help so splendid that one sighs over the misdirected energy. It would be an easy matter for each worker to wash the socks she makes, and label them "Washed." It would be such a help if this were carried out. Of course, there are just as many socks sent in that are a pleasure to handle—good shape, washed, and measured, all ready to pack.

Now I have finished my growl over socks, I must turn to kit-bags. An order comes in for so many thousand in a specified time. These are accurately cut out, clear directions given and tapes attached, and taken away by different workers. Back they come in hundreds, wrongly taped! Finished with only one tape to draw up the top of the bag, instead of two, one loop at each side. These have to be unpicked and re-taped, giving much work. A little common sense would rectify these and similar mistakes.

A DEPOT WORKER.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

Lady Baldwin Spencer presided at the annual meeting of the Fitzroy Creche and Free Kindergarten, held last week in the Fitzroy Town Hall. An energetic committee has been able, through the medium of the creche, to lighten the burden of a large number of hard-working, self-supporting mothers in this congested part. The children are well looked after, and present a happy, cleanly appearance. The building is a new one, with up-to-date conveniences, and the balance-sheet is considered satisfactory by supporters.

The Melbourne Music Club gave a reception to Messrs. Henri Verbrugghen, D. E. Nichols, and J. Messeas, and Miss Jenny Cullen, the members of the Verbrugghen Quartet at present visiting here. The reception was held at the Victorian Artists' Society's Galleries, East Melbourne.

In opening the 59th annual meeting of the Foundling Hospital and Infants' Home at the Town Hall, Lady Hennessy stated that it was generally admitted that never before in the history of the world has it been so necessary to save child-life as it is now. Among the 158 infants attended to in the hospital, there had been only five deaths, a rate of less than 3.2 per cent. for the year. The excellent result was attributed to staff efficiency and the advantages of the new country home at Beaconsfield. Since the purchase of this home in 1913, the death rate had been reduced from 10 to 3.2 per cent.

As the result of a sock-knitting competition organised by the Armadale branch of the Red Cross Society, the committee was enabled to send £100 to the French appeal. Eleven dressing-gowns and 200 pairs of socks accompanied the cheque. When presenting the prize to Miss Peters (the best sock knitter), Lady Helen Munro Ferguson praised the patriotic service rendered by Red Cross workers at this centre; they were regarded as reliable specialists by those who had the handling of goods at the central depot.

To mark the end of Lady Baldwin Spencer's third year, and the beginning of her fourth year as president of the Lyceum Club, she was presented with a box of beaten silver, and a leather album in antique design, to hold the photographs of her baby grand-daughter, whose name—"Barbara—" was inscribed on the cover. Both gifts were the work of members of the Arts and Crafts Society.

The Minister of Education, Mr. Lawson, informed a deputation from the Women's National Council that it was proposed to erect a school on the Melbourne gaol site for the general technical education of girls. This statement gave great satisfaction to the deputation. Miss Osborne urged the necessity for technically-trained girls, so that the nation's work may be more efficient; that 11,000 girls of about 14 years left school each year, and that the war would make the proportion of unmarried women higher. Mr. Lawson promised to bring before the Cabinet the question of raising the school age for girls to 15.

A gift tea at the Women's Hospital recently resulted in about 100 sheets and over 500 towels and pillowslips being collected. The practical committee of women devised this plan of obtaining necessary goods when it was ascertained that the hospital linen-press needed replenishing. Donations from men friends reached about £20, for the same purpose. Lady Stanley arrived in time to visit the wards before afternoon tea was served. She was received by Mrs. Brodie Ainslie, president, and Miss Capner, matron, conducted her through the institution.

At the last meeting of the Housewives' Co-operative Association at the Melbourne Town Hall, a short lecture was given on economical cookery. The advantage of having a central depot for produce is realised by a number of women producers in the country. The executive is always pleased to hear from women who make or grow anything for sale. The association at present provides a market for all kinds of dairy and garden produce, also woollen goods, either knitted or crocheted. A competent buyer has been secured by the Association, who shops for country members, and answers inquiries about boarding or lodging accommodation in town.

VERONICA.

A HAPPY WOMAN.

About fourteen miles from my town dwell a rabbit-trapper and family. They live in the bush, a few bushes and hessian forming a house. The wife passes here daily in the warm weather, and each second day in cold, on her way to the freezing works. Her vehicle is one of two wheels, with a roughly-made floor and seat, no padding but a folded bag; no back to lean against, no protection from the weather. She is loaded heavily with rabbits on her way in, with horse-feed on her way out. Sometimes her husband or some of the family are with her; more often she is alone. She has the brightest smile, and is the happiest woman I have ever met. No matter if it be scorching heat and blinding dust, or cold, biting frost or rain, her smile is the same. Her clothes are frayed and shabby beyond words; her face is radiantly happy, and she talks of "my boss," and "my children" with such an air of proud possession. I know no one poorer than this woman, but there could be no one richer in contentment than she is.

"MIMOSA."

In the June number of the "Woman at Home," Miss Swift, matron-in-chief of the joint committee of the British Red Cross Society and Order of St. John, fears that the entry of so many half-trained women into the nursing world may make that profession lower its standard unless care is taken. "The close of the war," she says, "is bound to see the nursing profession faced with certain big problems arising out of these conditions. We are hoping that our new College of Nursing will solve some of those."

THE ALLIED BAZAAR.

NEW YORK, June 28.

The Allied Bazaar closed its doors last Wednesday night, after one final burst of patriotic fervour. The largest affair of the kind ever held, it was, from first to last, a brilliant success. Several prominent New York men had felt for some time that a special effort should be made to raise money for the war sufferers of the allied countries. The million dollar mark was set as the goal to be reached, but the sponsors of the bazaar builded better than they knew for; although the exact figures are not yet to hand, the money realised, it is claimed, amounts to one million and a half dollars, about three hundred thousand pounds. In such manner did New York show its sympathy with the Allies, and, from the opening to the closing, it can truly be said that the bazaar went off with a bang.

Throughout the whole thing was conducted as a big business venture. An Australian committee was formed. This committee had, perhaps, the biggest uphill fight of all, for there are few Australians in New York, and none of them millionaires. It was felt, however, by representative Australians here, that Australia must take her place among the allied nations, and they were wise, for her participation proved to be the best advertisement Australia ever had in New York. Fighting against big odds does not, apparently, discourage our people in any part of the world. With customary determination and optimism the Australians of New York set to work and, when the bazaar opened two weeks later, their booth was as attractive as any that could be found in all the three floors of the Grand Central Palace, where the bazaar was held. Assuredly the credit for collecting the major portion of both money and goods must go to the ladies of the committee.

All New York's prominent people—bankers, actors, and actresses, artists, society leaders, novelists, millionaires—worked for the big bazaar, and people whose names are known far and wide, such as Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Paderewski, Miss Anne Morgan, Edna May, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, and James Montgomery Flagg were untiring in their efforts. Two days before the opening an army of women volunteer workers made a descent upon New York, and sold tickets in all the principal streets.

A party of Australians in a car decorated with the Australian and Allied flags, stationed themselves at the head of Wall-street, where they did a roaring trade. A crowd was always around the car, inspecting the Australian flag, and the people from the strange, far-away land with much interest. The ticket-sellers wore a blue ribbon, with "Australia" in gold letters, which, to the chagrin of the workers, was sometimes taken for "Austria." There were nearly 4000 women selling that day, and nearly 600,000 tickets at 25 cents—one shilling each—were sold.

The Grand Central Palace was thronged with people on the opening night, martial airs resounded through the lofty halls, and a great din arose from the hundred different booths and the thousands of women and girls urging the merits of their wares. Raffling is illegal, so a system of "sharing" was adopted. The Permanent Blind War Relief Fund was represented by eight booths at the bazaar, and had a theatre on the third floor, where such well-known artists as Miss Anna Held, Mme. Calve, Mary Garden, Lillian Russell, Lily Langtry, and our own Hilda Spong appeared nightly. Some of the articles donated, often anonymously, were of great value. There was a pearl necklace valued at 10,000 dollars, which passed ultimately into the possession of a sailor, who bought a two dollar share; there were motor cars, pianolas, aeroplanes, jewellery, victrolas, Parisian gowns and hats, paintings, fancy goods, trips by sea and land, dogs, groceries, and even a pig. On the second floor, in the booth of Nine Allies, Lady Colebrook showed how shells were made in the costume she wore when she worked in a munition factory in England.

The exhibit of the French Government always drew a large crowd. Here were captured "Taubes," all rent with bullet-holes, battered cannon, machine guns, worn gun-carriages, the engine of the aeroplane in which the famous airman Pegoud was killed, and other paraphernalia of the great war, which had been sent over specially for exhibition at the bazaar. The French booths were certainly in the majority. American sympathy leans strongly towards the sister Republic, and the different societies for the relief of French war-sufferers in this city might be counted in hundreds. The Australian booth in the British section on the main floor, placed in a corner facing the central aisle, had an exceptionally good position. Two big Commonwealth flags hung over the booth, and another draped a pillar near by. All kinds of fancy goods were sold here. A typewriter "shared," together with silver candlesticks, vases, and gold and enamel handbags. The Australian Booth owned an automobile, on which shares were sold at fifty cents—two shillings—each. Another car came into the possession of the Australian booth. Five thousand shares, at least, at one dollar each, were sold on this car, for which Annette Kellerman was selling tickets.

With the exception of the closing day, the biggest crowds came the first week. French night drew a crowd so large that the Fire Department ordered the closing of the doors for half-an-hour after Ambassador Jusserand arrived, with much pomp and ceremony. It was a night on which patriotism and enthusiasm were rampant. After the singing of "La Marseillaise" the crowd roared themselves hoarse. British night saw a crowd of 42,000 who spent lavishly, too, and cheered again and again the singing of "God Save the King" and "Rule Britannia."

Belgian night drew, perhaps, the biggest crowd of all. Exactly at 9 o'clock, when the business and gaiety of the bazaar were at their height, above the conglomerate noises a bugle sounded and the lights were dimmed. Immediately everything was hushed in honour of the dead who have fallen in the war. Three figures, clad in black from head to foot, appeared on the stage at the end of the main floor. A little girl all in white, knelt praying before them. Then the sombre figures sounded a slow, wailing bugle call, that echoed throughout the building; as it died away a soldier in the centre of the hall caught up the sad refrain and then another bugler, somewhere in the distance. Next, bells tolled. There was no sound from the vast crowd; heads were bowed and eyes were wet. Then a baby somewhere, frightened, began to cry. The bugles sounded their requiem again; it was solemn and awful and yet very beautiful. Up went the lights, the band played "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the crowd caught up the refrain vigorously. Then all the noises broke out afresh. Motor cars honked, everyone began talking at once, eating and drinking was resumed in the cafes, pretty vendors pursued likely customers, again the dancers swayed on upstairs, and a stentorian voice requested passers-by to try their luck in the "Great Australian Lucky Dip, only 15 cents!"

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Lemon Yeast ("Ott").—Recipes for this yeast and others have been given very often, and space does not permit of their constant repetition.

What's in a Name? (C.H.).—Your church choir is not to be wondered at in not choosing "Austria" as a hymn tune. There is a great difference between that and our National Anthem, of which the associations—even though it is sung in Germany—make it British, and the final expression of British sentiment. We cannot ponder over any of the admirable qualities of our enemy now. If you were attacked by a tiger, you would not begin to moralise on the Immortal Hand or Eye that had framed that fearful symmetry. The animal's gracefulness would not prevent you doing your utmost to kill it, lest it should kill you. The ex-headmaster of Eton was compelled to resign for expressing sentiments very similar to those which you avow.

French Classes (Fortian).—Your question should be asked in the advertisement columns.

Soldier's Sister.—The 3rd Battalion Comforts Depot is at McIlrath's-buildings, Oxford-street. Mrs. H. D. Souter, 394 Birrell-street, Waverley, is hon. secretary. The 19th is in the basement of the C.S.R.-building, corner Bent and O'Connell streets. Mrs. Donald Scott and Miss Busby are hon. secretaries.

The A.M.C. Comforts Fund are sending Christmas billies according to the War Chest regulations. Private parcels and billies will be received and forwarded with the distinct understanding that in the event of the commanding officer not being able to locate the addressee, he may use the contents for general distribution.

TEETH. THE PAINLESS WAY.

If you feel any pain during an extraction by my method I hand you £5. And there are many other advantages peculiar to my system. No painful prickings, no swollen gums, no broken teeth to fear. If you are nervous or your heart be weak my method will not affect you in the least. I have an apparatus—the only one in Sydney—for the painless drilling and filling of teeth. I have treated children of 3 years, and patients of 80, by its splendid metallic aid. Children's teeth demand—and deserve—careful, gentle, and skilful treatment. Why not start them right with a dentist whose methods are painless and humane, and who is careful and gentle? You can have necessary dental work done for your little ones, with the full knowledge that they will not suffer even a passing moment of anguish. If a filling should fail or a tooth break off a plate during 5 years after treatment I cheerfully repair it. My work is good and lasting; I can readily afford to repair the rare mishaps.

Call and let me examine your mouth free of cost.

THE MAN FROM EGYPT.

CHAPTER V.
WHAT YUSUF SAW.

Claude Raven reached his cottage late in the same afternoon, and after his three days' absence was welcomed by Yusuf with oriental impassiveness. It was never the way of the lean, brown orderly to proffer a report till it was asked for, and it was impossible to discover from the inscrutable features whether or no he had anything to report.

"Well, have you news for me?" Raven applied the needful spur when he had changed his town clothes for an old tweed suit and lighted his pipe in the musty sitting-room.

"I have information, though it is for your Excellency to judge of its value," replied Yusuf gravely. "Before I tender it is it permitted to thy servant to ask a question?"

"Fire away," said Raven laconically.

"Was Sir Trafford, the Pacha who dwelt in the big house, burned to-day? I do not mean only was the box containing the body burned, but is my master sure that Trafford Pacha was in the box?"

"The box wasn't burned, Yusuf, so neither was Sir Trevor Trafford burned. Nobody was burned."

"Allah be praised!" was the pious comment. "Not because it matters a piastre to thy servant whether the big Pacha was burned or no, but because it shows that we of the Egyptian police do not err. With these eyes I saw Sir Trafford alive on the night after the day you went to London, my master."

Raven concealed his interest in this crucial statement. Rather was it with an air of previous knowledge that he leaned back and demanded particulars.

"In obedience to orders," Yusuf continued, "I kept watch and ward on the district during my master's absence. The night of which I speak was fine and still, with the moon at half full hanging low over the western hills. An hour before dawn thy servant was at the bend of the road where it sweeps round from the grand entrance to the park which surrounds the Pacha's mansion to the gates of the stable yard. Hearing footsteps, I glided into the hedge and there lay, silent as a snake. Thy servant waited, and behold two men came along the road with arms linked and talking together most friendly. One of them was he whom you call Sir Trafford. I could not mistake the white hair on his ruddy cheeks and the sound of his voice. Since we came to this village forsaken of Allah I have seen him four times, and once, when I was in the post-office, have I heard him speak. It was enough for identification."

"Did you recognise the other man?" asked Raven.

"Thy servant did not recognise the other man, for the reason that he wore a long coat with a burnous such as the Bedouins of the desert wear. The burnous was pulled up over his head, and his face was hidden from me."

"Of course you followed them," said Raven. "Where did they go?"

"They passed into the stable yard, and crossed it to a door at the back of the great house, where they were admitted without delay—by whom thy servant was not near enough to see."

Raven pondered this for a long time. "Tell me, Yusuf," he said at last, "any other details in the conduct of these men which you may have noticed. You were ever an observer of what they who are not of the police deem to be trifles of no account."

"I noticed only this, my master," the brown-faced orderly replied, "that while those two were in the high road they talked and walked loudly, as men who seek not concealment. But as soon as they entered the stable yard they crept with the stealthy footsteps of such as have evil designs."

"You have done well, and you need not go on patrol duty again till I give you fresh orders," said Raven. "By the way, do you know by sight Mr. Tennlers, the gentleman who owns the house called The Towers further up the road? No? I hardly thought you would. He is seldom there except on Sundays."

"Then after Sunday next I shall know him," said Yusef as one who states a simple truism. "The lady who lives at that house is already familiar to the eyes of thy servant."

"All knowledge is useful," affirmed Raven, dismissing his faithful henchman with a gesture. He spoke with sententious gravity because any other mode of speech would have defeated its object. Yusuf did not understand flippancy, and despised those who used it. He had to be taken seriously, and then he was invaluable as eyes and ears to the subtle brain that had proved his worth in many a tussle with Eastern crime. Port Said is the wickedest place on earth, and Yusuf Ben Argil had his brown finger on the pulse of every murden-den in that foul plague spot. Yet there was not a cut-throat at Port Said who could have pointed at Yusuf as the primary cause of the police raids that harried them. A strange figure to be haunting a quiet English country-side, taking an intelligent interest in the dwellers therein.

Left to himself, Raven sucked steadily at his blackened briar while he thought over the mystery that had dropped like a bolt from the blue into the midst of his hard-earned holiday. A month ago he had never heard of Sir Trevor Trafford, of the beautiful actress whom the elderly baronet had married, and of the pert and pretty ward, Muriel Vail, who had started him on a trail which had seemed to run true at first, but had led him into such a fantastic cul de sac.

There would be an inquest, of course, on the as yet unidentified body found in the casket which ought to have held Sir Trevor Trafford's remains. Raven decided that, on the whole, he had better give the inquest a wide berth, unless, as was highly improbable, his friend, Sir Leicester Baldock, of the C.I.D., dragged him into it to explain why he had initiated the proceedings which had that day produced such astounding results. It was improbable, because to make public that little secret of "information received" would rob the Yard of the credit so dear to it without in the least furthering a solution of the new and amazing mystery substituted for the other one. The authorities would prefer to have it thought that their own acumen had prevented the destruction by fire of the hidden evidence which could have nothing in common with the poisoning of a gentleman at his own dinner table.

But had the two crimes, the supposititious one by poison and the ascertained and admitted one by stabbing, nothing in common? It is a mathematical axiom that the greater contains the less. Claude Raven wondered if further research would not show the two to be closely intertwined, and he decided to await events, keeping in the shadows, but holding himself in readiness to take a hand if occasion offered.

He had guessed at once what course Inspector Marfleet would take after the fiasco at the crematorium. In the smoking-room at the Woking Hotel he had pried into the recesses of the genial detective's mind. Marfleet had formed the theory which he himself would have adopted but for one little incident at that deadly dinner party and certain facts brought to his notice in London during the past three days. The official view would be that Sir Trevor Trafford was alive, but had conspired with Doctor Malthus to have it appear that he was dead. The natural deduction from this theory was that Sir Trevor had caused the death of the unknown.

And now, in partial confirmation of this view, came the report of Yusuf that he had seen the baronet in the flesh, entering the ancestral home in which all the world believed him to be lying cold and still, awaiting the cleansing fires of the crematorium.

"For me it is a case of masterly inactivity till the inquest has been held," Raven murmured, tapping the ashes from his pipe. "And after that—probably for all time, unless those threads picked up in the Strand and Maiden-lane drag me into the puzzle against my will. Yes, certainly against my will, for this new phase cannot but distress that nice girl who threw this burden on my shoulders. I wonder if the news has reached the Abbey yet, and how Miss Muriel Vail has taken it."

GOOD SHEPHERD HOME.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman Meagher) presided at a meeting held at the Town Hall yesterday, for the purpose of providing additional accommodation for the Good Shepherd Home and Refuge, Ashfield.

Mrs. W. A. Holman moved that a silver coin building fund be the means by which money should be raised. Lady Hughes seconded the motion, which was carried. A ladies' committee was then formed. Sir Thomas Hughes and Messrs. Mahan and W. J. Donnelly were appointed treasurers.

ARTICLED CLERKS' EXAMINATION.

The following candidates have passed the legal history examination (in order of merit):—M. V. S. Duffy, F. C. Kirkpatrick, H. J. Baker, J. H. Cook.

Nurse O'Sullivan, Fennell-street, Parramatta North, of 30 years' nursing experience in Redfern and Parramatta, states:—"It has been a pleasure for me to recommend Clements Tonic to the sick, because I know it gave good results."—Advt.

THE STANDARD COUGH REMEDY.—Bonnington's Irish Moss for the Relief of Asthma and a Preventive of Pneumonia. Gives instant relief in the most stubborn cases of Coughs and Colds. 1/6 and 2/6.—Advt.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Accous," Herald Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

South Arm.—Blue: Leghorns are in the hands of two or three breeders only, and to secure offers you should advertise.

Enquirer.—The space you mention is quite sufficient for 200 fowls, but a third will be required as rearing grounds for the young stock. As your requirements of 200 pullets annually will necessitate a batch of, say, 400 chickens, an incubator should be used. The best hatching months are August, September, and October.

T.K.D.—A great number of the winter eggs are from pullets, others from a good laying strain of 12 or 15 months old hens. A good supply of meat or meat meal might promote earlier laying.

W. (Moree).—The Rhode Island breed of fowls came a few years ago from America. They are of a rich mahogany colour, smaller than Plymouth Rocks, but of much the same type. The breed can now be seen at the majority of shows in the State.

Newcastle.—The yard of a produce merchant is an excellent place to keep fowls. They have almost all the food they require by scratching for it, and exercise is beneficial to them.

E.H.E.—Any of the Sydney stationers will supply you with a list of poultry books, from which you can make a selection.

The subject of incubation and rearing attracted a good attendance at Mr. Hadlington's lecture at Miranda last week. The problem of dead in shell in machine hatching was discussed from all points of view, and, while various suggestions were put forward as to the cause, finality was not arrived at.

In connection with the dead in shell trouble, it may be mentioned that from all the leading incubators on the market various breeders have at one time or other had hatches of up to 100 per cent. If eggs for incubation are well fertilised, and are absolutely fresh, and moisture, ventilation, and temperature are controlled as advised by the machine makers, the hatches will be invariably good.

Despite the great slump in the egg market during the past fortnight, the average for last month will be very little less than for the same month for several years past. The average July prices for the past four years were 1/6, 1/8½, 1/6½, and 1/7. The August figures were 1/1¼, 1/-, /10½, and 1/2 for last year. Appearances point to a shilling average for the present month.

Those who visit the weekly poultry sales must be impressed with the slow but consistent change that is taking place in the breeds and varieties offered. For several years White Leghorns were the principal breed to be found at all the saleroomes, whether as grillers, boilers, or table fowls. Three seasons ago a change came about in favour of the heavier breeds of fowls, with the result that Rhode Island Reds, Orpingtons, Langshans, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, and Sussex now fill about half the available pens. The very much higher prices received justify the change.

Perhaps the oldest breeder of prize poultry in the State is Mr. J. E. Pemell, who officiated as judge at Prince Alfred Park show over 40 years ago. Mr. Pemell has been a continuous breeder and successful exhibitor of all the principal varieties of poultry from that time, and was this year most successful at the Poultry Club's show in the Buff Orpington classes. Mr. Pemell was one of the first exhibitors of the Orpington fowls in this State, in 1890, and in the following year secured first, second, and third in the hen classes. Mr. Graham, of Five Dock, winning in male birds. Mr. Pemell has been a continuous importer of this breed for the past 15 years, his last arrivals being two lots by the Leitrim, which reached Sydney last week, one pen from Miss Le Patourel, the other from Mr. P. A. Cass. Miss Le Patourel reports that one of the hens shipped cost her £50 as a pullet, but she was repaid by winning numerous prizes and cups before shipment, at a number of English poultry shows. One of the cockerels was prominent in the prize-list at the last Dairy Show. As Mr. Pemell distributes his stock reasonably, the importations should be of much benefit to the fancy.

Pomeranian and Toy Dog Club ..... Aug. 35, 26.
Queensland National ..... Aug.
Cattle Dog and Sheep Dog Club ..... Sept. 2.
Bulldog Club N.S.W. ..... Sept. 28, 30.
Sydney Silky, York., and A.T. Club ..... Oct. 14.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C.J.B., Cooma.—Received and noted.
W.J.C., Sydney.—Wish you success.
D.M.C., Brisbane.—The Pug and Poodle Club's show is over. The only other dates are August 25 and 26, and October 14.
R.G., Nelungaloo.—Several of the breed have been recently advertised in Saturday's issues.
F.H., Lewisham.—You can address letter to this office.

NOTES.

Mr. W. J. Curtis, who recently bought three high-class imported miniature Pomeranians from Mr. C. J. Burton, of Double Bay, is highly pleased with his purchase. He has had built fine kennels at Cronulla, and has registered Cronulla as his kennel prefix. Mr. Curtis will be an exhibitor at coming shows.

Mr. Douglas M. Corrie, of Brisbane, who owns the champion black pug Dusky Prince and other good ones, contemplates visiting Sydney next month. He will bring his dogs with him to exhibit here if a show date fits in with his trip.

BULLDOG CLUB.

A meeting of the management committee of the Bulldog Club of N.S.W. was held in the club rooms, Hotel Arcadia, last Wednesday. Mr. William presided. The hon. secretary presented a report on the recent parade, which was described as a great success. The committee further considered the schedule for the forthcoming show. Mr. Green was appointed judge. He has been a member of the Manchester and Counties Bulldog Club, and has already judged one of the club parades. A number of special prizes has been presented to the club for its annual fixtures. The liberal prize list of former years will be adhered to. The club (says the president) was the first here to inaugurate the system of giving adequate cash prizes, and the members note with satisfaction that their lead has been followed by other clubs. The club's annual roast beef dinner will this year be held in Sargent's rooms, in Market-street. Show schedules are expected from the printer next week.

SYDNEY SILKY, YORKSHIRE, AND AUSTRALIAN T.C.

Mr. T. J. O'Loughlin presided at last week's meeting of the Sydney Silky, Yorkshire, and Australian Terrier Club. It was decided to hold the club's anual show in the Newtown Town Hall on Saturday, October 14. Mrs. Alexander, Messrs. Thomas, Hulthen, Ward, Long, and M'Mindin were appointed a committee to make the show arrangements. Fifteen special prizes have been given. In addition to the club breeds (which will be judged by Mr. G. Johnson), Pomeranians, pugs, black-and-tan terriers, will be catered for. The latter breeds will be judged by Mr. C. S. Turner. Mr. T. S. Peaker, hon. secretary, reported that the club now has 42 members.

BULLDOG SHOW.

Several Sydney bulldog owners exhibited their dogs with marked success at the annual show of the Queensland Bulldog Club, which was held in Brisbane last Saturday. Sixty dogs, representing 141 entries, were exhibited. Pride of place was secured by Ernest Hawes's (Sydney) bitch Jana, which was adjudged to be the best of either sex. The open class was strong. The placings were: Mrs. L. Wilkins's (Sydney) Caractacus (imp.), 1; A. D. Wildman's (Q.) White Monarch, 2; D. Rich's (Sydney) Don Hol Britson (imp.), 3; Maidment and Warner's Ilford Lord Nelson, reserve; Miss Macdougall's (Sydney) Bobbie Burns, v.h.c. Caractacus also won four specials. In open bitches the first three winners came from Sydney. They were: E. Hawes's Jana, 1; H. G. Lamb's Melrah Stripes, 2; Mrs. J. Le Couteur's Glenmore Gloria, 3. Melrah Stripes was awarded the special for the best headed dog or bitch exhibited.

SCHOOL COOKERY.

The schools of cookery of the Education Department will take place at Rozelle Domestic school (Mrs. Rowohli), to-day; at Glebe Domestic school (Miss Blacksteck), also to-day; and at Bourke-street Domestic school, Surry Hills (Miss Neil), Thursday, August 3.

RED CROSS AND OLD LINEN.

Contributions of clean white linen, it is stated, are urgently required in connection with the old linen branch of the Red Cross Society. Any white cotton material that will boil is included under the heading of old linen. All parcels should be addressed to the hon. secretary, Miss Ella Richards, basement, Town Hall, Sydney. Voluntary workers will be welcomed at this depot.

STAMP DUTY.

Stamp duty amounting to £20,871 was received at the stamp office last week. Of this amount £5848 was paid by the estate of the late Mr. Thomas Robert Moxham, of Parramatta; £5690 (additional) by the estate of the late Mr. Robert Barr Smith (South Australia); and £4311 by the estate of the late Mr. Robert Lawrie, of Gloucester.

Y.M.C.A. FUND.

PRAISE FROM HIS MAJESTY.

At a recent meeting held in King George's Hall, London, to celebrate and further the work of the Y.M.C.A., Lord Derby occupied the chair, and the following letter was read from his Majesty the King:—

"The Y.M.C.A. has done everything conducive to the comfort and well-being of the armies, supplying the special and peculiar needs of men drawn from countries so different and so distant. It has worked in a practical, economical, and unostentatious manner with consummate knowledge of those with whom it has to deal. At the same time the association, by its spirit of discipline, has earned the respect and appreciation of the military authorities."

The Australian Y.M.C.A. national appeal is for the purpose of continuing and extending Y.M.C.A. work with the Australian troops everywhere. Contributions should be sent to Mr. F. G. Sargood, chairman New South Wales Citizens' Committee, or to Mr. A. W. Meeks, M.L.C., and Mr. J. T. Tillock, hon. treasurers, 325-327 Pitt-street, Sydney.

IN FRANCE.

LETTER FROM A SOLDIER.

Gunner George Down, writing to his sister, Mrs. Edward Heaton, Randwick, gives some interesting particulars of his life on the French front. "France is a beautiful country," he writes. "It is the spring of the year here now, and although we are up to our knees in mud, I do not mind that after Egypt and Gallipoli. I have been transferred from my old unit, and am now right in the firing line. The new gun we have is a small one, but is very destructive; it is known as the 'trench mortar,' and throws bombs, not shells, the weight of which are each about 960lb. They make a hole 10ft deep, and as wide as you like. To one near them when they explode it is certain death. I was sent to Flanders to learn how to man this gun; the instructors are all from the English army, and I had to pass a severe test after twenty-one days' training. I am glad to say I obtained 295 points out of a possible 300, and was then sent straight away to the battery. I was on the gun in the front trenches all day yesterday; it was a perfect inferno, but enough for anything. So far I am all right. It is two years on October 17 since I left Australia; hard work all the time; Egypt, Gallipoli, and now France. However, I am getting my leave next week, and will cable you from London."

ROLL OF HONOUR.

FARMER AND CO.'S EMPLOYEES.

An interesting gathering took place at the establishment of Farmer and Co., Limited, yesterday, when the directorate, management, and about 1000 employees of the firm assembled in the women's department on the ground floor to witness the unveiling of a roll of honour containing the names of 70 employees who are fighting at the front. Mr. Dugald Thomson performed the ceremony, and associated with him were the following:—Messrs. Parke W. Pope (chairman), James Chalmers, H. Norman Pope, and George Wright (directors of the company), Mr. George A. Parkes (chairman of the Chamber of Commerce), and Mr. R. M. Clark (president Master Retailers' Association), Mr. W. T. Willington (president Chamber of Manufactures), Mr. Denison Miller (governor-general of the Commonwealth Bank), Mr. James Mitchell (Inspector-General of Police), and Messrs. A. E. C. Burgess, J. Burcham Clamp, and W. Stuart. An apology was received from Mr. J. O. Fairfax, chairman Red Cross Association, who was absent on Red Cross business in Melbourne.

Mr. Dugald Thomson said it was a unique occasion in the history of the firm when the wheels of business were brought to a standstill to do honour to 70 of the employees who were risking their lives in the interest of their country. Some had been killed, others wounded, but all deserving the utmost praise. (Applause.) He congratulated Farmer and Co. upon their splendid acts of patriotism in this great conflict. The directorate, the shareholders, patrons, and employees alike had come forward in an exemplary manner and stood by those employees and all others who were in the trenches. The company had also in different ways assisted to safeguard the interests of the country. They had first established a rifle club 150 strong, from which half the employees who had enlisted came. A further good act had been done by the company keeping positions open and maintaining salaries of those who had enlisted. A women's guild had been formed by the female employees, who were working hard to supply the boys in the trenches with comforts. Those women were giving their best to the soldiers, the firm also contributing to that fund. But beyond that, Farmer and Co. were contributing in money and kind largely to the Belgian Fund, and to the support of other unfortunate people. (Applause.)

The Prime Minister had once more set his feet on Australian soil. He conveyed a message from Australia to the people of England, viz., that no expense or effort would be spared to help to win this war. We were now waiting the return message which the Prime Minister would deliver to us, and whatever the burdens were, the people of this country, he felt sure, would gladly carry out. (Loud cheers.) But apart from the Prime Minister's message, they had the call from England, the call from the allies, and above all, the call of their own Anzacs, who stood bravely at the mouth of the cannon in Gallipoli, and who were now in the far flung line of battle in France; and last, but not least, the voice of the dead from those graves in Gallipoli, saying, "Do not let drop the work we began, until victory has been secured, wrongs redressed, and peace and progress take the place of war and destruction." (Loud applause.) The great task commenced must continue from sea to sea and land to land throughout the Empire until the effort is crowned with victory. (Applause.)

Mr. Chalmers, on behalf of the company, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Thomson and the other visitors for their presence and assistance, which was carried with loud applause.

SUNDAY TRADING.

Representatives of Coogee and a number of Randwick shopkeepers attended a meeting, which was held in the Randwick Town Hall on Monday afternoon, to protest against the Sunday Trading Act, which, it was stated, imposed unfair restrictions in connection with the sale of refreshments.

The following motion was carried:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, seaside and other pleasure resorts should be exempted from the provisions of the Sunday Trading Act."

LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The New South Wales Auxiliary of the London Missionary Society commenced its August-September missionary campaign in the Pitt-street school hall on Tuesday afternoon, when the president (Rev. J. Dempsey, M.A.) received and welcomed the L.M.S. deputation to the Churches in Australasia, namely, the Rev. T. Howard Smith (Peking) and the Rev. G. J. Williams. The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Goward and Miss Forth, from Gilbert Islands, and the Rev. Bond James, Ellice Group, were the other missionaries present.

The Rev. T. Howard Smith (Peking) said he had been almost a year in that country, and the earnestness and sympathy which existed in the Churches in the various States he had visited towards missionary enterprise were remarkable. However, there was a great event taking place that the people in this country could not afford to overlook. A great awakening was happening in China and in India, the outcome of which it would be impossible to over-estimate. As a Christian people they had to take their part in this evolution, and every encouragement given the missionary acted as an inspiration, and made up for any sacrifice on their part. The speaker said it was necessary that the missionary should leave the scene of his labours occasionally, and visit the home Churches.

The Rev. Bond James and the Rev. G. J. Williams also addressed the meeting on behalf of the society's aims and objects.

In the evening the annual meeting of the Watchers' Band was held, when the report was submitted, and addresses delivered by the members of the deputation.

LAND VALUES LEAGUE.

The annual meeting of the Free Trade and Land League was held at the league office on Monday. Mr. F. L. Brown presided. The reports of the executive were adopted, and the officers and council elected, with Mr. A. R. Easton, of Petersham, as president.

A motion condemning the action of Mr. W. M. Hughes in advocating the "Tory policy of tariff reform during his visit to the United Kingdom" was carried. The league also opposed the resumption of estates for closer settlement, and urged that large landowners should themselves subdivide their lands and dispose of them direct to settlers, especially to returned soldiers. The league urged that land values should be taxed without exemptions or graduations, so as to make private subdivision of land not now in effective occupation imperative. A protest was entered against the proposals of the Lord Mayor and the Minister in charge of the Local Government Amendment Bill and the Greater Sydney Bill, making municipal and shire rates on private schools and playgrounds a charge upon the general taxpayer.

COLLAPSE OF A WALL.

The heavy rain of yesterday was responsible for a washaway in the lower end of Macquarie-street. About 50 yards of the recently-erected stone wall, 20ft in height, crashed down across the footpath, and debris was strewn right across the street. Huge stones were thrown yards away, and the heavy iron fence along the top of the retaining wall was broken and bent in all shapes. Three men employed in repairs to the street had narrow escapes. They were sheltering in an iron shed, used as a blacksmith's shop, when the wall collapsed, demolishing the shed. H. Torrington, of Abercrombie-street, Redfern, was severely injured on one ankle, and otherwise bruised, and was removed to hospital by the Civil Ambulance. J. Dunn, of Foveaux-street, city, was buried under the debris, but fortunately the anvil in the shop prevented him being crushed to death. He was extricated by his mates. H. F. Nolan, of Darlinghurst, escaped unhurt.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS.

The annual meeting of the members of the New South Wales register of the Australasian Corporation of Public Accountants was held last week. Mr. Horace Allard presided. The retiring councillors, Messrs. A. J. Brierley, H. Y. Russell, and C. A. Le M. Walker, were re-elected, and Mr. M. Donald Mackey was also re-elected auditor for the ensuing year.

DEATH OF MR. H. B. MOSS.

Mr. H. B. Moss died unexpectedly yesterday at his residence, St. Arnaud, Raglan-street, Mosman, in his 59th year. He was the son of the late Mr. Moses Moss, an old Sydney merchant. Mr. H. B. Moss had just returned from a country tour, and was in Sydney on Monday. He was for some years Queensland representative of Messrs. M. Moss and Co., and was well known in this State. He leaves a widow and a daughter.

THE WORLD'S GREAT WAR.

WAR TIME IN LONDON

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

KITCHENER MONUMENT.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, June 20.

In the matter of the war, it would seem that events are moving toward the day of decision, and moving in the direction we believe to be inevitable. The outstanding mighty feature of the present week is, of course, the smashing forward movement of the Russians, a movement of re-awakened giant forces which seems to have staggered the opposing Austrian regiments into utter hopelessness. We try to take it cautiously, for it has been borne in upon us before now that the stupendous business of a Russian advance in which huge masses of men and all their vast impedimenta move across miles of terrible country, is only half understood even by our expert critics of the operations of war, most of whom have been very thoroughly found out by the problem of Russia. But this time we are inclined to trust our faiths and banish our doubts. This time the Russian army seems really to have accomplished not only prodigious things, but things which will have permanent effect upon the resisting power of the enemy. At any rate, cities are falling, and thousands of enemy are being destroyed and captured. The next move of the Germans in relief of their eastern front should hold the secret of the matter. At Verdun the German forces slowly advance, but at terrible cost. Quite clearly Verdun has taken more out of them than they ever dreamed of giving, and though the strain and loss of the French army is a dreadful thing, it would seem to be compensated for by the heroism and the resisting power which not only have immortalised the soldiers of France, but which have very definitely spoiled the enemy and hastened the day of his downfall. At all events, the Austrian army is in full flight, Hindenburg in the north makes but a slow response to the trampling victory of these miles of Russians in the south, there is little further Italian disasters, the French of Verdun fight on, and from too many sides for truth of them come stories of the stress of Berlin, and of the seriousness life in Germany itself and the seriousness of the shortages of the people of great cities who claim the right to be fed.

We have no other word for her. She is the girl conductor of our motor 'buses. Women by the million are now so variously and often so strangely engaged in work that once would have seemed impossible to them that we are the less likely to wonder at this new familiar spectacle of girls in the place of men on London's thousands of motor 'buses. It is by no means light work, this of "conducting" a 'bus. The 'bus itself is a swift and difficult vehicle. Its conductor has to be able to leap agilely up and down its stairway, taking the fares on the roof, where is also an open space of roadway lets out the living speed of the thing. She has to watch the multitudinous possibilities of passengers, of which only one is the trouble of their half-crowns in exchange for a penny ticket when the 'bus is full inside and the conductor must fight a difficult way across the feet of those who sit, if she is ever to levy upon those who stand. For since so many of our 'buses went to the work of soldiering in France, we are allowed to stand inside where once we might only sit. Thus is the new conductor's work very much more arduous than it might be, and it is not less but more confused than ever be the tremendous and free-heather patronage of the 'bus, its constant stoppages, and the interminable problems of this and that which are an inevitable part of any one of its journeys. But the girl-conductor is doing admirably this man's work. She is nearly always an intelligent girl, and she is invariably of more courteous mood than that seemingly misanthropic humour which appears to be the last state of mind that conductors of the male variety. Also she overcomes lightly and easily the difficulty of the steep little staircase of the 'bus, in which regard she is provided with a serviceable and not unbecoming uniform of masculine tendency. The only change now necessary, indeed, is that decided upon this week, by which a folding seat will be fitted in the platform of the 'bus, so that the new conductor, being after all a woman, may in the rare intervals of her freedom from her passengers' needs, sit instead of stand on duty.

In due course the last melancholy tribute to Lord Kitchener will be made, and we shall have in London a Kitchener monument. Probably it will be erected in St. Paul's Cathedral, where already are many monuments to great men, some but not all of whom lie buried in the crypt below in masses of memorial stone. There are fine works among these monuments, and some not so fine. It is of these latter, and of the similar ineffective attempts at dignified memorial in London streets, that we think whenever a new group of statuary is suggested. Somehow the great work never seems to be wholly satisfying, and there is so much inferior work high in our public places. Kitchener, surely, deserves the greatest effort of the greatest sculptor we possess. I do not know who he is. I only know he is not a Rodin. But the sculpture of Paris and of France is of a different order from that of London and England. We cannot, of course, go to France for our Kitchener statue, but it would be a great thing for us if an English sculptor could symbolise the lost leader with the artistry and the vision that seem to have come so easily, and have come with such inspiring result, to the sculptors of France.

LATE MAJOR ELMSLIE.

LETTER FROM THE KING.

The following letter from the War Office, London, has been received by Mrs. James Elmslie, Wyralla, Moss-road, Darling Point:—"I have it in command from His Majesty the King to inform you, as next-of-kin of the late Major James McGregor Elmslie, of the Wellington Mounted Rifles (New Zealand Expeditionary Force), that this officer was mentioned in a despatch from General Sir Ian Hamilton, dated December 11, 1915, and published in the supplement to the London Gazette dated January 28, 1916, for gallant and distinguished service in the field.

"I am to express to you the King's high appreciation of these services, and to add that His Majesty trusts that their public acknowledgment may be of some consolation in your bereavement.

(Signed) J.N. D. GRAHAM,
Lieut.-Colonel,
Assistant Military Secretary."

Major Elmslie was born at Hillside, Waverley, New Zealand, and entered into grazing pursuits after leaving college. He was a noted footballer, and played for Wellington for years, and was one of the finest players of this game in the Dominion. On the outbreak of the South African war in 1899 he was one of the first to enlist, and went through the whole campaign as a trooper. On his return to New Zealand he continued his military work, and won his way to a captaincy prior to leaving for the present war. He left New Zealand with his majority, and in Gallipoli he met his death at Lone Pine, in urging his men forward.

Major Elmslie's father, Mr. Peter Elmslie, fought through the Maori war.

KUT.

THE FORLORN HOPE.

A GALLANT EXPEDITION.

The following is taken from a letter from an Eng. Lieut.-Commander, dated Busra, Mesopotamia, May 2:—

I have just returned to Busra from up river, having been away a fortnight, and I will tell you all about it.

On Friday evening, April 14, the S.N.O., Commander Wason, in the absence of Captain Nunn, sent for me, cleared his cabin, and gave me a rough outline of an attempt that was to be made to run the blockade of Kut (people here pronounce it Coote). A ship had been chosen for the purpose, and the flag captain, Captain Burmester, had telegraphed for me to be sent up river with a party of men with tools and all necessary materials for fitting her out and arranging protection, as far as weight and time would permit. Absolute secrecy was necessary, and with the very sketchy outline of what was required the job of collecting necessary materials was none too easy. Commander Wason took infinite pains to give all the help he could, and we raided the Royal Indian Marine Dockyard and the R.E.'s Field Park and obtained all we could possibly think of. The way was made easy for us, as the word had been passed by a high authority, and we were supplied with anything we required. A paddle steamer was placed at our disposal, and I left on Saturday morning. It took all night to load up, with twelve Indian bottlemakers and riveters, six Chinese carpenters, and thirteen men, including fitters, carpenters, blacksmiths, etc. The steamer was without barges, and we had a clear run to Amarah, where we were to find the Julnar, the ship chosen for the job.

We had between 30 and 40 tons of stuffs on board in the shape of plates, bolts, and nuts, forges, tools, etc., and by dint of steaming through the night—the steamers usually tie up for the night as the river is so difficult—we arrived at Amarah about 4 p.m. on Sunday afternoon. I saw the Flag Captain and went round the Julnar with him at once to decide on a definite plan for protecting the vulnerable parts, such as engine and boiler rooms, steering gear, bridge, etc. In the meantime our paddle steamer came alongside and it was not very long before my warriors were hard at it, and after 26 hours' slogging we had broken the back of the job, and the old "Julnar" had assumed quite a different appearance. All cabins were wrecked, and woodwork taken out; the bridge and steering gear were all plated in with ½-plates, which were backed up with bags of flour or rice; and in the same way a citadel was constructed round the engine and boiler rooms. What surprised me more than anything when I first got on board was to meet Firman, who, out of all the volunteers from the — gunboats, had been chosen for the job. It seemed strange that I should be mixed up with him again, but the Flag-Captain soon definitely put the hat on the possibility of being with him for more than a few days.

Sunday night was a strange night, my forges going, and the hammering and banging, mixed up with the cries of the Indian coolies dragging heavy plates about, and with the songs of coolies (mostly Kurds) employed in stuffing the holds as full as they could with all sorts of provisions, from bully beef to tinned milk for the sick. We were to have gone up river on the Monday night, but a signal came through postponing our departure, and during the afternoon the C. in C. (Admiral Wemyss) paid us a visit on his way down to Qurnah. The delay enabled us to improve everything, and finally we left Amarah on Friday evening, arriving at the front on Sunday afternoon, where we tied up alongside.

Although we were ready in time, for some reason unknown to me, the final sailing of the expedition was postponed until Monday night. This delay enabled me to make the acquaintance of Cowley, who was going as second in command. I had heard a lot about Cowley. He has been on the river for many years, and has an uncanny knowledge of it in all states. He was loved and respected by everybody, and when I met him he impressed me at once as a quiet and reliant man, whom it would be impossible to rattle. He was made a lieutenant-commander, R.N.V.R., when the Lynch Bros.' steamers were taken over. The only other civilian to go was Reed, the chief engineer of the Julnar, and for these two brave men I have the greatest admiration. They had very little to gain, and nobody knew more than they did the difficulties and dangers in front of them.

On Monday evening, just before dark, the Julnar cast off. Firman in command, Cowley second in command and Reed chief engineer, with six upper deck hands and four engine-room complement, all chosen from volunteers from the — gunboats. We were not allowed to give this gallant little band a cheer before they left on their desperate mission to succour a starving garrison, for fear of attracting attention. They had 16 miles to go against the strong current of a difficult and tortuous river, and would be lucky if they made more than five miles an hour. There might be obstructions in the river or guns at any point; the enemy were on both banks.

It was not long before our artillery began to carry out a pre-arranged programme, bombarding the enemy's positions. One could see star shells going up in the distance, and about 11.30 a red light was seen. Later on Townshend made a signal, stating that the Julnar had not arrived at 1 a.m., also reporting heavy firing for a quarter of an hour at the Es Sin position. In the morning, after the seaplane returned, we knew that the Julnar was ashore one and a half miles above the Es Sinn position. The forlorn hope had failed when between four and five miles of the goal. It was a great disappointment. We all sincerely trust that the report stating that the gallant little band are prisoners in the hands of the Turks is correct.

I remained in the —, tied up by the Falahia lines, for a couple of days, and then came down in the — with the flag-captain, signal-officer, and flag-lieutenant, as far as Ali Gerby, where we changed over to the — Fly, and continued our journey down river. I left the staff at Quornar, where they were to await the arrival of the C. in C., who was going up to Masiriyah, on the Euphrates, and came on here. It was the most interesting trip for me, and after seeing what the country is like—quite flat, with marshes here and there—and examining some of the old Turkish positions, I am not surprised that we failed to relieve Kut. The question is—but that we shall see later on, all in good time.

The river is most difficult at the present moment, as it is high, and in many places it is quite impossible to tell which are the banks and which are not.

There is a whisper that we go to Colombo about the middle of August to recruit, but I am very afraid it won't come off. I have an idea, quite my own, that we may be too busy to get away.

[Lieutenant Humphry O. B. Firman, R.N., was killed while in charge of the food ship which attempted to reach General Townshend's besieged force at Kut-el-Amara].

THE LATE LIEUT. HUMPHRY O. B. FIRMAN, R.N.

FRENCH FIGHTERS.

GENERALS OF NOTE.

PETAIN'S PERSONALITY.

The personality of General Joffre and his leading commanders is the subject of an interesting sketch in a recent number of the "Fortnightly Review":—

"The Generalissimo is in a certain sense less known than any of his generals (writes Charles Dawbarn). No politician can boast that he has his ear, for he has kept himself rigidly from such influences. His popularity with the masses is remarkable, and his name has become a symbol for humanity and the saving of lives, but he dwells apart in an atmosphere removed from all clamour and excitation, apparently unconscious of the intrigues about him. 'Moral effect' has infinitely less weight with Joffre than military utility; he knows only the latter law in fact. A rigid and solitary figure upon the height, clearly silhouetted against the glowing sky of a vast conflagration, he yet remains impenetrable to all save a few intimates.

"The Second-in-Command presents a complete contrast with his Chief. His character is open, and his oratory is at once humorous and compelling. Though a strict Catholic and attending mass every day, de Castelnau is so tolerant and broad-minded that he has chosen as orderlies two Protestant officers belonging to the Lutheran Church in Alsace. His military science is so sure that he seems to divine in advance the plan of the enemy, and his experience in the Courts and camps of Europe, whither he has gone on missions, political and military, has given him a grasp of problems apparently lying outside formal strategy, but in reality closely connected with it. Probably the most accomplished general in the French Army to him is attributed the plan for the great offensive designed for the spring of 1916.

"The events of Verdun give prominence to the personality of Petain. Before the great attack by the Germans on the fortress, he was unknown except to those in close touch with the Army. In a few weeks he has become world-famous. His rapid promotion was due to the perspicacity of de Castelnau, who had the general direction of the line from Soissons to Verdun. This position is now assumed by Petain in virtue of his splendid performances in the gigantic battle —a promotion deserved in every way. The Second-in-Command observed the vast German preparations, the accumulation of guns and massing of infantry, and, with the assent of the General-in-Chief, set Petain to work to build a dyke against the onrush of devastating waters. With characteristic energy, the General, who had sprung so suddenly into view, threw himself into the stupendous task. Fortunately, bad weather delayed the German advance, and, profiting by the momentary respite, Petain increased the fortifications so that when the battle opened a week later the French were able to resist the first awful thrust of the German battalions.

"The new commander of armies has the supreme gift of inspiring the enthusiasm of his men. They are ready to die for him, to go anywhere at his bidding. And the frank, clear, piercing eyes, the serene forehead, the handsome face barred by the moustache—wheat-coloured like the hair, until two-score years and the Great War turned it grey—seem to explain the intimate character. He has the individuality of great leaders, and those tense and tragic weeks at Verdun have served to bring it out.

"Petain was still Colonel, mature and a little disappointed, and even contemplating retirement, when the war broke out. Personal contact with realities revealed his worth, and his ascension from the great retreat to the prodigious battle of Verdun was a record in rapidity. Placed in temporary charge of the 4th Brigade of infantry, he received, three days subsequently, the command of the 5th Division, and his temporary rank of General of Division was confirmed a fortnight later. On October 25, 1914, he was given the 33rd Army Corps, which covered itself with glory at Carency, Notre Dame de Lorette, and Ablain. Officially a division-naire on April 20, 1915, Petain became Chief of the Second Army, with which he led in the great offensive in Champagne.

"His energy is legendary, and the effect of it is heightened by the appearance of youth conveyed by the pink and white complexion and slim figure. He has kept himself fit by physical exercise. This is part of his system. There is no leader of the French Army who has so persistently imposed a rigid system upon himself, and none who shows greater activity at his age. In the Champagne offensive he ran three miles at the head of his troops over heavy ground.

"He leaves nothing to chance, organising and controlling everything. At the height of the bombardment round Verdun he surprised his officers by paying them personal visits in the most exposed positions. During part of the battle he passed along the lines in an armoured car, which served temporarily as his office and sleeping quarters. At another stage in the gigantic conflict he spent five days and nights continuously at his desk wrestling with details. He drives like the wind over any road, and even racing motorists hold him in respect. Though unmarried, he adores children, and a friend tells me that he saw him, when commanding the 33rd Regiment of Infantry, romping delightfully with children on his back.

"His superiority as a soldier comes from his instant vision. He sees a problem with such sureness that his words seem prophetic. Long before the war he prophesied that the infantry would have all the pain and the profit of it. Events have justified his prevision.

"Calmness and equality of temper are the characteristics of General Roques, who has succeeded General Gallieni at the Ministry of War. Possessing as great will-power as his predecessor, he has the added quality of getting his own way without exciting an embarrassing opposition. Like Joffre, he has passed the greater part of his career in the colonies, and went thither directly after his Polytechnique days. Like Joffre, too, he worked as an engineer in Madagascar, helping the future Generalissimo to build Diego Suarez, and afterwards harnessing his scientific energy to a railway from Antananarivo to the sea. Seven fruitful years in Madagascar were prefaced by six in Algeria, and as many in Tonking, he took part, also, in General Dodds' expedition to Dahomey.

"Succeeding Joffre as Director of Engineers at the Ministry of War, he became Director of Aeronautics at the moment when France began to realise the military possibilities of the aeroplane. General Roques' spirit of organisation prevailed in the Rue St. Dominique as it prevailed when he came into contact with troops. Mounting by the usual steps of division, corps d'armee and armee, he distinguished himself in actual war in the latter two commands, and gained the War Cross and Grand Cross of the Legion for personal bravery and skill in the field. At manoeuvres a year before the war he had shown already his ability in handling men. With the dust of Verdun upon him, he went to the Ministry of War armed with every qualification for his tremendous task.

"He is of the school of those formed in France over-seas. They include, of course, Joffre, Gallieni, Gouraud, and Marchand. Gouraud resembles Petain in his temperament and general charm, as well as in his command over men. He inspires devotion, enhanced by his splendid face and figure. The right sleeve hangs empty with a touching eloquence, and for months he walked limping with a stick, for his right thigh and left leg had been injured as at the Dardanelles—cause of the missing arm.

"I saw him just after his recovery, under orders, to his great joy, to rejoin the front. In speaking to him, one realised why he was called the Lion of the Argonne. There is something king-like in his looks; the brown beard and manly, well-formed features; and you are certain that the khaki tunic hides a lion's heart, for his whole career has been leonine, whether tracking Samory, the negro chieftain, into the recesses of his virgin forest, where he captured him after he had waged war with France for seven years, or whether he was leading a sortie from Fez and clearing a savage horde from its walls. This last feat gained for him the three stars at a time of life when most French officers are not yet colonels.

"No French general has come into closer contact with the English than Foch. His army has neighboured ours for long together, and none has a higher opinion of our military qualities or is more sensible of our progress in the scientific side of war since our first appearance on the Continent. Foch is one of the most learned of the French Generals, and his lectures at the War School, which he delivered during a part of his career, are admirable treatise on tactics. When war broke out he was commanding the 20th Army Corps at Nancy, with its famous Iron Division. He is a strict disciplinarian, who has known how to adapt his science and his rigid rules successfully to the actual problems. Looking forty-five, though twenty years older, he is of those who prepared assiduously for the great campaign. Alas! his own family were early victims of it, for his son and son-in-law fell at Charleroi.

"Balfourier, who has so distinguished himself in the fight at Verdun, was amongst his brigadier-generals.

"These, then, are the men who are carrying France to victory. To-morrow others will spring from the soil to typify Gallic courage, talent, and resourcefulness. And there is nothing more startlingly true in the present war than the absolute adaptability of the race. It is perennial in its freshness and inspiration."

H.M.S. NEW ZEALAND.

GREAT SEA FIGHT.

DOMINION BATTLESHIP'S GREAT SERVICE.

The "Sentsman" publishes the following from a special correspondent:—

In the great battle off Jutland the work of our battle cruisers so magnificently upheld the deathless traditions of the British navy that any distinction between the parts played by them need not be too finely drawn, but the people of this country will share the gratification of the colonies on learning something of the place which the New Zealand had in one of the greatest sea fights in history. The order of our battle cruisers as they went into action was as follows:—Lion, carrying the flag of Admiral Sir David Beatty, Princess Royal, Queen Mary, Tiger, New Zealand, and Indefatigable.

The New Zealand flew the flag of Admiral Pakenham, in the absence of his Majesty's ship Australia, to which is given as a rule that distinction, and thus in a double sense was the vessel representative of a part of our Empire whose readiness in patriotic effort has been exemplary. In this connection, too, an interesting coincidence may be noted. When the New Zealand figured in the Dogger Bank affair she also carried an admiral's flag, for Sir A. Moore, who was second in command. She sailed into the great adventure off the Jutland coast proudly bearing other evidences of her Antipodean connection. There floated in the breeze of the eventful May evening the White Ensign and Union Jack presented by the women of New Zealand, which figured in her previous engagements also, and is now showing the marks of action, though the Maori emblem on the forepart of the fighting-top is so far practically unscathed.

A MAORI CHARM.

Whether the captain shares the superstitions of men "who go down to the sea in ships" I cannot profess to say, but I understand that he fulfilled on this occasion the conditions attaching to a small greenstone charm given to his predecessor by a Maori chief. This tiki was to be worn by the captain who first took the ship into action, and that, I believe, was done. Of a Maori mat, also given by the patriotic and well-intentioned natives, which was to be donned by the captain in action, I cannot say so much. Modern battle conditions on the sea do not permit of liberties in the direction of ceremonial dress. Perhaps before I leave the more personal side of the ship's life I may mention that the bulldog which has taken the place of a better-known predecessor in the role of mascot, the former animal having died last year by an accident, slept peacefully through the action.

Probably no better index to the spirit with which the men of the fleet went into the action could be given than the efforts which the crew of the New Zealand made. Like everybody concerned, they were "itching for the scrap." I am told that everything the men did was not faced unemotionally as a duty or executed mechanically as a task. The big heart of every sailor was in the job. With them all it seemed to be a personal matter. The New Zealand men "down below" worked like Trojans.

A SPEED RECORD.

They seemed to get every available ounce and more out of the ship. She was not expected, naturally, to produce the capacity of her battle companions, but she surprised her officers with her speed. It may be recalled that in the Dogger Bank affair she broke all her records for sailing, but in the present instance she surpassed anything she had previously achieved in speed record, and had no difficulty in holding her place in the line. The fact is a splendid compliment to the splendid fellows below, who never spare themselves when, in the service diction of the lower deck, there is "something doing."

When the scene of the conflict was reached we and the enemy opened fire about the same time at a range approximately of 10 miles. A few minutes after the opening of the battle, in which deadly work and heavy damage was being done by the guns on both sides, the sinking of the indefatigable left the New Zealand the rearmost ship in the line.

With the further reduction of the line caused by the disappearance of the Queen Mary the position of the New Zealand became one of danger as well as honour, for in the arranging of battle position with the coming of the reinforcements the ship held the place nearest to the enemy. There was a particularly hot spell at this time. The firing of the Germans was concentrated and intense, and the particular turning movement which was carried through at that time is recalled by the expressive phrase, "the windy corner." The fall of projectiles was fast and furious. The time was one of admitted anxiety for the daring cruisers, which was allayed by the welcome view of the ships behind racing to the fray.

With the widening of the scope of the fighting there was a tornado of shell. It churned the sea with its splashing. Splinters pattered on the ships' sides like hail, while over all was the roar of the guns. The New Zealand played her part right well. She seems almost to have had a charmed life, for her escapes were numerous and narrow, while her damage was of the slightest, and her casualties really negligible. "I believe I am not exaggerating when I say that only two of her sailors were wounded. I am equally correct, I think, in suggesting that she gave a great deal more than she received.

SOLDIERS AND RELIGION.

LORD FRENCH'S MESSAGE.

An interesting letter from Lord French, bearing on the religious side of warfare, was read at a meeting in London, in connection with the movement for the national revival of family prayers.

"My experiences in this war," he wrote, "assured me that the teaching of religious leaders in this country had already borne good fruit, which is clearly manifest in the devoted spirit of self-sacrifice which our soldiers have displayed in the field. A marked characteristic of the armies which are now fighting in France and elsewhere is the presence of high ideals and noble aspirations. The inculcation of those principles has been fostered and kept alive by visits to the front of prominent teachers of all denominations, whose presence amongst the troops has had the very best effect. Any action taken to extend and perpetuate such spiritual influences must appeal strongly to all who have the interests of the Empire at heart."

THE SOMME.

TOPOGRAPHY OF TERRAIN.

WHERE WE ARE FIGHTING.

"Where the French and the British are gradually forcing the invaders back from French soil," said M. V. Jonguel, the head of a French wool-buying firm in Sydney, "is close to my native place. In fact, I was born within forty miles of Peronne, which at the present time is, one may say, the storm centre. Peronne is not a large town by any means, numbering, perhaps, 3500 inhabitants, and it is surrounded by low hills that hardly deserve the name, being more in the form of undulations of the country outside the city proper.

"Peronne, which I know well, is a very ancient city, with fortifications dating back 500 years, and having on its south-eastern side a very beautiful church, built in the 13th century. The River Somme flows on the western side of the town, and on each side of this stream are extensive marshes. The country all round is given up to agricultural pursuits, and especially small sheep farms. They cannot be compared with your 'runs' in Australia, for a man owning 300 sheep would be considered a very big sheep owner, indeed.

"Bapaume is another small town a few miles north of Peronne, with about 3000 inhabitants, and Albert, which is behind the Allies' advanced line, contains from 7000 to 8000 people. Of these two Albert is the more important industrial centre; but one can hardly speak of these little villages and small towns as manufacturing centres. In the full meaning of the word they are not. They are just country towns made more or less important because railway lines or main roads converge on them. In peace times they are very similar to small English or Australian towns, where small industries and shop-keeping are carried on, and the disposal of local produce is conducted in the market squares. For miles round the country is flat, save for slight undulations, and given over to small farmers, who make their living out of what the land provides.

"One village just behind the advanced line is Hebuterne. It is a name only now, for from what we have heard it has been entirely battered to pieces in the successive attacks and counter-attacks.

"A little to the north is Arras, a slightly larger town, which was once captured by the Spanish. To-day one can trace the conqueror's occupation by the dark eyes and olive skins of many of the inhabitants. It boasted a beautiful town hall, with a fine tower, which, in days gone by, was used as a watch tower in case of fire, a watchman always being stationed in it day and night. At one time Arras was a big garrison town, but, I believe, prior to the war, the garrison had been reduced to a single regiment. Anyhow, it had a busy population of 25,000, but since the German invasion that has been reduced to 1000, all of whom are living an underground life in cellars. The Germans made a 'dead set', as you say here, at Arras in the early days of the war, and blew the Town Hall tower away with heavy gunfire, and practically demolished the many beautiful old buildings in the town."

Taking up the story, Mr. M. P. Lamerand, another representative woolbuyer, who spent four years at Epehy, just to the north-east of Peronne, continued the account of this devastated district. "All round Epehy is exceedingly rich agricultural country," he said. "It stretches for miles—to Peronne, to Combles, to Bertincourt, and then again southeast. It is the country of the sugar beet, and so rich is the soil that the factories engaged in this business paid from 30 to 40 per cent. per annum. I know Peronne well," continued M. Lamerand. "It is a wonderful old town, having a beautiful cathedral on the south-eastern side, and the great castle, known as the Citadel, built and occupied by Louis XI., on the north-east. There is one long main street, which runs through the town from south-west to north-east, and the town is entirely surrounded by ramparts, with a deep moat on the outside. This moat was kept filled with water from the arms of the Somme, and the town has defied so many assaults in the olden days that it took as its motto 'Invicta Urbs'—an unconquerable city. The motto held till 1870, when the Germans entered it, and all the inhabitants who remained took refuge in the great cellars underneath the Citadel.

"Fierce fighting is now going on in Biaches. This is the southern suburb of Peronne. The town being fortified, and the inhabitants increasing prior to the war, it became necessary to have outlets for the population, and two suburbs sprang up—the one I have mentioned to the south and Mount St. Quentin to the north. At present we are driving the enemy back from Biaches, and their only line of retreat must be through the main street of old Peronne, and then it will become necessary to force them to evacuate Mount St. Quentin. There is no other line of retreat open to them, as swamps and marshes lie on either side of the Somme and Biaches to the south, and were they to attempt a detour they would soon be in difficulties. Here and there around Peronne are small, very small, hills, but often the roads leading to their summits are steep. You read in the cables of 'up-hill fighting,' which is perfectly correct, for many of the roads leading to the top of these hills have a rise of 10 per cent., or, as you would say, 10 feet in each hundred, and every foot of the way is, of course, being contested. Peronne and Arras are really the only two towns in this region; the rest of the names are those of villages, but they loom large when fighting is going on in them. Bapaume, for instance, is of importance because the railway runs through it, and no less than seven main roads, leading north, south, east, and west. A dozen main roads converge on Peronne, and the railway from Chaulnes goes north from there, striking off in an easterly direction to Cartigny and Roisel.

"But all the country round the whole of this battle-scarred district is a farmer's country—good flat land and rich soil, and watered by the Somme and its numerous small tributaries. One cannot recollect all the details of the district, but that is what would be the general impression of an observant traveller or one who had lived there. It is the land—or, rather, it was—of the small farmer, who lived contentedly and made a comfortable living out of the land, and was able to put a little by for a rainy day."

THE FIRING LINE.

LETTERS FROM SOLDIERS.

ROAR OF THE BIG GUNS.

The following is an extract from a letter written by Second-Lieutenant M. F. Loxton, of the 113th Battery of the 25th Brigade of the Royal Field Artillery, son of Mr. E. J. Loxton, K.C., of Sydney, from France, under date of May 22:—"I am sending this letter a day later than was my intention, owing to a bit of a battle which the Huns had with us, and which occupied my entire attention all yesterday. We are having quite a busy time of it at present. Two days and nights out of every three I have to spend sitting in a position far from comfortable, watching and shooting at the enemy. Sometimes he shoots at me with varying accuracy and vehemence. I usually wait until he gets one within a certain proximity and then descend as quickly as possible to a dug-out below. I wish all you about yesterday. I was watching a bit of country very similar to that around Pymble, though not so hilly. The day was clear and beautiful'y warm, and I was enjoying a pipe, when suddenly the rumbling roar of a bombardment came to me from the right. I looked out and saw that what a few minutes before had appeared just an ordinary sloping hillside, somewhat scoured with trenches and shell holes now had been transfigured into what I should imagine the inside of an active volcano must look like. The whole place simply boiled with bursting shells, and in a very short time everything was hidden by a dense cloud of smoke and dust. Then the bombardment began to extend north towards my position, and south until its further boundary enveloped the crest of my view. At the same time the air, which a few minutes before had been still and silent, sounded now to be blowing hard. One minute it was filled with gentle sighings as the large, long range shells passed high over head; the next it almost shrieked as the lighter shells, with higher velocity, whizzed over close above the ground, and blending with this muddle of contrasting sounds was the steady monotonous droning of the aeroplanes overhead, without a break and with no other change than that gradually one object after another became blotted from view by the smoke of shells. The bombardment continued for over an hour, when suddenly in the distance, away to our right, a new sound arose, dominating every other sound and striking as clear as if all else were silent. It was the buzzing of a siren—the gas alarm—a sound known to every person within 20 miles of the firing line. One siren first gave the warning, which was taken up at once by others on the right, left, and rear, so that instantly the warning flew north and south, and back to the town and rest billets and artillery in rear. On receiving this signal every one gets his gas helmet ready to put on at the first smell of gas. This state of things punctuated by three gas alarms continued until after midnight, when as there was nothing further for me to do I returned to the battery. When night came on the whole front line for miles appeared like a gigantic fireworks display. The country round and between our own and the German front lines was lit up with powerful flares, which are fired from a pistol, and burn in the air with a light that shows up everything for hundreds of yards round, as clear as day, and mingled among these flares are red and green rockets, used to signal back information, and dotted and scattered in and out of everything are the brilliant shooting flashes of the bursting shells, while the horizon all around is similarly decorated with the flashes of the guns themselves. This is about the best effort I can make to describe to you what a battle over here looks like to me, situated as I was yesterday, observing from a position just on the outskirts of what I have described."

STUCK TO HIS GUNS.

A.J.B., writing from France, gives the information that the late Corporal Harold Hook, who was a well-known Sydney amateur boxer, has been recommended for an award for the heroic manner in which he stuck to his gun on May 3. He says:—"Hook resided with his parents at Campsie up to the time of his enlistment in Sydney 14 months ago, and was in charge of a trench during an intensive bombardment on the part of the Germans, who 'turned them all on' in order to try and impress the Australian troops. But not a man moved until he was knocked down. Hook was in the forefront with shell of big calibre bursting all round him. Had he forsaken his gun the enemy would have been over the trenches without hesitation. He stood firm almost to the end; but a shell then struck him and blew him to pieces. Shortly afterwards the Germans charged the portion of the trenches Hook was in and captured, amongst others, two Sydney men, Sergeants O'Shea and Stewart, both of whom were promoted on the Peninsular. Lieutenant Blanchard also of Sydney, was missing when light dawned. O'Shea and Stewart have written from the German lines asking Q.M.S. Jones to notify their relatives that they are prisoners. Both are fit and well. A magnificent cross has been erected to Hook by his brother Tom. Nothing is known as to the whereabouts of Lieutenant Blanchard. He was commissioned as a result of his work whilst a Sergeant at Gallipoli."

A LONG-DELAYED LETTER

Private E. Burgess, writing from France to his father, Mr. E. H. Burgess, of Bridge-street, Drummoyne, remarks:—"This letter is an answer to one I received from you to-day (June 7) in the firing line. It has taken nine months to reach me. The date on it is September 11, 1915. I should have received it on the Peninsular, but it must have gone to Lemnos Island. That is the place we went to after the evacuation, and as I told you I had to take to the hospital from there, so it has been chasing me up for nine months. My health is not too good since arriving in France. I have been in hospital twice since coming here. I put it down to the change of climate. This place is very cold, very different from Gallipoli. The main thing you get here is the shells. You ought to have been here yesterday. 'Fritz' put about 200 shells all round the position we are holding, and we were lucky enough to miss them. It is terrible to see the villages wrecked by the Germans. Bus business is going on as usual not five miles from the firing line. In every other house here you can get beer for a penny a glass. What do you think of that?"

WAR IN THE AIR.

"It may interest you to know that a German Taube flew over here yesterday (April 27) morning," writes a New Zealand soldier from France. "Soon after an English machine was seen to ascend. Then a fight, lasting an hour and a-half, took place, and I am pleased to say that the Taube came crashing to earth. The English aviator coolly descended to have a look at the result of his handiwork. He could not have been more than 20 years of age, and the creditable part about the business is that he accomplished the feat single-handed. Both aircrafts were fitted with machine-guns."

A SPRIG OF WATTLE.

Private Brian Doherty, writing from Egypt to his mother at Manly says:—When this old war is over I will be with you again. Home is best. I wonder if you people out there realise what that word means to us chaps out here. The other day I came across a little wattle tree in full bloom. I took a good look at it, and then a good sniff—and I don't mind confessing I had a lump in my throat for five minutes afterwards. I could just shut my eyes to the never ending stretch of desert, the tents, huts, and ancient buildings that stand for Egypt's ages, and see again those days when we kids used to tramp for miles along the old coast road outside Manly, and come back tired and hungry laden with great bunches of that dear golden wattle.

THE JUTLAND BATTLE.

A brother of a Mascot resident, serving on one of the largest of the British warships, writes:—"I expect by now you have heard that my ship was in the battle off Jutland. It is in dry dock being repaired, for there is a hole in it big enough for a tram car to go through. We first saw the Germans at 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. We were out with Admiral Beatty, and with eight ships we fought the entire German navy for three hours, till our Grand Fleet came up. Our ship alone fired 600 'pills' at the Germans, each a ton a piece, and some of our squadron fired more; so you see we gave them something. They were alright when they had 40 odd ships to our 8, but when the Grand Fleet came up what a different tale it was. If the Grand Fleet had been much longer we should be at the bottom by now. On our ship there were between 50 and 60 killed, and 120 injured. I reckon myself lucky in having escaped without a scratch."

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Rich.)

COMMONWEALTH INCOME TAX APPEALS.

His Honor, sitting in original jurisdiction of the High Court, considered two appeals against the Commonwealth Income Tax. One was brought by the Bank of New South Wales, and the other by the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Ltd. Mr. Alex. Thomson (instructed by Messrs. Cape, Kent, and Gaden), represented the appellants, and Mr. Bavin appeared for the Commissioner of Taxation.

It was asked that his Honor should state a case for the opinion of the Full Court on three points raised. One, common to both appellants, was that as a bank's income tax could only be levied under the Act upon the taxable income derived from all sources in Australia during the twelve months ending June 30, 1915, certain sums carried forward to profit and loss on March 31, 1914, which had not been distributed amongst the shareholders, could not be taken into account as part of the income for the year ending June 30, 1915. In the case of the Commercial Banking Company, the amount involved was £57,854, and, in the case of the other appellants, £69,405. The second point, which was raised by the Bank of New South Wales alone, was as to whether the bank was not entitled to deduct from its income certain bonuses allowed by it to officers for efficiency.

His Honor directed a case to be prepared on the points raised and submitted to him, whereupon he would refer it to the Full Court.

SUMMONS FOR DIRECTIONS.

Mr. Mason appeared for the plaintiff (respondent), and Mr. Hardwick for the defendant (applicant), in a summons for discovery arising out of the suit of C. G. Piggott v J. G. Turner, an action concerning a contract said to have been entered into between the parties. His Honor, by consent, made the usual order for discovery and inspection of documents and papers, and also granted a similar application, on behalf of the plaintiff (respondent), in connection with a counter-claim. An application by Mr. Hardwick for the de bene esse examination of a member of the Australian Imperial Forces in Egypt and for other matters was adjourned.

SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before Mr. Justice Street, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

A LAND TRANSACTION.

Mallick v Farish.

Mr. Mack, instructed by Mr. J. W. H. Houston, appeared for the defendant in support of the appeal; and Mr. James, instructed by Messrs. Cope and Co., for the plaintiff, in support of the verdict. On the previous day Mr. Mack had asked leave to add a new ground, based on affidavits filed, alleging that plaintiff, being an alien enemy, could not maintain the action; but counsel now admitted that he could not press the application. Mr. James said that while the case was on, the military authorities made full inquiry into the matter, and subsequently informed him that there was no reason for saying that Mr. Mallick was an alien enemy.

The Court reserved judgment.

APPEAL AGAINST DENTAL BOARD.

"QUESTION OF INFAMOUS CONDUCT."

Re W. E. Thomas.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Milner Stephen, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, appeared for William Edward Thomas, of Broken Hill, registered dentist, in support of an appeal from the decision of the Dental Board of New South Wales. Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett (Crown Solicitor), appeared for the respondents to oppose. Mr. Shand, in explaining the nature of the case, said that the appeal was one under section 8 of the Dentists Act, 1912, against an order made by the Dental Board of New South Wales on May 1 last, at Sydney, directing the removal of appellant's name from the register of dentists, on the ground that he had been guilty of "infamous conduct in a professional respect," on a charge preferred against him by Police Sergeant Gibson, of Broken Hill. Mr. Thomas is a registered dentist, having branches of business in New South Wales, South Australia, and Victoria, and he employed assistants to carry on these branches, which he himself visited from time to time. He had been carrying on business at Broken Hill for about 12 years, and about six months prior to the laying of the complaint against him he had a registered dentist in his employment. That appeared not to have been done by design, but accidentally, because appellant said he did not know that the requirements of the Dental Board of New South Wales called for the employment of a registered dentist. His registered assistant left him about six months ago on a holiday, but did not return. There was a man named Engelby in his employ at Broken Hill who was not registered, but he had carried on business at Broken Hill for about 12 years. He was apparently a man skilled in his profession, and the police admitted that he was a man who was respected in Broken Hill for his high character and the skilful nature of his work. He was a man who was patronised by a large number of people at Broken Hill, and no suggestion was thrown out by him that he was registered. He was a reputable man, and in his profession was held in high esteem. This man carried on Thomas's business, and the latter visited him four or five times during the period of his employment. On one occasion a policeman visited the office, and interviewed Engelby, who admitted that he was not a registered dentist. Then Engelby apparently communicated with Thomas, who was in another State, and Thomas thereupon consulted his solicitor, in order to ascertain whether it was necessary to have a registered man in the position which Engelby occupied, and he was informed in reply that it was necessary. Thomas thereupon tried to obtain a registered man, but failed. The board found that, though he had employed a man of high character in the profession, he was guilty of "infamous conduct in a professional respect" in employing a man who was not registered. He contended that the evidence did not warrant such an inference being drawn. Unfortunately, in the case, something appeared to have been done—he supposed inadvertently—by the Board which was very unfortunate for his client. In New South Wales the law did not, up to a certain time, at any rate, require that only a registered man could practise dentistry, but he was not allowed to put up a sign announcing that he was a registered dentist, or to do anything leading the public to the impression that he was registered. In South Australia, apparently, the law was very much the same. This man was cross-examined as to the South Australian Act, and apparently it was represented before the board that the South Australian Act prevented unregistered dentists from practising there, and a very strong presumption was raised against appellant for stating that the rule did not apply in New South Wales or South Australia. Even if in New South Wales the regulations required the employment of a registered dentist in certain circumstances, what was done here did not amount to "infamous conduct in a professional respect," and he contended, further, that there was no prohibition against a registered dentist employing an unregistered man. The only prohibition was against a registered dentist allowing an unregistered dentist to perform surgical operations, and it was extremely doubtful whether the board could make regulations to punish an unregistered man.

Mr. Justice Gordon: The regulations provided that the dentist must not employ an unregistered person to perform any surgical operation except under his personal supervision.

Mr. Shand: But the only way you can bring that in against the registered dentist is as an aider and abettor.

Mr. Justice Gordon: It says that if any such person wilfully permits an unregistered person to perform such operation he shall be liable to a penalty.

Mr. Shand said there were two aspects in the case, and one was that Thomas was unaware that the regulations under the New South Wales law required the presence of a registered man at operations by an unregistered person.

Mr. Justice Gordon: I suppose it is admitted that this unregistered person was left in charge of appellant's office at Broken Hill, and performed operations of surgical difficulty.

Mr. Shand said that was so, but there appeared to be some distinction between surgical and mechanical dentistry. Another aspect of the matter was that Thomas was not shown to have been guilty of behaving in such a dishonourable or disgraceful manner as would justify the board in stigmatising his conduct as infamous in a professional respect. Both in New South Wales and South Australia unregistered men were allowed to practise, and there was nothing to justify the board in concluding that when Thomas said he was not aware of the regulation in New South Wales he was not telling the truth.

Mr. Windeyer, on the other side, said that the object of the regulation was to protect the public from dentists who were unregistered, and who were not duly recognised by the certificate of the board. In the present case the evidence went to show that on the premises at Broken Hill where appellant carried on business were the words "Thomas; modern American dentistry; perfectly painless extraction." It did not matter how highly qualified Engelby might be as a dentist, for the object of the regulation was to ensure that the public who went to these places for treatment were operated upon by a registered dentist, whose qualifications had been certified in the usual way by the board. The appellant merely went to this place of business three or four times in six months, and remained there for perhaps a day; and the fact that he lent his name to an unregistered person who was doing the work was the gravamen of the charge. If the decision in Kennely's case was correct, the board had no option but to do what it did, and it regarded the offence as one in which appellant allowed his name to be used by an unregistered practitioner in contravention of the Act.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

ORIGINATING SUMMONS.

Wilson v Windsor and another.

Dr. Waddell, instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, Sydney, agents for Mr. Kieran Ryan, of Kiama, appeared for the plaintiff, Jane Wilson, of Kiama; Mr. Abrahams, instructed by the same solicitors, appeared for the defendant, Margaret Windsor; and Mr. Davidson, instructed by Messrs. J. A. I. Perry, Dent, and Co., for the defendant, Thomas Henry Davey, of the Macleay River. This was an originating summons by the plaintiff, asking the Court to determine the true construction of part of the will of the late Thomas Smith Speer. His Honor held that the estates of the two deceased daughters are entitled to a share of testator's estate. The defendant, Margaret Windsor, was appointed to represent herself, Thomas Speer, Alexander Speer, Charles Speer, and Eliza Larkin. The defendant, Thomas Henry Davey, was appointed to represent the estate of Jemima Lloyd; and Mr. Kieran Ryan, solicitor (Kiama), to represent the defendants as well as the plaintiff.

PEADON v PEADON.

This matter came before the Probate Judge last month, when William Peadon and Edwin Ernest Weir, executors of the will of the late Thomas Peadon, were the plaintiffs, and Elliott George William Peadon was the defendant. The suit, which related to the validity of the will, was decided in favour of the plaintiffs. The defendant is appealing against this verdict to the Full Court. Yesterday the defendant appellant in his affidavit stated that he was unable to pay the cost of printing the evidence and documents in the probate suit, which is estimated at £100. He feared that unless an order dispensing with the said printing is made he would have to abandon his appeal. His Honor adjourned the hearing of the application, and extended the time for filing affidavits as to cost of typing, etc., till Thursday next. Mr. Abrahams, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail, for the respondent.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

PAPER BAG MAKERS AND CONDIMENT PACKERS.

Mr. M. Henwood appeared for the Factory Employees' Union of Australasia in support of an application for the constitution of a wages board for persons engaged in the manufacture of paper bags, etc. Mr. Croft represented the Printing Trades Women and Girl Employees' Union, and Mr. Mather the Master Printers' and Connected Trades Association. The matter was allowed to stand over to permit of the schedule being amended.

A similar application was made by Mr. Henwood, on behalf of the Factory Employees' Union of Australasia, for the constitution of a board for female condiment packers, and it was also allowed to stand over. Mr. Barker appeared for the Federated Storemen and Packers' Union.

NEW BOARD REPRESENTATIVES.

Leo Rossell, managing director of the Great Western Milling Company, Canowindra, of Lombard-chambers, Pitt-street, Sydney, as representative of the Flour Mill Owners' Industrial Committee, was nominated as the employers' representative on the Manufacturing No. 2 Group, No. 1 (Flour Mills, State) Board, in lieu of Henry Crago, resigned.

J. Campbell, of 189 Johnston-street, Annandale, was nominated as the employees' representative on the Food Supply and Distribution No. 1 Group, No. 13 (Poulterers) Board, in lieu of W. Stevens, who resigned.

S. J. Stanbridge, of Wambool, Thomas-street, Croydon, was nominated as the employees' representative on the Printing Trades Group, No. 1 (Compositors, etc.) Board, vice W. J. Ratcliffe, resigned.

M. O'Brien, of 192 Barcom-avenue, Darlinghurst, was nominated as the employees' representative on the Transport Group No. 1 (Wool, Skin, and Hide Storemen) Board, in lieu of E. Starkey, resigned.

His Honor recommended each of the nominations.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Scholes.)

Mr. H. Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

ACQUITTALS.

Joseph Harris, a young man, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having, on June 15, stolen a watch-guard, sovereign case, two medals, a bangle, and other articles, in the dwelling of John Howey, licensee of the Hunter River Hotel, Sussex-street. Harris, who was defended by Mr. P. K. White, pleaded an alibi, and brought witnesses to show that, at the hour of the robbery, he was at a house in Darlinghurst-road. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and the accused was discharged.

William Stanley pleaded not guilty to a charge of having assaulted William George Johns on July 17, with intent to rob. He was defended by Mr. J. C. J. Ryan, who was assigned by the Crown for the purpose. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and the accused was discharged.

THEFT OF JEWELLERY.

Elsie Winifred Potts (22) pleaded guilty to a charge of having stolen a quantity of jewellery and money, the property of Benjamin Lewis Isaacs, by whom she was employed as a domestic servant. Accused, who was represented by Mr. P. Bourke, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with light labour in the Long Bay Penitentiary.

POSTAL ARTICLES STOLEN.

Frank Edward Thomas, 19, pleaded guilty to two charges of having stolen certain postal articles, at Arncliffe, on June 16 and July 17 respectively, the property of the Postmaster-General, by whom he was employed. Mr. F. Panker, who appeared for the accused, said that the lad had enlisted twelve months ago, but had been discharged from the forces because he was weak mentally. A sentence of twelve months' imprisonment in Goulburn Gaol was imposed on each charge, the sentences to be concurrent.

PLEAS OF GUILTY.

The following prisoners pleaded guilty to the charges specified, and were remanded for sentence:—

Wm. Upton, to having stolen, on July 12, a gelding, the property of James Gordon, and to a second charge of stealing a set of harness, and rug, the property of John Edmund Herron, and a pair of winkers, the property of Charles Yee.

Thomas Montague, to a charge of having wilfully made a false statement at Petersham on January 27, for insertion in a register of births.

Leonard Keiss, to having maliciously injured a plateglass window, on July 3, the property of May Ryan, and causing damage to the extent of £22.

John Bede Donohue, to having broken and entered the dwelling-house of Rose Agnes Rattigan, at Newtown, on January 6, and stealing a quantity of jewellery.

Ernest Leslie Ellis, to the larceny, on June 25, of a Gladstone bag containing goods and money, the property of Clayton Freeling.

Annie Smith, to a charge of having stolen a watch and chain, the property of Annie Edwards, at Sydney, on June 6 and to a second charge of stealing a handbag, and quantity of jewellery, at Katoomba, on July 9, the property of Annie Rogers.

Ethel May O'Brien, to having feloniously received, on July 2, at Canterbury, a quantity of groceries and other goods, the property of Patrick Francis O'Sullivan, well knowing them to have been stolen.

Lim Yood, to having made a false statement in a certain declaration in which he swore that he had lived in Sydney for five years.

FAIR RENTS COURT.

The tenant of 6 Purves-street, Glebe, applied to the Fair Rents Court yesterday for a reduction of the present rental of 12s per week. The cottage, which is one of a terrace of six, and is of brick, was valued at £205, and the land at £78. The fair rent was determined at 10s 6d per week.

ALDERMEN'S TROUBLES.

POLICE COURT SEQUEL.

Trouble occurred last week at a meeting of the Redfern Municipal Council concerning the expenditure of certain money by the Mayor on repairs in Douglas-street, which, it was alleged, was not authorised by the council. This culminated in the appearance of the Mayor, Mr. Thomas Holden, M.L.C., at the Redfern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. King, S.M., in answer to a charge laid against him by Edward M. Spearman.

The charge was: "About the months of May and June, 1916, being an officer, to wit, the Mayor, of the Council of the Municipality of Redfern, except as in the regulations under the Local Government Act, 1906, provided, did incur liability for expenditure in the said municipality, before such expenditure had been approved by the said council, and a sum of money to meet such expenditure had been voted by the said council."

Mr. H. E. McIntosh appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. P. H. Sullivan for the defence.

Mr. R. W. Grierson, the town clerk, produced the schedule of works that had been provided for by the council for the year 1916. Douglas-street was not included in that schedule. The money expended for the work in Douglas-street amounted to £152 2s. A motion was moved at a meeting of the council condemning the Mayor's action, but an amendment of approval was carried by five votes to four. The Mayor did not vote.

The Mayor had £750 to use outside any specific street, and no resolution had been passed by the council dealing with the amount that the Mayor should expend without the council's authority.

Alderman John Leitch said that he had been five times elected Mayor of the municipality, and an alderman for 10 years. He knew Douglas-street, but did not know of any aldermen having property there. Only about one-half of the scheduled work for this year had been carried out.

The charge was dismissed, and an application for costs by Mr. Sullivan was refused on the grounds that it was laid in the public interest.

MANLY HOSPITAL INQUIRY.

POST-MORTEM EXAMINATION.

In connection with the Manly Hospital inquiry, the body of Leonard William Wakeling was yesterday exhumed by order of the City Coroner, and a post-mortem examination was made by Drs. Sheldon and Palmer.

They found a few abrasions on both lower legs—the left limb was broken (simple fracture) in the middle of bone. There was a fracture of the fifth left rib, a cut on the chin, and one upper front tooth apparently knocked out. There was no injury to the chest organs, and no blood in the cavities of the chest. A good deal of blood was free in the abdomen, and the only apparent injury was the extreme summit of the right lobe of the liver: there was a small abrasion, which may have opened into one of the liver veins. The other organs were intact. There was no injury to the brain or to the spinal cord.

They attributed the cause of death to, probably, abdominal hemorrhage and shock.

ALLEGED THEFT OF CHEQUES.

At the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. MacFarlane, C.S.M., Charles Chapman Cunningham, 26, appeared on a number of charges of stealing cheques, the property of Robert John Mulholland, trading as R. J. Mulholland and Co., at Sydney.

The amounts and dates on which the cheques were alleged to have been stolen were:—£65/6/3, on March 22, 1915; £84/19/6, on April 21, 1915; £74/10/8, on June 30, 1915; £46/6/11, on August 17, 1915; £62/0/5, on September 20, 1915; and £146/16/3, on March 23, 1916.

According to the evidence for the prosecution, Cunningham, who was the accountant at Mulholland and Co.'s, made out cheques for payment of freight to the Railway Department. The cheques were then signed by a member of the firm. The cheques in question had not been made payable to the Railway Department when they were signed. They had, it was alleged, been paid by accused into his own account at the King-street branch of the Commonwealth Bank.

Accused did not give evidence, and was committed for trial.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

THE WHEAT BONUS.

In Parliament yesterday the Minister for Agriculture was asked by Mr. Ball whether he had authorised or requested the statement regarding the inclusion of fallow land in the wheat bonus scheme, which appeared in the "Herald" on July 7, 1915; whether the statement made in the "Herald" on August 18, 1915 (on the same subject), was made at the request of the Minister, and also whether the statements referred to were ever questioned by the Minister or the department. The statements in question have been reprinted several times in these columns lately, and are familiar to our readers.

To each question the reply was "No." That is, Mr. Grahame says that the statements were not made at his request or authorised by him, and also that they were never questioned by him or his department. In reply, we can only repeat that these statements were made personally by Mr. Grahame to a representative of the "Herald," and published at his request.

The statements were made in July and August last year. Their correctness was never questioned until last May (ten months later), when we learnt that the Department of Agriculture was avoiding the obligation incurred by the Minister's statement, and directed attention to the fact. A statement was then made by the department that there had been a misunderstanding. No statement was made by the Minister. Now, over twelve months from the time of making the first statement, he denies them. In the meantime the farmers have incurred extra expense, relying on having fallow land counted in.

Mr. Grahame admits that neither he nor the department ever questioned the statements. Yet they must have been aware of them. Forms were sent in to the department by farmers which showed the number of acres under fallow, and the department in cases marked the fallow entry in red ink. It must have been aware of the position, or it is certain prompt intimation would have been made that fallow land was not reckoned in under the scheme. Further, at the recent farmers' conference Mr. Killen stated that he had been informed by the Government that fallow land would be included. Mr. Tweedy, in a letter in these columns, stated:—"One grower known to me holds correspondence showing that the Department of Agriculture, upon receiving his statement on the printed form, withheld registration until they ascertained from him his area fallowed, and then added that acreage themselves to his statement." This all shows that the department was aware that fallow land was entering into the question.

Is it conceivable that had such an important announcement been incorrect it would not have been at once corrected by the Minister or the department?

FEMALE STOCK.

There certainly should be no need of any law to prevent the killing of female dairy stock that are suitable for breeding. In the dairy industry it seems certain that high prices will rule for good cows for a long time to come, and also that good prices will be obtained for dairy produce, that is, if the demands of the market are not restricted by artificial methods of price-fixing, and so on. Both in Victoria and New South Wales since the drought broke dairy farmers, keen to build up their herds again, have paid good prices for stock. They act on the assumption that it will not be long before normal conditions rule again, and they will be able to sell their butter at its full value in the open market. When the enormous loss in dairy stock that must have taken place in Europe is remembered it is reasonable to assume that high prices for dairy produce can be expected for some years to come. The war is destroying thousands of first-class dairy cattle abroad and the depletion of drought in Australia is comparatively a small thing. Holland alone has sold thousands of cows to Germany for meat, just as dairymen in this country have sold good cows to the butcher, attracted by the high prices. If we are facing a period of high market values it is obviously foolish for dairy farmers to part with cows suitable for breeding. Let them by all means fatten and get rid of unprofitable cows—animals that do not give enough milk to pay for their keep—but it is a short-sighted policy to part with their good cows, however tempting the price obtainable. They should be kept to build up the herds in order to participate in the good markets of the future. At the same time it must be remembered that participation in those prices will require the marketing of a first-class article. It is certain that the strong hold margarine has secured during the war on the British market will be felt by the butter producers later on. It is indisputable that the shortage and high price of the commodity in England have forced thousands to become consumers of margarine. We need not delude ourselves with the belief that they will naturally return to their old allegiance later on. A proportion will, but it will only be as consumers of first-class butter. They will prefer first-class margarine to second-class or inferior butter. If, however, we determine to do all possible to market abroad nothing but the best we should be confident of receiving very profitable returns. To make those returns as large as possible we should husband our resources, and that means keeping and using all good breeding cows.

THE MILK STANDARD.

The law provides that milk shall be the normal, clean, and sweet secretion obtained from the udder of the healthy cow properly fed and kept, excluding that got during the seven days immediately following on parturition. It shall contain not less than eight and five-tenths part per centum of milk solids not fat, and three and two-tenths parts per centum of milk fat. This standard is thought to be too high, especially with respect to the milk yield during certain months of the year. At a recent farmers' convention in Victoria, it was stated by delegates that not more than 10 per cent. of the dairy herds in many districts average the statutory minimum of butter fat in their milk. Dairymen were, therefore, compelled to cull their low-testing cows, or else fortify their milk by adding to it sufficient cream to enrich the butter fat content of the balance. One well-known breeder of dairy cattle and milk distributer, who keeps a large herd of pure-bred Jerseys, whose milk registers a butter fat content appreciably higher than the statutory minimum, informed the conference that, in order to supplement his supplies, he had to purchase large quantities of milk from the country. A good deal of the milk he received in this way, especially during the spring months, was below the standard, and he found it necessary to mix with it the richer milk of his hand-fed Jerseys in order to obtain an average sample that would comply with the legal standard.

THE MERINO SHEEP.

Mr. G. R. Suttor, Dalkeith, Picton, supplies the following interesting note regarding the origin of the Australian merino:—It is much to be regretted, as Australian wool is so well known and sought after from all parts of the world, and the sheep in such demand, that a record of those sent here in the early days was not kept. Macarthur, who had the Camden Park flock, gets all credit, and no doubt he was a man of brains, but other merino sheep were here at that time, of which little is known. Rev. Samuel Marsden had them, and from his sheep, I have always understood, the famous Gamboola (Molong) stud came. No doubt most of the good flocks sprang from the Camden Park flock. My father told me his did. The earliest recollection I have of rams were what where known as the Sturgeon rams. Where they came from I do not remember. They were big sheep, with fine wool. At the first sale of sheep by Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., in their Pyrmont wool store, rams, said to be bred direct on both sides from the original Camden Park sheep, were offered. They were large-framed, but I think the wool would have been short, and the fleece light when shorn, but the quality and character were as they should be. They had been late shorn, and were low in condition. I do not remember who owned them.

About 1851 or 1853 a consignment of German rams arrived, and when sold, eight were secured for Brucedale, four long and four rather short wool ones. One class was known as the Silesians. Young rams from Brucedale-bred ewes by those rams were sold to two well-known sheepbreeders from Mudgee, and from them came the Silesian type in the Mudgee sheep of after years. On January 14, 1857, 300 more rams were sold to well-known Murrumbidgee breeders, who had good sheep. About 1856 or 1857 came a consignment from the Hampton Court flocks of pure Spanish blood. They were very good, judging from two rams that came to Brucedale, and were used as studs, one of the combing and the other the clothing wool class. Both were big and robust, well-covered sheep. Rams by them were in much demand.

In 1862 or 1863 came the Rambouillet and Negretti lots, of which too much cannot be said. The former were from the celebrated flocks of the last French Emperor, and the latter, I think, from the Stigar flock, Germany. During the 'Sixties a great demand set in for sheep from the Mudgee district, those of the Silesian type being favoured, and this continued for some years, thousands being distributed all over Australia, Riverina and Queensland taking the greater number. In 1870 Tasmanian sheep began to be sent over in numbers. One was purchased for Brucedale, and with him began, I think, the big prices for Tasmanian rams, the cost being three figures. The Tasmanian sheep are so well known that I make no other comment. I do not call them imported sheep. Since 1870, no doubt, good merinos have been imported, but I have not seen them. They were not of the Emperor's flock, as that was all used for food during the Siege of Paris in 1871. Of the Negretti class, none were up to the standard of the lot I call the '62 or '63 lots.

PRIMARY PRODUCERS' UNION.

The Primary Producers' Union has now formed branches on the Manning River, thus completing the chain of union south from the Tweed River. The organisation is not yet complete, and the objectives of the union are still in a nebulous state. So far generalities only have been indulged in, and it is difficult to see how some matters of grievance can be righted without embarking on the already broken sea of party politics. Some farmers whose interest has been attracted to the new organisation have asked the question: "If you are going to free the farmers from injustice in one way or another, why don't you ask us to join the Farmers and Settlers' Association?—a body which has already proved its power when farmers' interests are threatened." The answer generally given to such questions by the organising delegates is that the Farmers and Settlers' Association has been open to them for years, and only a small minority of farmers on the coast ever joined it. Further, they argue that the interests of coastal farmers are quite distinct from wheat-growers and graziers, who comprise the bulk of the membership of the old association; and the marketing and conditions governing their industry generally are altogether on a different footing. The success of the initial organisation tends to show that farmers are eager to listen to the appeal on behalf of the union, and evidently the leaders of the movement could not have chosen a more favourable time at which to make an appeal.

PASTEURISATION.

At the recent Co-operative Butter Factory Managers' Conference, in a competition for a paper on the practical neutralisation and pasteurisation of cream, Mr. G. Searl, of Dungog, was awarded first place. In the course of his paper he said:—"A certain amount of knowledge had been acquired by experiments, but these had not covered sufficiently diversified conditions to be scientifically accurate, and we did not 'wat' all there was to learn. No matter what the scientific action was, neutralisation and pasteurisation improved the butter right out of knowledge, and those who had not installed a plant should do so right away, even if they had to pawn something to do it. He had come to the conclusion that pasteurising would not make good butter out of bad cream. A cream which had a high acidity, but with no dirty flavour, or a thin sweet cream, which under ordinary conditions would be styled dangerous, or a clover, lucerne, or herbage taint (bar carrot weed), and otherwise clean, would make a high-class butter when pasteurised and a starter used. Again, the improvement in the butter was not so much marked in its fresh state as at four to six days old. The pasteurised butter showed up a full flavour about the time the ordinary butter was going off. His short experience told him that our keeping quality in future was assured."

SOUTH COAST SHOWS.

On the South Coast the question of discontinuing the district shows on account of the war is being revived. The general opinion is that it is undesirable to abandon the exhibitions, as from a competitive and educational standpoint they are an inestimable boon to the farmers, enabling them to keep up a high standard in cattle and farm produce. Last year several old-established societies abandoned their shows, while others were held as usual, all profits being devoted to the patriotic funds. As a result these societies had most successful returns, the attendance in a number of instances constituting records.

The Kiama show is one of the most important on the coast, this centre usually having the finest cattle display throughout the district. This year the military are at present in occupation of the show ground, and although the commandant is agreeable to the society using the grounds to hold the show as usual, the president favours a straight-out abandonment, as the needs of the war, in his opinion, were the first consideration. Another proposition was that the show be abandoned, and the date fixed, including Anniversary Day, for 1918, to prevent other coastal societies securing the date so long held by Kiama. It has, however, been decided that the consideration of the schedule be deferred until October 3, and if the war was still in progress at that date, the show be abandoned. Berry society expressed a desire, under the circumstances, to amalgamate with Kiama, but this was not entertained, on the ground that, if such co-operation took place, Kiama would alienate the goodwill of others. Wollongong was desirous of holding its show on the Kiama dates, if abandonment was decided upon. Against this a majority of the committee favoured holding some sports or function to secure the dates of the show, not necessarily on the show ground. Although a feeling existed that the show should be abandoned, it was considered very unfair that steps had to be taken to keep others from trying to jump the claim for dates. It was felt that if there was a true feeling of patriotism Kiama's dates should be allowed to remain, irrespective of whether sports were held or not.

YANCO AREAS.

Mr. J. P. Taylor, farm 67, Leeton, writes pointing out that in his letter which appeared in these columns yesterday he stated that the Yanco Experiment Farm's orchard had been subsoiled 24 inches. This he finds was an error, as the subsoiling was a depth of 20 inches, and not 24 inches.

THE SHEARING.

The secretary of the Pastoralists' Union of New South Wales (Mr. J. W. Allen) reports that the following additional sheds have commenced shearing at award rates:—Guiseley (Walgett), Burrabogie (Gunbar), Merri Merrigal (Hay), Tupra (Balranald), Amphitheatre (Cobar), Eenaweena (Canonbar), Borah (Moree). This makes a total of 74 stations that have commenced shearing upon award terms, and no further sheds are known to have made concessions.

THE DAIRY ACT.

TAMWORTH.—Speaking at the half-yearly meeting of the Tamworth Co-operative Dairy Company, Limited, reference was made to the new Dairy Act. The chairman, Mr. Alex. Matterson, said the profit was not what it had been in previous years. Under the new Dairy Act the company had to show and keep an account of the amount of overrun in each quantity of cream sent to the factory. Seeing that the whole thing was run in the interests of the suppliers, a suggestion had been made that it would be a good thing for the suppliers to take into consideration the question of buying out all the dry shareholders and running the factory practically by themselves. Mr. J. G. Grayston said he thought the principal object of the Government when they drafted the Dairy Act was not only to increase the quality of the butter, but to force all proprietary dairy companies in time to become compulsorily co-operative. Referring to the fixing of the price of butter by the Necessary Commodities Commission, he said it would have been better if the commission had left the industry alone. A butter famine had been created, and a lot of people keep out of the industry.

TAMWORTH DAIRYING.

TAMWORTH.—The half-yearly meeting of the Tamworth Co-operative Dairy Company, Limited, was held on Tuesday. The report stated that the turnover had been better than during the corresponding period of 1915. A pasteurising plant had just been added to the equipment of the factory. Notwithstanding substantial advances in the cost of manufacture in various directions, the price per pound to suppliers had not increased. The turnover for the half-year reached £14,772 19s 4d, and provided for the usual dividend to shareholders at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, absorbing £119 18s 5d, depreciation £178 18s, and bonus for overrun to suppliers £162 6s 8d. The reserve fund now totalled £1534 13s.

VICTORIAN WHEAT AREA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The area sown with wheat in Victoria is estimated by the Government Statistician at £3,338,000 acres, against 4,013,420 acres last year, and 2,863,535 acres in 1914.

SHEEPBREEDERS' SHOW.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The annual show of the Australian Sheepbreeders' Association opened at Goldsbrough Mort, and Co.'s wool warehouse yesterday. The New South Wales prize-winners were:—

Champion prizes.—Ram and ewe: J. F. Guthrie.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

COONAMBLE.—It is many years since the district had such promises of an abundant season as now. The rainfall for June and July was the highest recorded for the past 27 years, and the Castlereagh River, which for over two years has been a dry sandy gully, has been running freely for the past fortnight, whilst the creeks throughout the district are running bankers. The whole countryside, three months ago a parched, barren waste of country, bare of herbage of any kind, is now covered with luxuriant growth of grass. Thousands of sheep were sent away from the district up to as late as April last, and these flocks are now returning to their own stations, where grass is abundant. There are not enough stock to eat down the herbage. Rabbits are being got under by the aid of trappers and the poison cart. The inspector's report for last month showed that there was a noticeable decrease of the pest on all holdings throughout the district.

GERMAN VESSELS IN JAVA.

TRAMP ELUDES CAPTURE.

Mr. E. H. Palmer, of the Immigration and Tourist Bureau, who has returned from a trip to Java, stated that the masters and crews of the many German vessels sheltering in the sanctuary of Java ports were having rather a monotonous time, the captain of one of these ships having shot himself while the Mataram was in Batavia. The master of the steamer Weimar, which had been lying at Banjoe Wangi since the outbreak of hostilities, spent most of his time tiger-hunting in the adjacent island of Bali. Intense excitement had lately prevailed at Batavia owing to the 7000 tons tramp Maria having eluded capture and safely made that port. This vessel was coaling the Konigsberg many months ago when that warship was discovered in an East African bay and effectively shelled by the British. The Maria was a sorry spectacle as she lay in the Batavia roadstead, empty and unbalanced, with a huge list, four or five large patches amidships, and her funnel shot away. One shell had passed clean through the engine-room, a foot or two above the heads of the engineers.

Mr. Palmer had several conferences with the representatives of the Java Tourist Bureau, and arrangements were made for certain reciprocity between Java and this State.

OVER £300 LOST.

Mr. John A. Glew, of 53 Addison-road, Manly, has reported to the police that, between 2 p.m. on July 28 and 7.30 a.m. July 29, he either lost or had stolen a black leather pocket book, containing £312 in bank notes, consisting of one £100 note, four £50 notes, one £10 note, and two £1 notes.

WILD LIFE.

NEED FOR SANCTUARIES.

The annual meeting of the Naturalists' Society of New South Wales was held yesterday evening in the Department of Education building. The Consul-General for France, M. Chayet, was among those present.

The president, Mr. W. W. Froggatt, in the course of an address, gave a brief review of the Game and Wild Birds Protection Acts that have been passed at different times in the Australian States. He pointed out that the laws and regulations in most of them were sufficient to protect our native fauna, but to a great extent they were a dead letter, as it was no one's particular business to see that they were properly administered. The fauna, of which the birds formed an important part, should, he said, be properly protected under three headings. First, useful birds, from their value as destroyers of insect and other pests; second, all harmless birds, on account of their beauty; third, game birds and animals, on account of their commercial value for skins, furs, or food. A bill had been drafted by the committee of the Wild Life Preservation Society, in which only the noxious birds were listed, all others not so named being protected. The question of the sanctuaries for the absolute protection of all wild game, where no one should be allowed to shoot at any time of the year, was advocated. These, he said, should be places where birds and animals could breed up, and the surplus of wild ducks and geese would soon form an important commercial food supply. The passing of a Gun Act, a tax on all shot guns or sporting rifles used simply for pleasure or profit, and an export duty upon all wild animals, skins, and furs, would, in the first instance, produce enough revenue to protect the sanctuaries. We had, said Mr. Froggatt, a long list of so-called sanctuaries in our Bird Protection Act, but the only real sanctuary where birds and animals were under any actual protection were our two National Parks close to Sydney, and a few reserves round the caves.

In regard to nature reserves we were, he said, very much behind other countries in the civilised world. There were no nature reserves on our wonderful Blue Mountains or coastal areas. The head waters of all our northern rivers should be nature reserves. What was happening to all the wonderful semi-tropical forests of our North Coast?

SOLDIERS' CLUB.

Mr. Frank Downes, the blind soldier, is arranging a reunion of Anzacs who returned on August 11, 1915, at the Soldiers' Club, on Friday week. All who returned on that date are invited to send their names to Mr. W. R. Ireland, secretary Soldiers' Club, 426 George-street.

STATE LIBERALS.

A meeting of the Singleton Electorate Liberal conference took place on Saturday. Mr. Archdale Parkhill, general secretary of the Liberal Association, presided. The nominations of the following candidates were endorsed for selection:—J. Fallick, M.L.A., S. M. Hungerford, I. W. Onslow-Thompson, W. G. Roberts, J. W. B. Waterhouse. It was decided to forward the ballot papers to the 900 members enrolled by post, making them returnable on or before the 29th inst.

WATER CONSERVATION.

It was stated yesterday by the Premier that he has issued instructions to the Water Conservation and Irrigation Commission with respect to two water conservation proposals. One of the schemes is the storage of water at Taiyawalka—part of the Darling River irrigation proposal. Mr. Holman has authorised the commission to carry out surveys and investigations with a view to putting the work in hand. The second scheme is for a weir across the Macquarie River, about 4½ miles below the town of Warren.

GILROY.—In ever-loving memory of our dear son and brother, Hughie, who departed this life August 2, 1914, aged 21 years.

The rolling stream of life flows on,
And still the vacant chair
Recalls the face, the voice, the smile
Of Hughie, who once sat there.

Inserted by his sorrowing father, mother, brothers, Frank, Pat, sister Adeline.

GODFREY.—In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, Charlie Godfrey, who passed away August 2, 1908. Inserted by his loving brother, Frank, and family.

GRAVES.—In loving memory of my dear brother, Archie Graves, who departed this life August 2, 1914, aged 23 years.

No sympathy is needed now;
Your cares are all at rest.
But happy they who now can say
They loved and served you best.

Inserted by his loving brother and sister-in-law, Dick and Sylvia Graves.

GRAVES.—In loving memory of our dear brother and son, Archie Graves, who departed this life August 2, 1914.

Dear brother, you have left us now,
We can see your face no more;
You have left this world of sorrow
For that bright and shining shore.
You have gone, but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Around the spot where you are laid.

Inserted by his loving mother, brother, and sister.

GREENOW.—In loving memory of my dear sister, Julia, who departed this life August 2, 1915. R.I.P. Inserted by her loving brother and sister-in-law, Thomas and Ruby Greenow, and son, Alfred.

LIPMAN.—In loving memory of our darling little daughter, Lillian Dulcie, who departed this life August 2, 1915, aged 11 months 19 days.

Silently a mother's weeping,
Sadly droops a father's head—
Death has claimed our little darling,
Baby's numbered with the dead.
Though cast down in tears and sorrow,
Though we've lost the one we love,
Softly comes the angels' whisper,
"Baby's safe in Heaven above."

Inserted by her loving mother and father, Maggie and Ray Lipman.

LOUIS.—In ever-loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Susan Louis, who passed away August 1, 1913. At rest. Inserted by her sons, daughter, and granddaughter, Glen Louis, Kitchener-road, Artarmon.

MR. HUGHES AT PERTH.

The speech delivered by Mr. Hughes at Perth on Monday night was a conspicuous instance of the power of a crisis to arouse the ideals and emotions of statesmanship. It was a summons to a united national effort so phrased and conceived as to appeal to the best instincts of every individual. Mr. Hughes could not have had a worthier occasion on which to address his fellow-countrymen than the end of such a journey as his, and his readers will agree that he could hardly have used it to better effect. His thesis might have been very shortly stated. No country has more to lose by a German victory than Australia; no country, therefore, should claim a greater share in the effort which will ensure the German defeat. That defeat, though it is already placed beyond doubt, cannot be secured without terrible suffering and loss of life. It is, therefore, the duty of the Australian people to keep themselves in the vanguard, no matter what additional exertions they will be called upon to make. The preparation and despatch of new troops must be the first duty of Australian people, a duty which they must realise with the more force because their contribution of munitions is of little importance. But their second duty is to organise their resources so as to carry on the life of the country during the war and to continue it into the competition of peace. Mr. Hughes in his invective against all German trade and influence, appealed to an instinct which has been deeply moved by the revelations of German brutality during the war and by the crowning infamies of the past week. In his efforts to bring the actual criminals to punishment he will have the co-operation of the statesmen of the allied countries and the sympathy of every man and woman endowed with the ordinary feelings of humanity. Mr. Hughes's declarations on German influence and German trade followed naturally from his conduct in Australia and his speeches in Great Britain. What gives this speech its distinctive value is the breadth of outlook which it discloses in the speaker—the new knowledge and determination to look beyond any party traditions to the people of Australia. Mr. Hughes's sense of the value of the heritage of the Australian people has been deepened by a journey through all the self-governing dominions, and by a visit to Great Britain at the moment of its supreme effort. His pride in his citizenship of the Empire is increased by his experience of the manner in which Great Britain is facing the war, and of the help she is receiving from the contingents from oversea. A man who has seen these forces at work cannot but realise the contrast between our system of government and of life and the system which a German victory would impose upon us. Facts which he had taken for granted cannot but come home to him when he sees the trials which other nations have been prepared to endure in order to keep their freedom. He cannot but see that every people which claims to be free and to have its own ideals must be prepared to make the utmost sacrifices. He must see that all the sacrifices of a nation will be wasted unless its people can act together, forgetting prejudices and divisions in their common need.

Mr. Hughes will readily admit that the test of his eloquence will be made by its translation into acts. His readers will agree that a speech framed on such a level as this is the best preparation of public opinion for the kind of acts which his policy demands. Mr. Hughes has given his opinion, based on knowledge inaccessible to the general public, that the Germans are still in a position from which they cannot be dislodged except at great cost. He does well to assume that the appeal which must follow from this belief will be met, not by prejudice or self-interest or class bitterness, but by a united nation conscious of its own destiny. But when this assumption is made he must know that the nation which is to fulfil its destiny is in need of leadership. The Prime Minister must continue to preserve this national outlook and to inculcate it on his colleagues in the Ministry and in Parliament. The spirit of forgetting ancient feuds which he has observed in Canada, South Africa, and Great Britain must be carried into the political and industrial life of this country if it is to gain the true compensation for the losses of the war. Mr. Hughes will find that when he speaks with the authority of his special knowledge he will have no difficulty in obtaining the recruits be needs, and that if he asks Parliament to bring compulsory service into force the opposition will be negligible. The country will see that it lives up to the reputation of its soldiers and to its own sense of the value of its inheritance and the distinction of its ideals. If this is to be done, and if Mr. Hughes's picture of the present state of the war is a reflection of his knowledge, he is bound to introduce compulsory service in some form, so that our supply of reinforcements shall not come to an end. But when such a bill has been passed into law the hardest of the tasks before the Prime Minister will not have been begun. In Australia, as in Great Britain, it is easier to persuade men to risk their lives than to give up some industrial privilege or article of faith. If we are to have a new organisation, and if we are to have a population capable of holding this continent, we must first have a new sense of common dangers and common interests. Mr. Hughes must persuade the people who follow him that unless they take the opportunity which will come at the end of the war the sacrifice of their sons and brothers will have been in vain. We believe there is no better way of persuading them than by keeping to the high level of this speech. As Mr. Hughes knows, the "hundred and one miasmatic vapours of Great Britain" may all be reproduced here. The surest way to counteract their influence is to keep above them. To do so needs, no doubt, an amount of detachment which has not usually been granted to a Prime Minister, and which was certainly not availed of by Mr. Hughes before or during his absence. In the future he will need to concentrate on the task of leadership if the policy outlined in this speech is to be translated into the form of an Act or Acts of Parliament. He has a great handicap to overtake in helping to eliminate class bitterness and suspicion before he can make his organisation effective, or can begin to attract the population of which everyone acknowledges the need.

RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

If the Government has really made up its mind about the question of appointing Railway Commissioners the sooner the public is given the selection the better. In the Legislative Assembly last night members asked questions which showed how anxious the country constituencies are about the coming season and another great wheat harvest; and the best the Minister could give in reply was that half of the wheat stacked from the past harvest would be out of the Commonwealth by the end of October. It was evident that those most concerned in the prospects were confident of the season, with recent and present fine rains; and as members seemed certain of a second bumper harvest their natural anxiety arose with ways of getting to market. This involves the railways first and ocean transport next. But until our railways are working under settled management we cannot expect them to give the best account of themselves. It is true that so far wheat has been carried since the last harvest up to date in volume exceeding anything from previous harvests, and this has been done under an extraordinary handicap in all-round pressure. Drought has laid a specially heavy burden upon the western country, and the railways have been under constant strain removing stock. Moreover, the war has meant fresh tolls upon staff and rolling stock just when everything demanded less, not more, strain. As if to place a crown upon it all the Government has backed and filled in the making of final appointments to the commissionerships so that in the supreme crisis of our history the State's principal business enterprise has been like a steamer in a storm with its machinery out of order. The staff has felt the lack of finality from the top to the bottom, and now more than ever the demand is for a settlement. The Minister for Railways sees where the mischief lies and has given his personal vote for Mr. Fraser as Chief Commissioner. But Mr. Hoyle has not yet done with those who control the Labour party. His nomination for his own seat in Parliament has not been endorsed by the executive of the P.L.L. pending inquiry; and according to our contributor "Demos," who writes with knowledge, Labour's new masters have decided that Mr. Milne's appointment as Commissioner is not likely to be settled without some friction. All these things tend to make confusion worse confounded. They react disastrously upon the efficiency of the staff. So that a very heavy responsibility is thrown upon the Government. It must act without delay, and it must make satisfactory appointments. This is not a question of politics, but of common sense and sound business. Even as a political and electioneering matter, one would think that Ministers would see to it that the country was given due assurance in such a vital thing as railway management. On every ground the Government, for the country's and its own sake, should make the Railway Commissioners secure in office and so get matters in good train early for the exacting requirements of the coming season.

MR. GRIFFITH'S POSITION.

No good purpose is to be served by motions of censure upon the Government at the present moment. The public knows that Ministers have a solid party behind them, and that the speeches made for and against are so much electioneering; and it judges accordingly. "Waste of time" is the verdict upon the whole farce. But Mr. Wade last night pleaded that the Government had taken as a full motion of censure what he desired to discuss within his rights as a private member. There had been no opportunity until yesterday to deal with the report of the petrol commission; and the leader of the Opposition thereupon proceeded to place on record his protest against the reinstatement of Mr. Griffith as a Minister of the Crown. This protest was based upon the commissioner's findings, in which it was definitely stated that there was no evidence against the Minister, but in which suspicion was expressed over certain matters that had not been cleared up. Mr. Wade made this point quite clearly. He quoted Mr. Justice Pring's words and accepted the finding that there was no evidence of the Minister's alleged guilt. But there were circumstances of suspicion. It was, and still is, a case of suspicion, and of suspicion only. Such was the position taken; and from it Mr. Wade insisted that Mr. Griffith should not have been reinstated as a Minister of the Crown. The character of the commissioner and his status as a Judge were deservedly eulogised. Mr. Justice Pring is the oldest puisne Judge on the Supreme Court Bench; and he was aided in getting at the facts by four King's Counsel. It was a thoroughly capable tribunal, and was ably assisted to carry out the work entrusted to it. This, then, was the means by which the evidence was sifted; and after exhaustive inquiry the commissioner found it incumbent upon him to give against the Minister what was tantamount to a verdict of "Not Proven."

Mr. Griffith himself insisted that it was such a verdict and protested. He said that British justice had no place for these Scots verdicts, and he was either guilty or not guilty. But Mr. Wade insisted just as vigorously that Scots verdicts are part of British justice, and that over and over again our juries while giving their decision in favour of a prisoner have expressed doubt—admitting that there was room for suspicion. It, therefore, came back to the question as far as Mr. Griffith was concerned whether he had cleared himself, and if not, whether the Government should treat with contempt the unwritten rule in British Parliamentary tradition that a Minister must be above suspicion. Had Morgan's trial and acquittal opened the way? Mr. Wade showed that the ground covered in that case was very narrow as compared with the commissioner's area of inquiry, and that it could not be held to modify Mr. Justice Pring's finding. Moreover, the point was offered that Mr. Reed had been made a victim; and it was urged that if Mr. Griffith was to be considered absolved by the Government, so should Mr. Reed. The dilemma so stated was challenged by Mr. Holman in the announcement that the commissioner had actually found in favour of the Minister, and that therefore his colleagues could do no other than reinstate him. It was a bold breaking of the dilemma; but unfortunately Mr. Griffith had made the position difficult by denouncing what he himself had called a Scots verdict. Moreover, the commissioner when asked by the Government if it would be worth while to reopen the inquiry had replied in the negative. He was apparently satisfied that nothing further could be done to modify his findings; and Mr. Griffith therefore is in the position of a man under a cloud whose friends declare that the sky is clear in all directions. Quite evidently this is a matter to be left with the public; and Mr. Wade's position is otherwise perfectly sound. A Minister of the Crown should be above suspicion.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

The Governor-General and Lady Helen Munro Ferguson will give a reception at Government House to the Prime Minister and Mrs. Hughes on August 29.

His Excellency the Governor received the Address in Reply from the members of the Legislative Assembly at Government House yesterday afternoon.

Mr. T. J. Ryan, Premier of Queensland, who has been on a visit to the United Kingdom, is returning to Sydney by the Sonoma due on Tuesday week.

Brigadier-General Pethebridge, who has been acting as Administrator of the occupied German possessions in the Pacific, and who arrived from Rabaul a few days ago, left by the express last evening for Melbourne.

Senators Blakey and Stewart, and Messrs. Atkinson, Fowler, and Thompson, Ms.P., members of the Federal Public Accounts Committee, are at present in Sydney.

Senator Story and Messrs. Laird Smith and S. Sampson, Ms.P., who are visiting the Northern Territory as members of the Federal Public Works Committee, are expected back in Sydney at the end of the month.

Mr. R. B. Rees, M.L.C., of Victoria, who intends to offer his services as an assistant in one of the military hospitals in France, will leave to-morrow for Vancouver. While passing through Canada he will investigate the systems of the bulk handling of wheat.

The Rev. Dr. Waddell, of St. Andrew's Church, Dunedin, who has been on a holiday visit to Australia, will leave on his return to New Zealand by the Moeraki to-morrow.

Mr. Broome Smith, who has been engaged on deputation work for the Church Missionary Association of New South Wales for some time, leaves for New Zealand to-morrow.

Mr. S. Hutchinson, president of the Victorian Storekeepers' and Traders' Association, will be a passenger by the Niagara to-morrow on a business trip to the United States and England.

Dr. Robertson, of Bathurst, and Mr. G. Fulton, manager of Lever's Pacific Plantations Company, will leave on a visit to Fiji by the Niagara to-morrow.

Father Reginald Lummer, a Passionist Father, who has been conducting missions in Australia for some time, will leave by the Ventura to-day for San Francisco on his way to St. Vincent's Retreat, at West Hoboken, in New Jersey.

Mr. L. M. Price, principal of the Waverley Superior Public School, who is retiring after 43 years' service in the Department of Education, was the recipient last week of a number of gifts from the pupils and staff.

Lieutenant R. Morgan Shaw, who left Sydney as a gunner in the artillery reinforcements in April of last year, received his promotion to commissioned rank in France. His brother, Sergeant W. W. Shaw, also of the Field Artillery, has, after having been invalided home on account of wounds, recovered, and rejoined his unit in France; while another brother, Sergeant V. C. Shaw, will shortly leave for the front. These three soldiers are sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Shaw, of Randwick.

FACING THE COUNTRY.

THE GOVERNMENT AND ITS MASTERS.

There is no mere political caprice about the change of Government which the electors of New South Wales are to be asked to make at the approaching general elections. On the contrary, it may well be doubted if the general electorate of the State were ever asked with greater reason to repudiate an administration.

Labour, after six years of office—during the latter three of which it has held an effective working majority—stands discredited. And it is worth emphasising that this discredit is not so much due to the exposure of malpractices by its avowed political enemy, the Opposition, as by the denunciation of its impotence and its unworthiness by its friend and master—the P.L.L.

After all that has taken place in the contest for supremacy between the Government and the P.L.L., it is idle now for representative spokesmen of the one or the other to declare that they are a united party, and that they face the approaching arbitrament of the people confident of yet another victory. The simple fact is that they are neither united nor confident. Only this week we read, amongst a list of Labour selections: "Cootamundra—Mr. W. A. Holman, M.L.A., subject to everything being in order." The Premier himself! And not only Premier. For many years Mr. Holman has been the organising genius and the chief electioneering spokesman of the State Labour party. "Subject to everything being in order" does not mean subject to a confirmation of his Labour League qualifications. They are well known, and undoubted. It means simply that the P.L.L. will not—not yet—bind itself to accept Mr. Holman's nomination. There are certain things to be done first, and in all probability certain undertakings to be given. This mysteriously significant reservation does not appear, for instance, in connection with the candidature of certain well-known anti-conscriptionists. But, of course, Mr. Holman's candidature will be endorsed. The reference is only pointed as evidence of the soundness of the premises upon which the argument is based.

That is a brief summary of the conditions under which the Holman Government goes to the country at the latter end of this year. Have Ministers any real right to ask to be sent back to the control of affairs of this State? A variety of answers will be found to the question. A claim to renewed support will be made by Ministers on the score of work accomplished. It will fall upon comparatively deaf ears, for the reason that one section of the general electorate is in revolt against the Government because of what it has done—its sins of commission—and another section has denounced the Government in the roundest possible terms for what it has failed to do—its sins of omission. So that to whichever side the deciding element of the electorate—the unattached voters—leans, the Holman Government would appear to be in an almost equally bad fix.

But it is with a much more astute claim for renewed support that it is proposed to deal here. The general election will ring with the cry: What is the alternative? Why swop horses in mid-stream? voters will be asked, and it is as well to anticipate that position.

A change of Government in New South Wales at this juncture will mean a good deal that this State is badly in need of. Take the working man first, as he will probably be the centre of the wooing of both sides at the election. What has the working man—that great army of average wage-earners—got from six years of Labour government? As a general rule he is earning more money now than he did in 1910, but at what cost? No one will attempt to argue that high wages of themselves necessarily mean increased comfort, greater spending power, or advancement in the social scale. The actual position, indeed, is very different. Statistics are always dry argument, and in the heat of an electioneering campaign they are mainly unconvincing. But there is only one way to prove this particular argument, and that is by statistics. And, of course, statistics only strike a general average, and only apply to the average man or woman, and the average family. A sudden wave of thriftiness, for instance; a spontaneous response to a national appeal for economy; anything like a general adoption of a policy of "do without," will quickly upset all statistical calculations. That, by the way, in anticipation of the obvious retort about the growth of savings bank deposits.

Statistics, when referred to, show us that the general cost of living has risen in New South Wales since 1910 by nearly 50 per cent. If this means anything at all, it means that the average wage-earner who drew £3 per week in 1910 requires £4 10s per week now to realise the same comfort, the same spending power, and the same social status. How many get it?

So the prospect doesn't look very bright for the average working man if he returns the same Government to power. It will be argued that the Government hasn't anything to do with the rise in the cost of living. That, then, is the misfortune of the Government. The average working man might well be asked to try the experiment, for three years at any rate, to test whether a change of Government can effect a change in this regard. The simple truth is that the present system of raising wages is economically unsound. It is a perfectly legitimate commercial process to "pass on" the increases, and it is also a sound commercial axiom to get a profit on all outgoings. The Government sees this position very clearly, but it is obsessed with the idea that all the working man wants is more money, and he will be satisfied he is getting on.

If the point of view of the employer of labour is looked at next, there will be no need to speculate upon whether or not he desires a change of Government. This is not so much because the employer is unable to make profits. In a country like Australia, with ever increasing avenues of industry opening up, and an ever-increasing demand for the product of industry, legitimate profits are the inevitable result of wise, business-like administration. But it is a serious mistake to conclude that profits are the be-all and end-all of commercial life. Few men are content to remain long in the conduct of a business amid conditions of a harassing or uncongenial character. And that is exactly the effect of the Holman Administration upon the commercial community of this State. Governmental interference with this and that industry—always at the cost of the general taxpayer—has engendered a decided feeling of uneasiness. Those who control the industries of the State are living practically in a condition of ferment, not knowing from one day to another what to expect. Any day the caprice of a Minister may decide to step in and commandeer the business of any particular industry. One needs to quote only the fantastic notion conceived some time ago by the Attorney-General in regard to the baking industry of the metropolis to prove that case. And there, strangely enough, the project was only dropped because the operatives in the industry refused to abandon the privilege of one shift a day which they had succeeded in winning from private employers after some years of agitation.

Thus the two sections of industry—employer and employed—would appear to have little to hope for from a renewal of support to the present Government, and much to fear from any extension of the ill-considered and expensive socialistic schemes of those who have definitely asserted their authority over the present Government, or for that matter over any Government drawn from the same ranks.

FEDERAL ROLLS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The practising of economy in the Electoral Department has made available funds for the establishment of a more effective system of roll compilation. The basis of the new scheme provides for the employment of letter-carriers. A new proposal will be the payment of officials of the Postal Department who co-operate with the Electoral Department in the work of perfecting the rolls.

WAR CASUALTIES.

CAPTAIN WARK.

Mrs. Wark, of North Sydney, has received a private cablegram to the effect that her youngest son, Captain Blair Wark, has been wounded in France, and is now in hospital, London. He was by profession an architect and quantity surveyor. Another son, Sergeant Keith Wark, is also fighting in France.

LIEUT. A. CONSETT STEPHEN.

Mr. A. Consett Stephen has received a cable from the War Office, informing him that his son, Second-lieutenant Adrian Consett Stephen, of the Royal Field Artillery, has been wounded in France. He is attached to a field howitzer battery.

LIEUT. ALAN MITCHELL.

Sergeant Mitchell, police prosecutor at the Central Police Court, received word yesterday morning that his eldest son, Lieutenant Alan Mitchell, had been killed in action in France.

Lieutenant Mitchell was educated at Newtown Superior Public school, and obtained many certificates at the Technical College for building construction and drawing. He recently completed his apprenticeship with Messrs. Stuart Bros., builders. He enlisted in January, 1915, passed for a commission in the A.I.F. School of Instruction at the Warren and Liverpool, and finally underwent special training at Duntroon Military College. The news of his death was conveyed to his father yesterday morning at the Central Police Court. Mr. G. H. Smithers, stipendiary magistrate, at once adjourned the Court until another officer could be obtained, and tendered the sergeant his deepest sympathy and the sympathy of the court officials. Deceased was a nephew of the Inspector-General of Police.

Another of the sergeant's sons is in France, a gunner in the Field Artillery. He was also at Rabaul with the naval section, and on his return enlisted in the A.I.F., and was at Suvla Bay up to the evacuation, when, fearing he would be left out of the fighting in France, he applied to be transferred, and later joined the Australian Field Artillery.

LIEUT. E. W. WRIGHT.

Mrs. Wright, of Read-street, Waverley, received news yesterday that her husband, Lieut. E. W. Wright, has been officially reported missing in France. Lieut. Wright was an Englishman, about 30 years of age, and was a reservist. Prior to the outbreak of war he had been a member of the N.S.W. police force for about seven years, latterly doing duty as a plain clothes constable at No. 1 Police Station, Sydney. When the war started he was appointed Staff Sergeant-major, and was attached to the Provost Marshal's office at Victoria Barracks. Later he obtained his commission, and about nine months ago left for the front as lieutenant.

LIEUT. J. S. LEES.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

Second Lieut. J. S. Lees was killed in action on July 20. He was the eldest son of Mrs. W. J. Lees, of Bois Chere, near Goulburn. Lieut. Lees, who was 26 years old, rose from the ranks while on active service. He was a member of the New Guinea Expedition, and left with the Expeditionary Forces in November, 1915, as sergeant-major. His brother is with the forces, and an uncle, Corporal David Lees, was killed at Gallipoli.

LIEUT. ANDERSON.

At last night's meeting of the North Sydney council it was stated that the Mayor (Alderman W. Anderson) had received news that his eldest son, who holds a commission as lieutenant in the Australian forces, had been wounded in France. Lieutenant Anderson, who is 27 years of age, left Sydney with the Engineers. He is a native of North Sydney. Passing through the University, he took up an appointment as engineer at the Cobar mine, Broken Hill. Later he was given an important engagement with a large copper syndicate at Korea. The war broke out as he completed his engagement, and he came straightway to Sydney and enlisted. His only brother, Surgeon-Captain J. T. Anderson, was at the battle of Loos, with the Royal Field Artillery. He is now attached to the medical staff at the Randwick Hospital, but is awaiting an opportunity of getting back to the fighting line.

CORPORAL W. A. DOWD.

Mrs. James Dowd, of Frenchman's-road, Randwick, received news by private cable yesterday that her son, Corporal W. A. Dowd, has been wounded in France, and is now in a London hospital suffering from wounds in the right side and back. Corporal Dowd was a well-known ex-Paddington first-grade cricketer, and at the time of enlistment was the honorary secretary of the Randwick District Cricket Club.

CORPORAL W. J. CROCKETT.

Mrs. W. Crockett, of 79 Wilson-street, Newtown, has received news by cable that her husband, Corporal W. J. Crockett, has been wounded, and is seriously ill. Prior to joining the forces, Corporal Crockett was employed as enginedriver in the Sydney Harbour Trust. He has a son, Corporal W. E. Crockett, in action in France.

PRIVATE GREEN.

The acting overseer of works to the North Sydney Council (Mr. Harry Green) yesterday received news that his son had been killed at the front.

PRIVATE W. K. DAVIS.

MOLONG, Tuesday.

Private W. Keith Davis, reported killed in France, as the result of a rifle-shot wound in the neck and chest, was a native of Cargo, a district which has given liberally of her sons to the Empire. He was 24 years of age, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Davis. He left for Egypt last August, and was drafted to the western front as a member of a special company of bomb-throwers. Private Davis was a prominent member of district football, tennis, and cricket clubs.

DRIVER DOUGLAS W. WALKER.

Mr. C. A. Le M. Walker received advices from the military authorities yesterday that his second son, Driver Douglas W. Walker, attached to a battery of artillery, died of wounds on July 18. Driver Walker was educated at the North Sydney Church of England Grammar School, and subsequently joined the staff of Dalgety and Co., Ltd., from where he enlisted.

Mr. Walker's eldest son, Lieutenant Alan W. Walker, after going through the Gallipoli campaign, was killed in an aeroplane accident in England about three months ago.

WAR ANNIVERSARY.

A PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION.

A patriotic demonstration will take place in the Town Hall next Friday evening on the occasion of the second anniversary of the declaration of the war.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman R. D. Meagher) will preside, and the Governor (Sir Gerald Strickland) will move, and the Chief Justice (Sir William Cullen) will second the following resolution:—"That on this, the anniversary of the declaration of a righteous war, the citizens place on record their inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end, the struggle for the maintenance of those ideals of liberty and justice, which are the common and sacred cause of the Allies."

Other speakers will be Sir Hamilton Gould-Adams (Governor of Queensland), Mr. Holman (State Premier), Mr. C. G. Wade (leader of the Opposition), and others.

A special service of intercession will be held at St. Andrew's Cathedral from 1 to 1.45 p.m. on Friday, the preacher being the Archbishop. Special services will also be held at the cathedral on Sunday.

SUGAR CARGO.

SETTLEMENT ANNOUNCED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Although no details of the settlement were made available by the Commonwealth Ministers to-day, the Treasurer, Mr. Higgs, announced that the difficulty which had arisen in Sydney in regard to the unloading of sugar from a vessel by the Waterside Workers' Union had been overcome.

The union workers refused to handle the sugar unless they were paid a special rate for doing so. Mr. Higgs would not state whether the settlement involved the payment of the special rate, although on being pressed he admitted that the sugar was being unloaded.

THE DISPUTE AT MACKAY.

MACKAY, Tuesday.

At a meeting of the mercantile sub-committee of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon, it was decided to send the following telegram to the Registrar of the Federal Arbitration Court:—"Waterside workers still refuse to work cargo at Flat Top under award rates, and position is acute. Cargo for Mackay still declined. Provisions are scarce, and the sugar mills are short of bags and other supplies. Immediate action is imperative to compel the waterside workers to resume in accordance with your instructions otherwise hundreds of men will be thrown out of work and provisions become unprocurable."

AFTER THE WAR.

NATIONAL OR "KEY" INDUSTRIES.

THEIR STUDY RECOMMENDED.

X.

The Germans have taught us a good deal during the past couple of years, and the war has taught us other things. It is to the Germans that we owe our tardy recognition of the fact that certain industries are national, others useful, possibly even profitable, but from a national point of view non-essential. The Germans deliberately encouraged certain key industries. These were industries that were essential to the national preservation. They kept up the agrarian interests at great cost. No duties could be too heavy for the protection of the man on the land. They must grow their grain and raise their hogs within the borders of the Empire. Had Germany not been wise in this respect her people would have been starving ere this. They cannot be fed upon barbed wire or plate actions. But the Germans went further than provide for the people's food. They realised that he who made dyes had the textile activities of the whole world in the palm of his hand. They realised that certain metals were essential to all engineering effort, so they specialised upon these metals. They knew that certain chemicals went to the very foundation of a score of industries, so they gave special attention to these chemicals. Australian woollen factories are to-day hampering for aniline dyes which Germany only has so far produced cheaply and well. Australian mines have ceased to work because German smelters are no longer in a position to treat their products. Australian invalids are suffering more pain than would be necessary were German drugs to be had at reasonable prices. So through foresight and skilful organisation German trade placed the world under tribute.

It is not about the position of Germany, however, that we would write. It is the position of Australia to-day and after the war that chiefly concerns us. Is it not true that Australia, too, has her national industries that are essential to our continued existence, not merely to our material well-being? From some points of view it is almost a pity that Germany was not stronger at sea at the beginning of this war than she actually proved to be. Had there been more Emdens, Moewes, and Prinz Eitel Friedrichs marauding the seven seas, had our oversea commerce been really seriously interfered with, Australia would then have learnt the true inwardness of industries that are natural and those that are not. Had it been necessary for us to leave our surplus wool on the stations, because it was unsafe to ship it to the mills of Yorkshire, of the United States, and of Japan, what a difference it would have made! How would the bank deposits have stood then? Suppose the surplus 3,500,000 tons of wheat that our industrious farmers had produced had been literally left to rot in heaps, without even a cornsack to cover it, what then? Suppose our pastoralists had had to depend upon the local buyers at the Homebush yards for the disposal of their stock, instead of selling large quantities to the Imperial Government for army and navy purposes? Meat would have been cheap for the consumer, but would the grower have been pleased? If our copper, tin, and lead had been unmarketable, because it was impossible to get them to the consumer overseas, what then? This is one side of the picture, an important side, truly, but one side only. Imagine for one moment all imports cut off. Even now, with high freights and scarcity of tonnage, we have a faint conception of what might have happened had the Grand Fleet been less efficient than it has proved itself to be. Wool we would have had in abundance, but there would have been no clothes to wear. An army we might have trained, but could we have got it to the front?

Of course, the "key" industry of one country is not necessarily the key industry of another, though most key industries are key industries for all. When war broke out it was discovered that Germany had control of several important key industries. For example, the manufacture of dyes, and, as someone expressively put it at the time, as soon as the trumpet note of war was sounded Germany carefully barred and locked up these industries, and threw the key away. The textile industry of the United States was starved because dye-stuffs could not be imported from Germany. The world wanted spelter and had to pay four or five times the normal price for restricted quantities.

True, Sir Hugh Bell, in his pamphlet on "Trade After the War," denied that there is any value in key industries. There is no key industry, says Sir Hugh, because a hundred years ago the answers to this question: "What is a key industry?" would have been quite different, and because they will be different again in another hundred years. As Professor Henri Hauser points out, on this line of argument, "One might as well refuse to make rifles, howitzers, aeroplanes, or even submarines on the pretext that new inventions will render those weapons useless."

The professor contends that there are key industries, and the nation which allows such industries to die out from its midst loses the key which opens the door to others. Galvanised iron has been an important English industry, says Sir Hugh, and will be again, "if it can be saved from its friends." For to contend against the German industry is it not better to buy one's zinc more cheaply than by paying high prices at Swansea? So it seems. The manufacturer of iron-plates believes that he is doing good business when he profits by the prices of zinc, dumped in Swansea by the German Cartel. He is pleased to think that he, an Englishman, pays less for German zinc in England than the Germans pay in their own country, and that consequently he is able to make iron-plates less expensively than the factories in Duesseldorf. And this is true for a certain period—so long as the practice of dumping is applied only to the production of zinc. But the time will come when, thanks to dumping, the zinc industry will have disappeared from England.

Every industry is a key in relation to the industry immediately above it in the scale of production. To lose one such key means losing at once the means of opening the doors of the floor above; eventually it means losing the keys of all the floors.

In Australia the production of coal is obviously a "key" industry, but it is one that we need not bother about. It is an industry that has already been well developed. Not so the oil industry. Though we have large shale oil deposits it is understood that to-day not a single gallon of petroleum or its by-products is being produced. Oil is essential to every progressive country. Our fleet needs oil, our motor vehicles and prospective air fleet petrol, and many manufacturers also need this fuel, while others could use it with advantage were its cost lessened. The oil industry should be developed at whatever cost.

The production of pig iron, too, is essential. Here we have made a start, though a small start so far. Steel rails, bars, joists, girders, sheets, galvanised iron, shipplates, and a thousand and one necessary articles from ploughshares to locomotives are all based upon the production of pig iron. The iron and steel industry should be carefully nursed. In war time it may spell our national preservation. Guns big and small are the products of pig iron. Shell casings were once in the form of pigs.

The refining of copper, too, is an industry that is vital. Upon it depends the electrical industry, which has an enormous future before it in a progressive country like this. The elevators which will one day be constructed will remove our dependence upon cornsacks in the production of wheat; but what will take the place of jute for woolpacks? The making of tops and the making of yarns are key industries. They make it possible for us to clothe our people, which is not otherwise practicable, no matter how much wool we produce. The whole question of national or key industries should be carefully studied in relation to the tariff and to the existing bounty scheme.

THE SOMME.

ENEMY ATTACKS FAIL

RUSSIANS

ZEPPELINS.

SEVEN COUNTIES RAIDED

There have been no new developments on the British front in the Somme region.

The French have repelled furious counter-attacks against their new positions north of the Somme.

The Russians continue their advance, despite stubborn resistance, in the Kovel and Brody districts. There are indications that the fall of Kovel is imminent.

A British column has cut the main railway in German East Africa.

German airships during Monday night carried out an extensive raid over seven English counties.

The Russian advance in Asia Minor continues. The Arabs who rose against the Turks have captured Jeddah.

A Turkish force numbering 12,000 is reported near Katia, 25 miles east of Suez.

NO INFANTRY BATTLES.

IMPROVING THE POSITIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

General Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Monday, says:—The night was spent in improving the positions we gained on Sunday.

We advanced at some points on the plateau northward of Bazentin le Petit.

In a report late on Monday night Sir Douglas Haig stated:—There has been no infantry fighting.

Our airmen made several raids, dropping seven tons of bombs on German positions, which blew up a train and ammunition depot. During air combats we brought down several enemy machines. Three British machines are missing.

FRENCH LINE ADVANCED.

A French communique, on Monday, stated:—Violent German counter-attacks were delivered against Hem Wood and Monacu Farm. Our dashing counter-offensive drove out the enemy from Monacu. Our fire repulsed the attempts on Hem Wood.

A French communique issued at midnight on Monday stated:—The Germans continue to make counter-attacks north of the Somme. We repulsed all attacks at Hem Wood and Monacu Farm with serious losses.

THE OBJECTIVES.

The fiercest fighting continues. The spell of hot, clear weather is facilitating the work, in which the Anglo-French airmen maintain a superiority. The immediate Anglo-French objectives are Ginchy, Guillemont, and Maurepas, screening the township of Combles, which the Germans have transformed into a fortress. Any French progress east of the Clery-Combles line will threaten the German position in Peronne, which is still the main object of the French attack. There is fierce fighting for the woods north of the main road. The Ginchy and Combles Woods are strongly organised.

GENERAL SIR DOUGLAS HAIG.

Mr. Frederick Palmer, the American war correspondent, writing from the western front, describes General Sir Douglas Haig as keeping up exercise, and insisting on plenty of sleep. Consequently, he is as fresh as when the war began.

Sir Douglas Haig, in an interview, said the tide had turned. The only question was as to the time when we could claim a decisive victory. Events had proved that, man for man, the British were superior to the enemy.

Captured officers admit that Germany is beaten.

GERMAN DEFENCES.

Correspondents state that the Germans have dug many new trenches behind Guillemont. Among the new guns they have brought up is a naval 11-incher. It is believed that eleven battalions garrison the vital stretch of trench, of about 2000 yards, near Guillemont. The British artillery's toll, therefore, is correspondingly heavy. Some of the German entanglements are fifty yards deep.

ENEMY'S MAN-POWER.

Dutch reports show there is a cessation of big movements among German reinforcements in the west, proving that the enemy's maximum man-power is now on the west front; but Germany is still rushing up guns, hoping to counteract the British superiority in men. It is estimated there are 700 German batteries on the Somme front.

THE BRANDENBURGERS.

The Brandenburgers have taken up a position in a wood after their defeat at Longueval and Delville Wood. The British have sworn to complete the rout of the Brandenbergers from their new position.

THE GOVERNING FACTOR.

The continuous supply of heavy shells is the governing factor in the fighting. A non-commissioned officer in a Manchester battalion narrates that the regiment watched the havoc of the British shells, which were killing many Germans. Someone called out "Three cheers for Mr. Lloyd George and his munition workers!" The whole battalion stopped, took part in the cry, cheered, and then went on.

GERMAN REPORTS.

A Berlin communique issued on Monday stated:—The English operations at Pozieres and Longueval heralded a great Anglo-French offensive on the whole front, from Longueval to the Somme, the enemy employing at least six divisions for the attack at Pozieres and Longueval. The enemy was repulsed everywhere with the heaviest and most sanguinary losses. The British did not gain a foot of ground. Hand-to-hand combats were decided in our favour, thanks to the energetic assaults of Bavarian and Saxon reserves and the brave Schleswig-Holstein troops. We captured 12 officers, 769 men, and 13 machine guns.

THE AUSTRALIANS.

POZIERES BATTLE.

BITTER NIGHT ATTACK.

(FROM CAPTAIN C. E. W. BEAN, OFFICIAL AUSTRALIAN PRESS REPRESENTATIVE.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, July 29.

The battle around Pozieres still continues tremendously fierce. Even the German communique admits that. For four days the Germans shelled the vitals out of the place. That reeking, fuming stretch in the wide, parched, brown landscape was the sight of the battlefield. The German guns increased in number and size, and played day and night upon it. After two days they threw in a counter-attack, twice in one day. The attacks were broken by our guns. They shelled two days more, and attacked twice again. Again the attacks were broken.

Then we, in our turn, attacked the German line beyond Pozieres. We threw in the bombers of New South Wales first, in the preliminary struggle. After a bomb-fight lasting many hours in the German trenches—in which our men fought like cricketers, standing their full height in the open and throwing for all they were worth—a portion of the German trench was ours. The Germans still retained most of the second line trench, behind the village, and the windmill on the summit beyond the village.

Last night the Australians delivered an attack towards the east and north. The northern attack succeeded, and we still possess a good part of the ground won. The eastern attack, which was on a larger scale, was delivered after a short, sharp bombardment. But it was not a surprise. The Germans saw some indications of the assault being imminent. I myself, when waiting for the bombardment to begin, heard most clearly one machine gun start and then another, and then rifle shots on the night air before our field guns broke in.

When the bombardment lifted, the enemy's shrapnel, rifles, and machine guns burst out again. The troops mostly went through the first trench, which in parts was a mere unrecognisable powdered ditch. Many reached the wire in front of the second trench, and some, I believe, entered the trench. These, however, were now not strong enough to hold either trench. Over most of the line we gained no ground.

The end of the night's fierce fighting found our position slightly extended.

The enemy has now congregated formidable artillery on the Somme battlefield. The moment any attack commences, he, of course, switches on a barrage where he considers suitable. The manner in which anyone whose duty calls faces this ordeal would make Australians very proud if they could see it.

Last night, as we waited for news from a certain quarter of the fight, where ordinary arrangements for the moment had not worked, a message at last arrived by an orderly. An officer found the man stumbling through the dark inquiring for headquarters. "What do you want?" he was asked. "I have a message for them" he said. It was then noticed that he was wounded. "What is the matter?" he was asked. "I think I have lost one of my eyes," he said.

The work of the orderlies, stretcher-bearers, and working parties of engineers and pioneers is the wonder of the battlefield.

SUNDAY'S ADVANCE.

SCOTS AND GERMAN BOMBERS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, writing from the western front to the "Daily Chronicle," says:—Sunday was marked by a scorching sun, but artillery observation was not easy at certain hours, owing to rather thick haze; nevertheless the British maintained a heavy bombardment to support the infantry who advanced over difficult ground. Many Germans surrendered at an early stage in the advance, which was chiefly in the region of Waterlot Farm. The Germans had been very busy digging new trenches east of the Longueval-Guillemont-road. They sent up bombing parties and machine gunners along the trenches to protect the approaches to the ruins on the Guillemont road. The Royal Scots initiated a forward movement from Waterlot Farm. These grim fellows were ready for a new crack at "the auld Boche." There were no cows or sheep in the neighbourhood of the farm—only a collection of ruined buildings and yards, which the enemy used as a dumping ground for old iron and machinery.

The Scots' patrols went out in the darkness and satisfied themselves that the Germans were in strength, the main body being on the left of the farm. At dawn the bombing parties, leading, reached the first German line. There were a few casualties, but it was found the enemy was holding a trench very strongly across the railway line, and had dug a "nest" consisting of a few trenches east of the road, from whence they could enfilade us with rifles and machine guns. The Scots hid in a series of shell craters, where they were attacked by a large force of Germans with machine guns. The Scots were forced to retire. Our machine gunners covered their retreat and swept down the advancing Germans. Thus we gained time for the Scots to get back to the trenches. The Scots were later on reinforced and made a further attack, when they practically wiped out a strong force of German bombers. The Scots' snipers also wiped out a party of Germans who were carrying munition boxes. By this time some of the Germans were sick of the business. As dusk was creeping over the country side a party came out holding up their hands. Some of the Scots went out to bring in the prisoners, but the enemy trenches beyond opened fire on their own countrymen. Some of the Scots were killed or wounded. Scottish stretcher-bearers went out at night and found a wounded Scotsman, whom the German patrol had left behind, because he gave them a drink of water. The Germans said "Good luck, and a safe return to your own lines." The Scot expected to die, but the German good wishes were happily realised.

GERMAN RESPECT

FOR BRITISH RESOURCES.

The "Kreuz Zeitung," in warning Germans against Major Moraht's optimism, wherein he seeks to belittle England, declares that there are no grounds for the conclusion that Australia, Canada, and South Africa cannot send more troops, and it is not without reason that British statesmen speak of the rich sources of men and material within the Empire. England is also very strong financially.

ON OTHER FRONTS.

MORE VERDUN FIGHTING.

A French communique, on Monday, stated:—A German attack failed north-east of Hill 304 (west of Verdun). We progressed south-west of Fleury. A grenade attack westward of Vaux and Chapitre Woods failed.

A Paris communique on Monday night stated:—There has been violent artillery fire at Thiaumont and Fleury (north of Verdun).

Our airmen bombed military factories in Thionville, railway stations at Conflans, and Audun-le-Roman, and bivouacs at Etain.

EAST AFRICA.

BRITISH ADVANCE.

MAIN RAILWAY CUT.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

The commander of the British forces in German East Africa, General Smuts, reports that General Van der Venter, has occupied Dodoma, on the main central railway, about half-way between the coast and Lake Tanganyika.

[Dodoma is a small town forty miles east of Kilimatinde, which is an important junction and military station on the main railway. There are two railway lines in this territory: the one running in from Tanga, now in British hands, and the one running from the port of Dar-es-Salaam, right across to Lake Tanganyika, a distance of about 700 miles.]

THE ITALIANS.

AUSTRIAN CLAIMS.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

An Austrian communique says:—Several attacks by Alpine troops in the Tofana region were repulsed with sanguinary losses.

OVERSEA VISITORS.

SPEECH BY MR. ASQUITH.

MESSAGE TO THE DOMINIONS.

LONDON, August 1.

The oversea Parliamentary delegates attended private conferences in the House of Commons, when Indian affairs and the question of emigration were discussed.

Mr. Asquith presided at a Government banquet to the delegates in Lancaster House. Among those present were Mr. A. J. Balfour, Mr. Lewis Harcourt, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Milner, Lord Burnham, Lord Denman, Lord Islington, Lord Sydenham, Lord Blyth, Lord Emmott, Earl Grey, General Sir W. Robertson, Sir George Foster (Canada), Mr. H. J. Tennant, Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. Will Crooks, and the High Commissioners.

Mr. Asquith proposing the toast of "The Guests" said they had gone through a strenuous month. Their programme was an appalling document. They saw the gallant French army at Compiegne and Soissons, and visited the British front when the great offensive was begun, and being pushed home. It was an opportune visit. After the long stagnation, the operations had taken a decisive turn. It was a great moment for us, although there was no change in the army's qualities, strategical skill, tactical adroitness, regimental smartness, and individual courage. They had visited Ypres, which would always live in British history because of the lives it had cost, and the blood with which it had been consecrated. And this magnificent successful struggle was being continued with truly British tenacity. They saw Admiral Sir David Beatty's battle-cruisers—worthy of Nelson's best squadrons; and also Sir John Jellicoe's fleet—the finest, most formidable, and best equipped assemblage of naval power than ever sailed the seas.

"You have seen the actual realities of war," he said. "Few of our fellow-citizens have had the same privileges. Therefore, take the mother country's message to her children and kindred: That, vast and terrible as is the ordeal of the war, Great Britain and her dominions have been called on to take their stand in the supreme struggle for freedom and justice; and the blood we are shedding side by side means a new life and promise for the immortal future of the Imperial household, to which we all belong."

Mr. Josiah Thomas (Australia), replying to the toast, said the visit had dispelled doubts and perplexities. They would go back, assured that Britain had indeed been aroused, and was exerting her power on sea and land. They hoped when triumph comes that mercy would not be shown the savage Germans.

Mr. Becker (South Africa) said they were taking back a message of confidence, knowing that their blood had not been sacrificed vainly.

Sir James Carroll (New Zealand) said: No Ministry has ever been confronted with more tremendous issues. The dominions hope you will remember their views upon the affairs of the Empire, and act rightly by finding a tangible solution.

ROLL OF HONOUR.

LONDON, July 31.

Corporal W. J. Johnson, an ex-member of the Australian House of Representatives, has been slightly wounded at the front.

Lieutenant John Ritchie, Seaforth Highlanders (of Dunedin, N.Z.), Lieutenant Edward Nott, Yorkshire Light Infantry (of Sydney), and Jeeves, the well-known Warwickshire bowler, have been killed at the front.

RUSSIANS.

STUBBORN FIGHTING.

ENEMY RETREAT INDICATED.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

A Petrograd message says that although the German armies are stubbornly resisting about five and a half miles west of the Stokhod, on the road to Kovel, the Russian balloon observers regard the fighting merely as a rearguard action, as the road towards Kovel is thronged with retreating troops.

FIERCE BATTLES RAGING.

A Russian communique, issued on Monday evening, says:—Our advance on the Stokhod continues. The enemy in some places opened a hurricane of fire on our positions. The enemy is shelling Brody and the Boldurovka River crossing with heavy artillery. Fierce sanguinary battles are raging on the greater part of the front. The enemy is exerting his whole energies to retain his line of defence, and is drawing troops from various points.

OPINION IN PETROGRAD.

The Petrograd correspondent of an American syndicate says the opinion is held in Petrograd that the Austro-Germans, despite their stubborn resistance, will be unable much longer successfully to oppose all of the three Russian advances along the lines leading respectively to Kovel, Valadimir Volynski, and Lemberg. They will probably be compelled to sacrifice one of these fronts in order to stiffen the others.

ENEMY REPORTS.

A German communique on Monday stated:—Continued strong assaults by Russian masses against General von Linsingen (in the Stokhod and Brody districts) were repulsed with the heaviest losses. The enemy main pressure is on the Kovel-Sarny railway and both banks of the Lipa. We took 1889 Russian prisoners on Sunday. The Russians west of Buczacz (near the Dniester) penetrated General von Bothmer's first line but were repulsed.

An Austrian communique says:—Enemy night attacks west of Brody failed. Attacks in Volhynia, west of Lutsk, broke down. The enemy obtained a temporary footing south of Stobychia, on the left bank of the Stokhod, but was driven back. We took 2000 prisoners in the Volhynia fighting.

FRYATT'S DEATH.

"CRIME SHALL NOT GO UNPUNISHED."

LONDON, July 31.

The House of Commons was crowded to-night. The angriest feeling prevailed in the lobbies concerning the murder of Captain Fryatt.

Replying to Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Asquith outlined the Government's attitude in regard to the most recent atrocities. He said it was true that Captain Fryatt was murdered. The Government heard with the utmost indignation of this atrocious crime against the law of nations and the usages of war, coming contemporaneously with the lawless disturbance of the population in northern France. It showed that the German high command, under the distress of military defeat, had renewed a policy of terrorism. It was impossible to conjecture what further atrocities would follow. The Government repeated emphatically that it was resolved that these crimes should not go unpunished. When the time arrived they were determined to bring to justice the criminals whatever be their positions. The man who authorised the system under which such crimes could be perpetrated was the most guilty of all. The question of taking immediate action was engaging the attention of the Government, and an announcement would be made in due course.

Sir Edward Carson: Should not the House pass an Act showing the Germans that they will not be admitted to the community of nations until these crimes have been expiated?

Mr. Asquith said the suggestion would be considered. The Government would also consider the claims of Captain Fryatt's widow and children to national recognition.

CAPTAIN FRYATT'S WIDOW.

The Government is allowing Captain Fryatt's widow a pension of £100 a year. The Great Eastern Railway Company, which employed Captain Fryatt, has given her £250.

NEUTRAL REPROBATION.

An Amsterdam message states that a crowd smashed the German consulate windows and cried, "Down with Germany."

There are indications that the Germans are alarmed at the unanimous neutral reprobation, and have commenced to issue a series of explanations and justifications.

GALLIPOLI INQUIRY.

AUSTRALIA PRAISED.

LONDON, July 31.

The "Westminster Gazette" says:—"It is worth noting that officially and unofficially Australia declines to be a party to the constitution of the Dardanelles Commission. Mr. Fisher, Commonwealth High Commissioner, is not regarded as the Commonwealth's representative.

"The Australian press hopes that no one imagines that Australia wanted the inquiry at this stage. This seems a very public spirited and chivalrous standpoint, and it is only meet that we should show recognition and appreciation."

AUSTRIAN EMPEROR.

AGAIN REPORTED ILL.

LONDON, July 31.

An Exchange Telegraph message states that the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria is seriously ill. The Archduke Charles (the heir presumptive) has been called to the bedside of the Emperor.

DUBLIN REVOLT.

MILITARY SHOOTING CASES.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

In the House of Commons last night Mr. Asquith, referring to the shooting of Skeffington and others in the Portobello barracks, said that, though the court-martial had thrown light on the cases, still there was a good deal requiring investigation, and Sir J. A. Simon had undertaken to preside at a public inquiry.

IRELAND.

CABINET ACTS.

A NEW CHIEF SECRETARY.

IRISH PARTY DISSATISFIED.

LONDON, July 31.

The House of Commons was crowded to-night in anticipation of the debate on Mr. Dillon's motion. The Irishmen were in full force.

Mr. Dillon urged the Government immediately to disclose its plans for the future Government of Ireland. They had entered into the negotiations with Mr. Lloyd George unwillingly, for they knew the opportunity this would give the various factions which were assailing the power of the Nationalist leaders. Mr. Asquith, on July 10, after Mr. Lloyd George had completed his negotiations, accepted the written terms of the settlement, and it was announced that the Cabinet would submit them for Parliament's acceptance. A week later the Unionists in the Cabinet went to the Prime Minister and announced that they absolutely and finally declined to accept the condition that the Irish should remain in full numbers in Westminster. The present Government of Ireland was unlimited in military tyranny.

Mr. Asquith spoke next. He announced that Mr. H. E. Duke, K.C. (Unionist member for Exeter in the House of Commons) was the new Chief Secretary for Ireland, in the place of Mr. A. Birrell, who had resigned. He would have a seat in the Cabinet, but he would spend the bulk of his time in Ireland.

STATE OF IRELAND.

Mr. Asquith, continuing, said he did not propose to nominate anyone at present to succeed Lord Wimborne as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The state of Ireland in some ways was satisfactory, and in others very disquieting. There was great general prosperity, an absence of ordinary agrarian crime, and the vast bulk of the people were loyal to the core, but restless, anarchic forces were at work, which required careful watching, as the Government could not permit a repetition of the revolution. General Sir John Maxwell had shown judgment and tact. He always leant on the side of mercy. It would be wrong to reduce substantially the military forces in Ireland. The Government proposed that the civil executive should be responsible to Parliament, Sir M. D. Chalmers remaining as Under-secretary. The recent negotiations had created a new situation. They would never get back to the old hostility and irreconcilability. This made it a patriotic duty not to do anything to recreate the old bitterness. "Mr. Lloyd George and myself," he added, "told the Irish leaders during the negotiations that we had no power to bind the Cabinet. It is not fair to say that Lord Lansdowne is responsible for the attitude of the Unionists. The whole of my Unionist colleagues took the same view. Under the existing conditions, the Cabinet concluded it was not desirable to make experiments. An advisory council would be wholly impracticable. The main thing was to find a capable Chief Secretary, with a broad, judicial mind, a firm hand, administrative capacity, sympathy for the Irish people, and a strong desire to promote an Irish settlement." He believed Mr. Duke had these qualifications. (General cheers and Nationalist dissent).

MR. REDMOND'S VIEWS.

Mr. Redmond said that one great good had come out of recent events—the relations between the Nationalists and Sir Edward Carson and the Ulstermen had considerably improved. Sir Edward Carson frankly recognised that the Home Rule Act was on the Statute Book, and both desired to see a United Ireland. The difference in arriving at the goal was largely one of method. He believed it was capable of a peaceful solution. He was not sure Sir Edward Carson had stood by the agreement. There seemed to be a desire to vary the terms of the written contract, but what happened had made a peaceful settlement in the end absolutely certain. The Nationalists considered it was impossible to discuss seriously a permanent settlement in the middle of a great war. It was not fair to expect them to make the whole future of the Ulster counties subject to a permanent and enduring settlement at the present moment. Mr. Asquith proposed to revise the Dublin Castle rule by setting up a Unionist executive. (Nationalist cheers.) This was a further outrage on the feelings of the Irish. It was not even a coalition executive. At any rate, the Government took the full and open responsibility. It would be the duty of the Nationalists to watch, criticise, and oppose the new administration. "Nothing has happened," continued Mr. Redmond, "and nothing could happen to alter my views about the war. (Cheers.) Directly the war commenced I declared this was not only the Empire's war, but a war on behalf of small nationalities, and in a very special sense Ireland's war. The highest interest of Ireland required her to do her duty to win the war. The Government must not allow the mad outbreak of a thousand men to make them forget 150,000 Irishmen who are fighting on the battlefields of France, and the tens of thousands of Irishmen from the dominions who are performing the same gallant tasks. I glory in the heroic deeds of the Ulster Division, who are fighting side by side with my own son, in the Dublin Fusiliers. When these men return to Ireland there can never be civil war."

Lord Hugh Cecil (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs) insisted upon the absolute necessity for enforcing law and order.

Mr. Bonar Law (Secretary of State for the Colonies) said the Unionist members of the Cabinet were prepared to adopt a settlement, but if Unionists were able to prevent it Home Rule would never come into operation without an amending bill which carried out the agreement with Ulster fairly. "Directly I saw the proposal," he said. "I told the Prime Minister it was utterly impossible to allow 80 Nationalists to determine who should form the next Government. There must be an election at the end of the war, and every fair-minded man will admit the Cabinet came to the only conclusion regarding Nationalist representation. The clause concerning Ulster only put beyond doubt the fact that the excluded area was left out of the bill until it was willing to come in."

Mr. Devlin said the Government seemed to think that Irishmen were good for nothing except to march to the division lobbies. If ever he marched again, he hoped it would be for the purpose of clearing the present coalition out of office. "I never agreed to the permanent exclusion of Ulster," he said. "I agreed to Mr. Lloyd George's proposals because they were a temporary war measure." Sending a Unionist Chief Secretary to prop up Dublin Castle was to make things more hideous than ever. It was a travesty on statesmanship."

Mr. Dillon's motion was carried.

IN ASIA MINOR.

TURKS NEAR SUEZ.

AUSTRALIANS' GOOD WORK.

ATTACK ENEMY OUTPOSTS.

LONDON, August 1.

The London "Daily Telegraph's" correspondent in Egypt writes:—The Turkish advance towards the Suez Canal is being made along the caravan route from El Arish to Kantara, and has reached a ridge eight miles from Romani, and three from the edge of the Katia Oasis.

The Turks, who are estimated to number 12,000, are feeling their way cautiously on a ten-mile front during night marches. They hide in the day time in palm groves and shallow holes covered with palm leaves, thus escaping aerial observation.

The Australian Light Horse are doing cavalry work with splendid certainty. They drove in the Turkish outposts and captured some prisoners.

[El Arish is near the shore of the Levant, 80 miles east of Suez. Kantara is a town on the Suez Canal. Katia is an oasis town about 25 miles east of the canal, on the El Arish-Kantara road.]

SYRIA.

APPALLING SITUATION.

Refugees supply shocking details of the situation in Syria.

The Christian population is starving and wholesale executions are being carried out. The atrocities commenced with Enver Pasha's visit when Djemal Pasha's attitude towards the Christians became more hostile. Many villages lost a third and even half of their inhabitants. Starvation was due to the food blockade.

At Lebanon, scores of Christian leaders were executed or exiled. Four bishops were called up to the colours. They have not since been heard of.

ZEPPELINS.

EXTENSIVE RAID.

OVER SEVEN COUNTIES.

NO DETAILS AVAILABLE.

LONDON, Aug. 1 (2.50 a.m.).

A number of Zeppelins at midnight attacked the eastern and south eastern counties.

Bombs were dropped in the Thames Estuary.

The attack is proceeding.

The following official announcement has been made (5 a.m.): It appears that a considerable number of airships carried out a raid, and spent some time cruising over Lincolnshire, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridgeshire, Essex, Kent, and Huntingdonshire. Bombs were dropped indiscriminately in localities which do not possess any military importance.

Anti-aircraft guns came into action in one spot and, it is believed, with good effect.

Further details are not available.

THE BALTIC.

NEW GERMAN METHODS.

CONVOYS AND AEROPLANES.

LONDON, July 31.

A Copenhagen message states that the Germans are employing new methods in the Baltic. Merchantmen, convoyed by aeroplanes, are sailing in long columns, the last ship being a disguised auxiliary cruiser. The Germans have discovered that submarines always attack the hindermost ship. A few days ago such a cruiser sank a submarine by gunfire. A few minutes later another submarine, which witnessed the disaster, attacked and sank the cruiser, the crew of which were rescued by the rest of the convoy.

WAR NOTES.

FIGHTING EAST AND WEST.

The news from the main fighting centres this morning does not indicate any important alteration in the general position of the Allies. The British and French on the western front are still holding their recent gains and improving their positions. There appears to be another temporary lull in the operations here, as General Haig announces that no infantry fighting has occurred along the British front. The French have successfully withstood the violent counter-attacks of the enemy on the newly-gained positions north of Hem. The strenuous efforts of the Germans to retake Hem Wood again reveal the enemy's desire to hold these positions, where roads and railway lines meet. The French also realise the value of such junctions, however, and are determined to keep the wood. Fierce battles are still raging at various points along the southern Russian front, where the Russians continue to make steady progress towards Kovel. The Petrograd message which announces that Russian balloon observers regard the fighting west of the Stokhod as a rearguard action by the enemy, is rather startling, and suggests that the Germans are abandoning Kovel. It certainly seems as if the Russians are now determined to force a big battle on the Austro-Germans outside Kovel, but that the enemy is already leaving this important railway centre seems a little too good to be true.

ZEPPELINS ONCE MORE.

The exasperation of the enemy under the stress of military reverses has been most noticeable during the past few days. Having been thwarted in his attempt to capture Verdun, and being unable to stem the Allied advances on the eastern and western fronts, the enemy has vented his rage upon the helpless women of Lille and the defenceless captain of the steamer Brussels. Not content with these outrages he has again reverted to the practice of dropping bombs on unprotected towns. The British anti-aircraft guns are said to have been used with good effect, but so far it is not known whether any of the raiders were brought down. It is during the return trip across the North Sea, however, that any damage sustained by the raiders is likely to make itself felt. The following is a list of German airships known to have been lost since the commencement of the war:—1914: Zeppelin brought down and captured by French at Badenviller in August. 1915: A Schutte-Lanz wrecked off the Danish coast in February; L3 wrecked on Fano Island, Denmark, in February; Zeppelin brought down and burned between Brussels and Ghent in May; Zeppelin burned by Allied airmen in its shed near Brussels in June; Zeppelin wrecked by Lieutenant R. A. J. Warneford near Ghent in June. 1916: Disabled Zeppelin attacked and completely destroyed by airmen while it was being towed into Ostend on August 10; L19 lost in the North Sea on February 3; Zeppelin brought down and destroyed by French motor guns at Revigny, in the Argonne, February 21; L15 damaged in raid on England, sank off Thames Estuary on April 1; L20 descended and blown up near Stavanger, Norway, on May 4; Zeppelin destroyed by British light cruiser squadron off Schleswig, May 4. Zeppelin brought down by British warship near Salonica.

VAN DER VENTER'S SUCCESS.

The brief report from General Smuts published this morning contains a most important announcement regarding the campaign in German East Africa. With the whole of the Usambara railway in the possession of the British, and General Van der Venter firmly established on the main central railway, the days of this interesting campaign should now be numbered. Of course, if the Germans decide to continue a form of guerilla warfare, they might hold out for a considerable period yet. General Van der Venter's task in this campaign has been a most difficult and trying one. When General Smuts captured Moshi, the inland terminus of the Usambara railway, in March last, he despatched General Van der Venter with a mounted force to Longido, to the north-west of Mount Kilimanjaro, whence he proceeded southward to Arusha, which place he captured. From here he struck down to the south-west and occupied Kondoa Irangi, 125 miles from Arusha. Here he experienced some severe fighting with the enemy before he eventually succeeded in driving them southward in the direction of the main railway, which cuts right across the middle of the colony from Dar-es-Salaam in the east to Lake Tanganyika, which is the western boundary of the colony. After this success it was expected that General Van der Venter, whose duty it was to cut this main railway line, would next be heard of at Kilimatinde, which is the half-way station on this long line. Dodoma, which he is now reported to have occupied, is about 40 miles to the east of Kilimatinde, and the troops now occupying it must have covered about a hundred miles since they left Kondoa Irangi. With General Smuts's main force advancing southward from the Usambara line, and General Van der Venter at Dodoma, barring any retreat westward along the main line, the German forces on the eastern half of this railway are in an awkward position.

EAST OF SUEZ CANAL.

Although the correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph" in Egypt suggests that the Turkish advance towards Katia on the eastern side of the Suez Canal, is being carried out on a fairly big scale, it is extremely unlikely that it is anything more serious than a threatened raid. We have previously pointed out that the Turkish scheme for an invasion of Egypt has been dropped owing to the urgent need for armies at other danger points in the Ottoman Empire. The rapid advance in Asia Minor of the Russians, under the Grand Duke Nicholas, and the ever-present menace of the British in Mesopotamia, are still occupying the attention of the Turks. They are undoubtedly in a worse position today than they were four or five months ago, when it was generally agreed that all hopes of an invasion of Egypt had been abandoned by the Turks and Germans. The Katia oasis, within three miles of which the Turks are said to be advancing on a ten-mile front, is situated on the most northerly of the main routes leading across the desert from the Arabian border to the canal. This is the route which runs close to the Mediterranean coast, and is not the one which was to have been followed in the event of an invasion of Egypt. There are three routes crossing the desert towards the canal, the most southerly being that from the Gulf of Akaba to the Gulf of Suez, and the most northerly leading from El Arish along the Mediterranean coast to El Kantara, south of Port Said. The third, which lies almost midway between these two, was originally selected for the proposed Turkish invasion.

REASONS FOR TURKISH ADVANCE.

Turkish troops have been reported on several occasions recently along this northern route, but not in such strength as those mentioned in this morning's message. The presence of this force, but not its numbers, was mentioned by the War Office recently, the message stating that the Turks, who came from El Arish, were entrenching five miles eastward of Katia. If it is not the intention of the Turks to launch a serious attack against the Suez Canal what is their object? So far as we are able to see at present the reasons for its presence there are much the same as those which led to previous raids in this direction. If the Turks cannot afford to spare the men for a determined attack on the Canal, they can at least despatch smaller forces to make a pretence to activity in this direction. The threat which such hostile troops offer to this vital connecting link between the Mediterranean and the East must result in Great Britain keeping strong forces in Egypt to protect this important waterway. The successful operations of the Grand Shereef at Mecca, Medina, and Jeddah have no doubt necessitated the movement of Turkish troops along the railway from Damascus towards Medina. The Turkish force near Katia may be intended to forestall any possible British move towards this railway. Such a move as this, however, is not likely to be carried out by the British.

LATE WAR NEWS.

EAST FRONT.

ENEMY RETIREMENT.

REPORTED ABANDONMENT OF TOWNS.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

A wireless message says that the Austro-German forces have evacuated Vladimir Volynsky (an important town due west of Lutsk), and are evacuating Kovel (a railway junction of much strategic value north-west of Lutsk).

BRITISH FRONT.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION.

LONDON, Aug. 1.

General Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Tuesday, says:—There is no change in the situation. We repulsed a German attack northward of Bazentin le Petit.

FRYATT'S MURDER.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 1.

A German official message says:—It is quite intelligible that the British Government seeks to excuse Captain Fryatt because it is responsible for the instructions issued to shipmasters.

WAR ANNIVERSARY.

EMPEROR'S MESSAGES.

"GERMANY INVINCIBLE."

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 1.

The war anniversary messages of the German Emperor to the army and navy read:—

The second year of the war has been one of glory. Our enemies, reinforced by foreign assistance pressed into their service from all parts of the world, have failed to rob you of the fruits of your former victories.

Our young navy, on that glorious day in the Skagerack, dealt a heavy blow to the British armada.

Our enemies hope to overawe us with munitions. They will fail as they failed to starve us. They will be responsible for further bloodshed. Difficult days are still ahead of us. The strength of our enemies is not yet broken, but I have always been convinced that Germany is invincible.

MR. HUGHES.

STIRRING ADDRESS.

TEACHINGS OF THE WAR.

OUR DEBT TO THE ANZACS.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

Mr. Hughes (as already briefly telegraphed) addressed a public meeting in His Majesty's Theatre last night.

"In this struggle," said the Prime Minister, "the great issue is whether men shall be allowed to develop and work out their destiny as they think fit, or as some great military despotism shall decide. That is the question, and whether we hold one political faith or another, at least we are agreed on this point. We have our ideals and desire to realise them. We desire to achieve that which we believe to be right. There never was since the beginning of the world, and never will be to the end a wider freedom given to any people than to us in Australia without respect to sex or class or status. To every man and woman is given an equal voice in the government of the country. We may have in this country what kind of government and policy we wish. We can have this if we are prepared to fight for it. (Cheers.) As long as we can hold that freedom we can have it. We can have it until Germany wrests the sceptre from Britain and the Empire, and then we can hold it no longer.

"Nothing is more certain than that the Empire is like a bundle of sticks tied together. Being strong, it cannot be overcome, but, taken singly, we are as reeds blown hither and thither. (Cheers.) I say to you, after seeing much of the world, after having had an opportunity to compare this place with others, that it is indeed a land fit for free men, a greater heritage which we should bend our every effort to develop, and to make it, as I believe it is inevitably destined to become, one of the greatest nations the world has ever seen.

THE IMPERIAL TIE.

"The tie that binds us to Britain is one that cannot be weighed or measured. It is a tie of kinship of common ideals, of common purpose. It weighs as little as eider-down upon us, it does not hamper our movements, it rests as light as a feather upon us, but in the hour of danger it is as unbreakable as iron, and we stand to-day, not by virtue of our own strength, but because we are able to say that round the earth we have a democracy to link up the waste spaces, and that we have a fleet capable of upholding our liberties, and that whilst these stand we are saved. (Applause.)

"I wish I could tell you something of the spirit with which Britain is facing this war. The circumstances of our fellow-citizens in Britain are not as easy as ours. Having received their call in this great crisis all sorts and conditions of men are doing their duty faithfully and well. But a little time ago when war first broke upon us it found Britain unprepared. She was as a man set upon by footpads, but now she has gathered out of the great resources of her land an army as numerous as the sands of the seas. (Cheers.) This army is proving itself worthy of the race from which they have sprung, and they are carving out in France and Flanders on the bodies of the enemies the indelible imprint of free men, compelled to take up the sword and resolve never to sheathe it until victory is theirs. (Cheers.)

WAR'S STERN LESSONS.

"We shall never be quite the same after this war. I feel very certain that it is teaching us many stern and noble lessons in this country, as in Britain and elsewhere. For example, it has taught us that we have duties to the State and to the community; that citizenship in a free country like this is not a mere question of receiving, but it is also a question of giving. Men cannot expect to be free unless they are prepared to make the payment that is necessary for their freedom. (Cheers.) The freedom that we have has come to us. How? By prayer, by protestation, by lip-service? Never. It has been won by sacrifice, whether it be sacrifice on the fields of battle, martyrdom at the stake, or in a hundred and one other ways by which self-sacrifice can achieve things. Freedom is not a thing that you can measure, or handle, or test by any of the material standards by which men judge material things, but it is a thing without which life to us would be unendurable. (Cheers.) Now we find that civilisation, while climbing up the slopes of progress, has its progress arrested by a beast let loose from barbarism.

GERMANY THE ARCH CRIMINAL.

"There can be no punishment too drastic for those who have deliberately prepared this bath of blood in which to dip humanity. (Cheers.) I say it deliberately. One thing I hope is that we may all live to see the criminals of Germany placed in one dock, not of public opinion, but in that dock where a tribunal armed with plenary powers can deal out the punishment that their crimes deserve. (Cheers.) If my voice can turn the scale against them, it will be heard. I do not speak in hyperbole, but speak what I believe. Millions of our great Russian friends, millions in France, Italy, and Britain, are crying aloud to avenge the outrages perpetrated by the enemy towards non-combatants. Millions, I say, are crying aloud for justice, and although the day has not yet come when they can be arraigned, we all hope that day is not far distant. (Cheers.) For over two years we have walked in the valley of the shadow of death, and there has been no break in the clouds; but we now see a break in the clouds. (Cheers.) The Russian juggernaut is thundering and crushing down on the enemy at one end, and on the other fronts the Germans are being walled round with a ring of steel day by day. The Allies are creeping closer and closer towards the goal. It is my belief that this struggle is likely to be long, and the price of victory dreadful; but as certain as night follows day victory is ours, for I believe that every member of the great family of the British race has resolved to do his duty to the end. In Canada, South Africa, and Britain, everywhere, in fact, the people are of the same spirit. All sorts and conditions of men have forgotten their ancient feuds in the determination to win.

OUR DEBT TO THE ANZACS.

"Everywhere I have been I have found myself basking in the glory of the Australian soldier. It is a great thing for this young country, without traditions, and without any history, that when she first leapt into the great arena her gallant sons comported themselves as they did. (Cheers.) The Australian soldier has covered the Australian nation with glory. He has lifted us up in the eyes of the world. The Australian soldier has made Australia a living reality as a nation. If the great things which Australians did in Gallipoli may as a military operation be regarded as a failure it is the most glorious failure in the history of the world. (Cheers.) It has set a standard, it has shown to the enemy the stern fact that to make war against Britain is to make war not only against those forty-eight million people in the narrow seas, but also against those millions in the great seas beyond. (Cheers.) The women of England are doing a magnificent work in connection with the war. No one can express adequately what the women of England are doing. (Cheers.) Words cannot describe it; they are poor miserable tokens. It is pleasing to record that these women, despite all that they are doing, feel that they are doing all too little for the Australian soldier, who has done so much for them. (Cheers.)

THE GERMAN OCTOPUS.

He hoped in Australia the fields of industry and commerce would be done over with the harrows of resolute purpose until there was left not the smallest vestige of German commerce in this land. (Cheers.) They had no claim to leniency or citizenship; they had forfeited every right to be regarded as men fit to come within the pale of civilisation. They had been welcomed, and they had bitten the hand that fed them. "Thank God," continued Mr. Hughes, "we awoke at the eleventh hour, for in a very little while they would have overwhelmed us. They were sucking the juice from our industrial fabric, and scooping out the kernel of the nut. They would have left us nothing but the husk. Thank God we awoke in time, and we shall put it past their power to do that thing again. (Cheers.) For these men leniency is a crime, for they regard leniency as a sign of weakness. They recognise one thing only, and that is the sword. They have appealed to the sword they have apotheosised force. Let them go down under the juggernaut they have erected, to be wiped out utterly. (Cheers.) I hope in whatever else we fail, we shall not fail in this. We shall make this land of Australia as free from German influence of an kind as heaven is from the demons of hell. (Loud cheers.)

Voices: That is the way to talk.

"We have a great task before us. We must not and dare not falter, for to falter would be to fail, and failure would be our destruction. In this war, in which we stand a free partner in the great partnership of nations which we call the Empire, we must do our part to achieve victory. We must not lag behind. (Cheers.) Rather, having set a good example, must we press on as far as possible in the vanguard at any rate. We must a that the lustre of Australian glory is not dimmed, we must see that Australia's exploits are not overlooked.

OUR GREAT HERITAGE.

"After the war there will be the beginning of a new and a greater era for Australia. We are striding forward to our great heritage. We must develop this great continent. We must people it with man upon man. No community of 5,000,000 can hold a continent capable of holding 100,000,000. They must increase their numbers to be ready to defend their shores.

"The old life of jogging along without any set purpose must make way for the narrower life by which we must all endeavour to do something by organised effort for each other, and for the country. (Cheers.) I believe in organisation. I have seen what has been done in Britain by the power of organisation. After seeing Great Britain's effort towards winning the war I am a greater believer in organisation than ever before. I saw the power of organisation. It produced, as it were, out of nothing one of the mightiest armies which the world had ever seen. It wiped out as a wet sponge from a slate a hundred and one miasmic vapours which were blinding the people of Great Britain. (Cheers.) It has done great things for Britain and great things for the world—(cheers)—and it will do great things for Australia. I thank you for this magnificent reception. It is ample repayment for all that I have done. I hope we shall see before long the Allies triumphant, the criminals punished, and civilisation once more taking its stand firmly, to clear away all obstacles and steer itself to the highest possible end." (Loud cheers.)

TRADE EXPANSION.

ADVANTAGE OF UNIFORM LAWS.

During the afternoon Mr. Hughes received a deputation from the West Australian Chamber of Commerce, in relation to the question of German trade.

Mr. Hughes said that he agreed that one of the essentials of successful commercial progress was that the laws should be plainly understandable and, as far as possible, uniform. It would be greatly to the advantage of all if there were one set of commercial laws for the Empire.

With regard to the extermination of German trade, Mr. Hughes said he hoped and believed that the Ministry had done all in its power. He would be very much astonished to learn that there were any remnants of German trade influence left in Australia. If it could be shown that any remnant of the tentacles of the German octopus remained they would be cut out without delay. It had been said that the position with regard to German trade marks was not yet satisfactory. As the ramifications of the German octopus were so very complex and complete he could very well understand that every vestige of it had not yet been destroyed, but if any definite facts could be shown to the Ministry the necessary action would certainly be taken.

It was true at present merchants were passing through a harassing time, but he hoped and believed that at the expiration of the war they would be on the threshhold of very much, much wider opportunities than they had ever known before. He had an abiding faith in the future of this country, in its greatness, and its commercial opportunities, and he would be greatly disappointed if those who held the reins of commerce at the time did not show themselves qualified for their positions when the war was over.

EMPIRE TARIFF WALL.

PROJECTED CONFERENCE.

A deputation from the Australian Protectionist Association and the Chamber of Manufactures also waited on Mr. Hughes. It urged the adoption of an effective tariff with British preference, the adoption of reciprocal arrangements with various parts of the Empire, the fixing of a term within which enemy subjects could not be naturalised, and the permanent exclusion of enemy goods.

Mr. Hughes in reply said that he was unable to give the opinion of the Cabinet in regard to effective protection, but he stated that personally the request of the deputation on that matter had his whole-hearted support. He was also in favour of a policy of reciprocity within the Empire. It was obvious, however, that nothing could be done in that matter except through a conference attended by all parties concerned. It was highly probable that an opportunity would be given for such a conference, at any rate, at the conclusion of the war. He could not pledge the Commonwealth Ministry in regard to that question, but he thought he knew the opinion of his colleagues, and that if Australia were represented at such a conference it would be to advise such a policy as the deputation had indicated.

He did not quite understand the request of the deputation for the permanent prohibition of the importation of German goods. After all, Ministers were only creatures of a day. If, however, the deputation meant prohibition as far as in them lay, he was with them heart and soul. He was also in favour of an amendment making it less easy for enemy subjects to be naturalised. No subject or subjects of enemy countries should be naturalised in Australia for a period sufficiently long after the war to give their country ample time to examine the situation and consider it in every one of its aspects. Australia had been too easy in the past. She had admitted men as her guests, welcomed them at her table, and seated them in the places of honour, and they had acted as spies, or at best as rivals. He was against them for the future, horse, foot, and artillery.

ORE-SMELTING.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

Before his departure for the East, the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) was seen by the Premier (Mr. Wilson) and the Minister for Mines (Mr. Robinson), and asked to take steps to relieve the position of ore producers consequent upon the Commonwealth's regulations in regard to the smelting of ores in Australia. It was claimed—(1) That the policy lately followed by the Federal Government in requiring that all ores raised in Australia must be smelted in Australia, if there are suitable smelting works available, played into the hands of smelting establishments to the disadvantage of producers of ore, especially of such as were making only a small output; (2) that, since obtaining a monopoly of the smelting business through the action of the Government in forbidding the export, ore-smelting establishments had raised their charges very considerably.

Mr. Hughes assured the Minister of Mines that he would give the matter his personal consideration as soon as he reached Melbourne.

THE LESSON.

DUTY OF THE NATION.

Speaking at a public meeting in the drill hall, Artarmon, last night, convened by the Chatswood branch of the Universal Service League, Mr. E. J. Loxton, K.C., said that one read with a glow of pride the utterances of the Prime Minister as reported in yesterday's "Sydney Morning Herald." Differing as some of them did from him in their political beliefs, they could not help but listen when they heard the high note which he had struck when he bade us remember how many were the things upon which we were agreed as compared with the few things on which we disagreed, and how essential it was that we should keep a united front to the foe, and gather our energies together so that we might with the help of God overwhelm him. It was for a leader such as this that the people of the Commonwealth were waiting—one who by reason of the experience which he had gained within the sound of the enemy's guns was capable of estimating the enormous power opposed to us, the direness of the need fully and effectively to organise, and the tremendous results that must flow from victory or defeat. We should hope that the influence which he was about to exercise here might be as potent as that which he exercised across the seas, and bring home to the people of this continent—whether Liberal or Labour—the absolute necessity of subordinating all purposes to the one great purpose of winning in this great war. We might feel now that new life would be breathed into the dry bones of some of the State politicians, and that their consciences would be sufficiently quickened to recognise that neutrality, whether benevolent or otherwise, on this great question of universal and effective service was only a synonym for cowardice.

GREETINGS TO MR. HUGHES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Senator Pearce, Acting Prime Minister, telegraphed on behalf of the Federal Government to the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, welcoming him back to Australia, and congratulating him on the work he has done while abroad.

On behalf of the State Ministry, the Premier, Sir Alexander Peacock, sent the following telegram to the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, at Fremantle: "Self and colleagues send you heartiest welcome on your return to the Commonwealth after your splendid efforts on behalf of Australia and the Empire."

STATE SESSION.

MR. GRIFFITH'S POSITION

PROTEST BY MR. WADE.

CENSURE MOTION.

An attendance of 60 members of the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon evidenced the interest taken in the business forecasted in that day's "Herald." The House was late in assembling for business, owing to the fact that the Speaker, accompanied by officers of the House and members of both parties, had paid an official visit to the Governor for the purpose of presenting the Address-in-Reply. The galleries were well occupied throughout the greater part of the sitting. The presence of Mr. C. McDonald, Speaker of the Federal House of Representatives, who was accompanied by Mrs. McDonald, was noted in the front row of the Speaker's gallery. As soon as questions were disposed of, Mr. Wade launched his motion about the reinstatement of Mr. Arthur Griffith in the Ministry. All the Ministers were present in their places. Mr. Wade said he could see no need for his motion being looked upon as a motion of censure. It was, however, accepted in that light by the Government, and the debate went on throughout the sitting.

CENSURE MOTION.

THE PETROL INQUIRY.

The Premier having consented to the suspension of sessional business, the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Wade) moved:—

"In view of the report of the Royal Commissioner in the Petrol Inquiry, this House is of opinion that it is not desirable that the Honourable Arthur Griffith should remain a Minister of the Crown."

"I desire to approach this question absolutely free from heat," Mr. Wade said, "or any indication of party feeling or prejudice. I wish simply to place before the House the salient facts of the inquiry and its findings, and to leave it to the conscience and good sense of all members to draw their own conclusions with regard to the facts. I only intend to deal with facts that have not yet been put before the public, and to ask members to give a vote that is judicial, irrespective of who moves it, and irrespective of who is concerned. It is moved only out of consideration for what is right."

The motion was based on the finding and comments of the Commissioner, Mr. Justice Pring, said Mr. Wade. With regard to Morgan, there were three specific findings on three separate days—one in New South Wales, and two in Victoria. The findings were:—

"(1) That there is no evidence that Mr. Griffith was guilty of corruption or of any intention to share in any moneys illicitly paid.

"(2) That Mr. Morgan on three separate occasions, (a) on the 21st or 22nd December, 1915, to Mr. Black, (b) on the 7th January, 1916, to Mr. Wagstaff, (c) on the 28th February, to Mr. Wagstaff and Mr. Black, made improper and corrupt proposals that certain sums of money should be provided for a Minister or Ministers.

"(3) That Mr. Reed, on the 28th February, was fully cognisant of these proposals, and did not report them to his superiors."

HIS HONOR'S SUSPICIONS.

"With regard to Mr. Griffith," quoted Mr. Wade, from the Royal Commissioner's report, "there is no evidence that he was a party to any corrupt proposal, or that he was to share in any money which might be illicitly paid. But there are some circumstances of suspicion to which I think it my duty to refer. I cannot understand why an agent other than a Government officer should have been appointed. Mr. Reed had carried on the previous negotiations with the Anglo-Mexican Company, when Mr. Morgan was then acting on behalf of the company. Mr. Holman was examined as to the employment of agents by the Government. His evidence was that when the Government is known to be the party on one side, it is not the usual practice to employ an outside agent. But he said, 'occasionally, of course, when we want to get an option over property we do employ an agent, without allowing it to be known that he is acting for the Government, because there is a tendency to put things up when the Government is buyer.' I can understand this. But in the present case it was from the beginning stated that the Government was to be the buyer. It may be, of course, that the position did not occur to Mr. Griffith at the time, for, as he said, a Minister has a great many things to attend to, and must of necessity leave a great deal to his officers. Then the fact that Mr. Morgan made proposals which undoubtedly involve the Minister must give rise to a suspicion that he had some authority to make them, especially as he was trying to get all he could for himself, and if anyone else had to share in illicit payments his amount would be reduced."

These, Mr. Wade went onto say, were the findings and comments of a legal tribunal, after an inquiry which was exhaustive in character. That tribunal was one chosen by the Government, and the Royal Commissioner was the oldest puisne Judge, and one whose capacity was beyond question, and whose impartiality had never been impugned. His Honor was assisted in the inquiry by distinguished King's counsel. The findings of such a tribunal should carry great weight. But no one was infallible, and if those findings were open to doubt the House was fairly entitled to enter upon a discussion to see if there were any grounds which might weaken those findings, especially as a Minister's tenure of office was involved. Mr. Griffith himself was the first to impugn the findings of the Royal Commission. In the course of a published statement on May 19, the day after the announcement of the findings and comments of the Royal Commissioner, Mr. Griffith said:—"British justice has no place for these Scotch verdicts. Either I am guilty of corrupt practices or I am not. The whole of the facts were made available to Mr. Justice Pring, and he was asked to report on those facts. He does so quite judicially, and admits they show nothing whatever against me; but he chooses to assume and allege, not only without evidence, but in spite of it, that my conduct is suspicious." In the same statement Mr. Griffith said: "The fact of a criminal case being sub-judice prevents my combatting Mr. Justice Pring's 'suspicions,' and showing how each one of them is not only not supported by, but is in conflict with, the evidence."

The "Scotch verdict" which Mr. Griffith showed an unwillingness to accept, said Mr. Wade, was a form of verdict which had become a recognised part of British jurisprudence.

MINISTERIAL HONOUR.

Mr. Wade, continuing, said the Royal Commissioner found an issue adverse to Morgan, and an issue in favour of Mr. Griffith. Based on the difference in the issue as between Morgan and the Minister there were what were called corollaries—items of suspicion against the Minister. He took it that that matter was governed by the primary question as to whether those findings against Morgan could be supported or not. If they could not be supported, then the corollaries applying to Reed and Griffith did not apply. The only real point of friction between Morgan and Black in their evidence was as to what purpose the £15,000 was to be applied. When asked by the Royal Commissioner why he mentioned £15,000, Morgan said it was only an imaginary sum, and that he could have mentioned any amount, say, £20,000 or £25,000 to cover goodwill, land, etc., at Gore Bay. Morgan said he did not say the item of £15,000 was for a Minister or Ministers. The evidence of those two people—Black and Morgan—conflicted on the point as to whether a certain sum was to be used for improper purposes by a Minister or Ministers. There was another matter that was very material. Mr. Black gave evidence that in the course of the interview he said to Morgan, "Where does Reed come in?" Morgan replied, "Reed does not expect nor will he accept anything." Morgan was referred by the Royal Commissioner to that passage, and he said, "That is quite right; I told Black that." How, Mr. Wade asked, could that have arisen if there was not some discussion going on with regard to sharing proceeds in an improper way? It was very material, as showing the attitude of mind of Morgan during that conversation. If Morgan was there asking for a business recompense, for brokerage only, and there was not any question of anybody sharing improperly in that deal, how could the question be asked. "Where does Reed come in?" If the £15,000 was to be for the Minister or Ministers, it might follow very logically that Black would say, "Morgan is provided for by brokerage, the Minister is provided for; where does the other man come in?" That question became very material indeed in determining whether Black was correct when he said that an improper offer was made during that conversation.

Mr. Wade proceeded to review the history of the petrol inquiry, and quoted the Commissioner's finding with respect to Morgan. The criminal trial, he said, had been much more circumscribed. The commission lasted 16 days, and the trial only one, and certain evidence and features were before the commission which could not possibly be used against Morgan at the trial.

REED'S DISMISSAL.

Dealing with the appointment of Morgan by the Minister, Mr. Wade said that Morgan admitted at the Royal Commission that he knew very little about oil. Morgan said that he did not pose as an expert when he was selected as the Government agent in the petrol scheme. One of the suspicious circumstances in connection with the appointment of a man who was admittedly unqualified for the work was that there was no agreement in regard to remuneration. Reed, a prominent public servant, had been condemned and dismissed for what was characterised as grave misconduct in not having reported to the Minister the proposals which were made by Morgan to Mr. Wagstaff and Mr. Black. The ground for condemning Reed should be the ground for believing that the suspicions of the Royal Commissioner in regard to Mr. Griffith were well founded. If the result of the trial of Morgan cleared the Minister it should also break down the condemnation of Reed. (Opposition cheers.) It was claimed that the criminal trial had failed to show that Morgan made corrupt proposals on behalf of or in the interests of the Minister. Still the Government must have thought that the findings of the Royal Commission were unanswerable in the case of Reed when it decided to dismiss that officer. The Acting Premier, when questioned in the House, stated that Reed had been dismissed for not reporting to the Minister proposals by Morgan with alleged conditions for the payment of secret commissions. This brought them to an awkward dilemma. If the result of the criminal trial was fair ground for the reinstatement of Mr. Griffith as a Minister, was it not also fair ground for the reinstatement of Reed? (Opposition cheers.) Why should the unfortunate Civil servant be punished? (Opposition cheers.)

"No man," said Mr. Wade in conclusion, "should stand firm against his obvious duty, whatever might be his personal feelings. They should keep the high offices under the Crown free from any imputation of suspicion, and if they lived up to these ideals the country would appreciate them."

THE PREMIER'S DEFENCE.

Mr. Holman said that the more the matter was discussed the more confused it became, and the more the truth was concealed. The elements of the case were extremely simple, and could be summed up in a very small compass. There were the persons who were said to have been asked to find the money, the persons who approached them, and the Minister. The parties who were to find the money spoke with two voices, as did the persons who interviewed, while the Minister spoke with a single voice. The House could ignore the corroboration in the first two cases, and come to the fact that Morgan was said by Wagstaff to have asked for £15,000 for Mr. Griffith. Morgan denied that he had ever said anything of the kind. Mr. Griffith said he did not know that Morgan said such a thing. If he asked for £15,000 on his (the Minister's) behalf, he did it without his consent, and it was a swindle he was working on his own behalf. That was the case in its entirety. From beginning to end there was not one scintilla of evidence to connect the alleged conversations between Wagstaff and Morgan with Mr. Griffith. Morgan was in the employ of the Minister, and had become his agent for certain proper purposes, but not for any improper purposes. The only known interview between Morgan and Wagstaff was attended by Reed, who was at that time a trusted servant of the Government.

PURPOSE OF INQUIRY.

Mr. Justice Pring found that there was no evidence that Mr. Griffith was guilty of corruption, went on Mr. Holman. If Morgan had not been appointed by Mr. Griffith, and had not made any proposals, there would have been no inquiry at all. The inquiry was to endeavour to establish the circumstances of suspicion. It was because the circumstances of suspicion were known to exist that the inquiry was set afoot. Although those suspicious circumstances were there, Mr. Justice Pring found "there is no evidence that Mr. Griffith was guilty of any corruption or of any intention to share in any moneys illicitly paid." Assuming that Mr. Griffith was guilty, and that he had asked Morgan to try and get that £15,000, and that Morgan, in a spirit of loyalty, when before the Royal Commissioner, had endeavoured to shield the Minister; if there had been collusion between Morgan and the Minister, was Morgan, when he was placed on his trial, and his liberty was at stake, going to shield Mr. Griffith? At the trial nothing was brought against Mr. Griffith, and it had to be remembered that Mr. Griffith gave evidence against Morgan. The Government was satisfied that Mr. Griffith was honest, and placed Morgan on his trial.

COMMISSIONER'S OPINION.

Mr. Holman then referred to his letter to Mr. Justice Pring, asking whether an enlargement of his powers would enable him to probe more deeply the circumstances of suspicion. After a consultation with the Attorney-General, Mr. Justice Pring said there was no further evidence available, and as to legislation, he did not see what could be done by that. It was apparent to every legal mind in the House, said Mr. Holman, that there was no evidence of any kind against Mr. Griffith. At the close of the Royal Commission, Morgan was sent for his trial, and he (Mr. Holman) ventured to say that if there was any hidden mystery, the trial was the place to bring it out. After the amplest research, and the fullest inquiry, there was no evidence of any kind against Mr. Griffith. His colleagues then welcomed him back into their ranks, and took the fullest responsibility for doing so.

An Opposition member: What about Mr. Reed?

Mr. Holman: Whatever was done about Mr. Reed was done without conferring with Mr. Griffith. The action taken with regard to Mr. Reed was taken by Mr. Cann as Minister for Public Works. Mr. Reed's offence was against the discipline of the Public Service.

CAMPAIGN OF SLANDER.

Mr. Abbott: What is the position of Mr. Griffith if he did not inquire into the character of the man he employed?

Mr. Holman said that was a pertinent question, and he would leave it to Mr. Griffith to answer. "I repudiate, with contempt," he said, "the suggestion that there could be any linking up of the part played in that wretched affair by Mr. Griffith, and by the unfaithful public servant, Mr. Reed. What did Mr. Wade imagine could be done? Did he suggest that Mr. Griffith had been guilty of asking for a bribe in connection with the petrol matter? Would any man dare to rise and say that Mr. Griffith had tried to get money out of the British Imperial Oil Co.? (Ministerial cheers.) There is not one tittle of truth in the suggestion. Suspicions can be raised against any man." He (Mr. Holman) remembered about eight years ago, when a story was told him about a gentleman who belonged to Mr. Wade's party—about a blotting pad, a cheque, and a Minister. The Minister was said to have left his room for five minutes, and upon returning found nothing, and did nothing. In those days stories were as readily available as to-day, but in those days at least politicians' wives were sacred. In how many corners of the State had that stupid slander about his wife been circulated?

If any member of the House had any grounds for suspicion against any one of the Ministers he had only to approach him (Mr. Holman) as a private citizen, and an inquiry would at once be set afoot. There was no need to thunder on the floor of the House about it. (Ministerial cheers.) Two of the greatest men in England to-day had had to go through much humiliation, said Mr. Holman, to rebut lying slanders. If charges were to be laid against honourable members, they should be made to the head of the Government, and not be made the occasion for displays of super-virtuous enthusiasm on the floor of the House, as had been done in the present instance. (Ministerial cheers.)

MR. GRIFFITH'S REPLY.

"It was my own intention," said Mr. Griffith, "whether the Opposition moved in the matter or not, to take the first opportunity of explaining my connection with the petrol business to members of the House, and through them to the country. When, after a thorough investigation, the Royal Commissioner reported that there was no evidence to implicate me that should have been enough for the member for Gordon. We would have been able to accept his statement as to the purity of his motives if he and those who are behind him did not make such attacks part of their stock-in-trade. He has made half a dozen charges against me——"

Mr. Wade: Outside, too, and you dared not answer them.

"He said he could prove I was criminally connected with land speculators," Mr. Griffith continued, "in connection with the Suspension Bridge tramway, the Uhr's Point railway, and in numerous other instances. But when a Royal Commission was appointed he was dumb, and did not bring any evidence forward to maintain his charges. We can only assume that he saw in the general report of the Commissioner—not in his findings—a chance of making political capital by fastening on me some suspicion, which might be of value at the forthcoming election. His other charges were made against me prior to the last election, and the influence they had on the electors is shown by the fact that he is still on that side of the House."

Mr. Griffith went on to say that if he or any other Minister were to allow any man about whom he knew nothing to pledge the country to the expenditure of many thousands of pounds, he would not be fit for his position. Morgan, however, had been authorised to do just one thing—to ascertain whether a certain firm was prepared to sell its property, and how much it wanted for it. He had no further power, and there was no question of making a bargain. He (the Minister) had been authorised by the Government to make inquiries regarding the oil scheme, and he had sent for Reed, a trusted public servant, and told him to find out if any of the oil firms were prepared to do business. In suggesting to Reed that it might be necessary to employ an outside man so that the people concerned would not raise their price to the Government, he had given him a word of warning, and told him that charges of corruption might be levelled against the Minister, as had been levelled by Mr. Henley over another transaction. Reed had been given practically a free hand with regard to the initial stages, and he had submitted a scheme for the purchase of sufficient oil to fill State requirements, which the Minister thought so good that he had submitted it to the Cabinet. The scheme provided for an outlay of £96,000, and would have resulted in an annual profit of £126,000 to the State. At the present rate of petrol, the profit would have been £300,000. However, the Cabinet had turned it down.

MORGAN'S ENGAGEMENT.

It was in connection with these negotiations that he (Mr. Griffith) first met Mr. Morgan, who was the representative of two oil companies. He did not see Mr. Morgan again until the negotiations were started for the purchase of the local plant of the British Imperial Oil Company. Mr. Morgan was again introduced by Mr. Reed, the superintendent of stores. Looking back on what was then arranged, the only thing he (Mr. Griffith) regretted was that nothing definite was done in regard to remuneration. He left it to Mr. Reed to pay the expenses of the petrol inquiry by Mr. Morgan, and gave him £250 for the purpose. He felt that he was safe in leaving such matters to a trusted and responsible officer of the Works Department. Mr. Morgan had no authority to make any contract on behalf of the Government. Morgan's instructions were to act in his inquiries under Mr. Reed. Not a shilling could be paid to anyone until the whole proposal had been considered by the Cabinet. Without saying that there was collusion, he blamed Reed for allowing Morgan to claim brokerage, Reed knowing that Morgan was merely an agent with limitations, not a broker. He said this without believing that Reed was lending himself to any dishonest or corrupt agreement between Morgan and the representatives of the oil companies.

SECRET COMMISSIONS.

Was it reasonable to suppose, asked Mr. Griffith, that any Minister would sanction a scheme under which £32,000 a year was to be paid as commission to Morgan and members of the Ministry? Members should remember that brokerage and commission were to be shown on the face of the contract. What, then, became of all the talk about secret commission? With the secret commission cleared up the element of fraud disappeared. Both Mr. Wagstaff and Mr. Black admitted that the commission which was asked by Morgan was to be shown on the face of the contract. That being so, it would have been impossible to obtain the approval of the Ministry for the payment of the huge sum which had been spoken of as secret commission. While having full authority to make inquiries as a Government agent, Morgan, he would repeat, had no authority to make any bargain or enter into any contract on behalf of the Government. It appeared to him (Mr. Griffith) that the representatives of the British Imperial Oil Company had deliberately resorted to misrepresentation in connection with the secret commission money and payments to Ministers and others to kill the scheme of the State Government for nationalising the oil industry. In this regard the Australian representatives of the oil company had misled their board in London. (The Premier: "Hear, hear.")

If (Mr. Griffith continued) Mr. Wagstaff had believed that he as Minister had authorised an attempt at blackmail would Wagstaff have written to him on January 7 asking to be allowed to quote for oil supplies required by the Government? Mr. Wagstaff wished to kill the nationalisation proposal, and had stated that he thought he could achieve that object better by withholding the information than by disclosing it. Why when the offer was made by Morgan did not Wagstaff approach the Government and ask whether Morgan had any authority to make such an offer?

NO SUPPORT FOR SUSPICION.

The Judge, in summing up at the Morgan trial, had said to the jury:—"If you believe Black you must convict Morgan." It took the jury just 20 minutes to find Morgan not guilty. Mr. Justice Pring had told Mr. Lamb, K.C., that he would not deal with probabilities or suspicions. Mr. Ralston, K.C. (Mr. Griffith's counsel), had then said to him (Mr. Griffith) that there was no evidence against him—that the Judge was only going to deal with facts. If counsel had known that Mr. Justice Pring was going to talk about suspicions those suspicions would have been combated. He (Mr. Griffith) was very sorry if Mr. Justice Pring or any other man harboured suspicions as to his integrity. If there had been any evidence or anything that looked like evidence against him he would have resigned his position. If the Judge had reported that there was evidence against him he probably would, notwithstanding the fact that he knew he was straightforward, have resigned his position. But when there was no evidence at all against him should he, simply because a man harboured a suspicion, resign his position and throw a slur upon himself, his family, and his colleagues? There was never any other thought in his mind than that of dealing fair and square, and getting a fair bargain for the people of the State. (Ministerial cheers.)

Ever since he had taken office as Minister for Works, and attacked vested interests, concluded Mr. Griffith, there had never been an opportunity missed of making imputations against him. He had never endeavoured to make money for himself. There were opportunities available, as every member knew, but he had never taken advantage of them. Charges which were unfounded and groundless had been made by members who had prostituted the privileges of Parliament for political purposes. Charges, and charges, and charges, but never one word of evidence to justify them, or to reflect upon his actions as a public man and an administrator. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Haynes said the integrity of the Judge was of more importance to the community than the position of Mr. Griffith, in or out of the Ministry. Not content with attempting to shake the confidence of the public in Mr. Justice Pring, who returned a verdict of suspicion, he said, Mr. Griffith had attacked the jury system in a scandalous and most insolent manner.

MR. WADE'S REPLY.

Mr. Wade, in replying, saw the burden of Mr. Griffith's speech was that Mr. Justice Pring had misled his counsel by saying at the start of the inquiry that he would not deal with probabilities or suspicions. Mr. Ralston had delivered an address which took four or five hours, therefore it could not be said that every opportunity was not given to put Mr. Griffith's case. The Judge, although he could not convict on suspicion, was entitled to say there were circumstances of suspicion.

On a purely party vote the resolution was defeated by 37 votes to 26. Messrs. H. D. Morton and Page were the only members not directly associated with the Labour party who voted with the Government against the resolution.

At 12.5 a.m. the House rose till 4.30 p.m. to-day.

WAR ANNIVERSARY.

Replying to Dr. Arthur, the Premier said that he would consult with his colleagues with a view to seeing whether it would be possible to arrange for the House to rise at the tea adjournment next Friday, in order to allow members to take part in the meetings being arranged in connection with the second anniversary of the war.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BILL.

The Minister for Labour and Industry, Mr. Estell, gave notice that he would move on the following day that the Workmen's Compensation Bill should be restored to the business paper at the stage at which it was interrupted last session.

CASE OF GUNNER SMITH.

Replying to a number of questions about the case of Gunner Smith, the Premier said that he would certainly go into the matter from every point of view.

SIR WILLIAM M'MILLAN'S CRITICISM.

Mr. M'Girr asked the Premier whether he would take into consideration the damaging effects likely to result from such criticism as that levelled at the Labour party in Australia by Sir William M'Millan, according to recent cables from Vancouver?

Mr. Holman said that if any notice was to be taken of Sir William M'Millan's remarks about extravagance they could not possibly be applied to New South Wales, and must therefore have reference to some other part of Australia. (Laughter.)

WHEAT SHIPPING CONFERENCE.

Mr. Ball asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would lay on the table a copy of the report of the conference held in Melbourne last August, at which he said the matter of the Australian wheat pool was decided?

Mr. Grahame said that the wheat pool was not decided at that conference. The August conference was on the matter of shipping. The proceedings of that conference were the property of the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, and could therefore only be made available by him.

HOTEL KOSCIUSKO.

Replying to questions asked by Mr. Cusack, the Premier stated that the total capital invested in the Hotel Kosciusko was £49,049. The earnings, amounting to £29,355, showed a loss. The total expenditure had been £45,389. The date to which the figures had been made up was October 31, 1915, which was the last date for which stocktaking figures were available.

NEW ABATTOIRS AT HOMEBUSH.

In answer to Mr. Wade, the Minister for Public Works, Mr. Cann, said that the cost of the abattoirs at Homebush Bay up to June 30, 1916, had been £570,707. The estimated further expenditure necessary to complete the authorised additional building works was £40,720, to which another £15,000 should be added for engineering, road, electrical, and railway works. These sums do not include the estimated cost of the saleyards and export works.

FLEMINGTON-DARLING ISLAND RAILWAY.

Replying to Mr. Wade, the Minister for Public Works, Mr. Cann, said that the cost to June 30, 1916, of the construction of the Flemington-Glebe Island-Darling Island railway line was £1,340,886.

VACANCIES IN PUBLIC SERVICE.

Mr. Dooley asked the Attorney-General whether he was aware that the Public Service Board always advertised vacancies in the service, although in some cases it was clearly understood that a certain person was to be appointed. Would the Minister have a paragraph inserted in such advertisements to show that they were inserted merely to comply with the Public Service Act?

Mr. Hall promised to consider the suggestion.

STATE BATTERY.

Mr. Estell said that 12 months ago an agreement was entered into between the Mines Department and certain gentlemen at Canbelego for the establishment of a State battery there. Since that time the gentleman referred to had refused to complete the agreement. Mr. Thrower had made certain representations, and he (Mr. Estell) was having an inspection carried out at Stuart Town.

WHEAT SHIPMENTS.

Replying to Mr. Cusack, the Minister for Agriculture said it was not a fact, as stated by Mr. Paxton, that a steamer was now loading wheat in the harbour at 110/ per ton. The wheat was being loaded at 115/ per ton—5/ less than the ruling price. He (Mr. Grahame) had made a statement that the wheat taken from Australia cost the farmer 85/ to 90/ per ton freight. That was correct. Six ships—about 30,000 tons out of 300,000 secured—had been paid for at 100/ and over. The six ships chartered above 100/ per ton were mostly for the carrying of Imperial flour. The whole of the freight from New South Wales had been at the flat rate of 85/ and 90/. There was one at 118/3, but to counterbalance that freight had left Australia for 59/, 60/, and 76/. By the end of October half the wheat of Australia would be transported to the other side of the world. Next week he would introduce a bill asking for certain powers.

FEDERAL FINANCES.

STATE ADVANCES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Desiring to make a complete financial statement when the Federal Parliament reassembles on August 30, the Commonwealth Treasurer, Mr. Higgs, did not make available to-day the revenue returns for the month of July. Before this statement will be complete Mr. Higgs will have to receive from the Imperial authorities an adjustment of accounts, in which will be included Australia's obligation in respect of Australian troops quartered in England.

Mr. Higgs also cabled to England to-day for particulars regarding the next advance of money by the Imperial authorities to the Commonwealth Ministry, under an agreement previously entered into. The State Ministries, with the exception of New South Wales, are of course keenly interested in the reply to this, as they will be given, from the advance, money with which to carry out their programmes of public works.

DAMAGED WHEAT.

VICTORIAN ALLEGATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the Legislative Assembly to-day Mr. Sinclair moved the adjournment in order to discuss the handling of wheat at Williamstown. He said he would not withdraw one word of what he stated last week, namely, that there were at Williamstown thousands of bags of smutty wheat, and hundreds of thousands of bags of wet wheat; also that a large quantity was washed ashore between St. Kilda and Port Melbourne last Saturday. He saw 20 truckloads which were wet and in a disgraceful condition for want of tarpaulins. There was practically no supervision, and a committee should be appointed to inquire into the matter.

The Premier said he had police reports that the allegations about wheat being washed up in the bay were incorrect. A report made regarding the wheat in trucks showed that portion was damaged, but not 10 per cent. of it. More care was being taken this season than in any previous one.

Mr. Bowser urged that there should be an inquiry embracing all wheat stacks in the State.

The Premier ultimately promised to refer the matter to the Wheat Advisory Board for inquiry.

"CALLED HIM A GERMAN."

FINED FOR DEFAMATORY LANGUAGE.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

George Cox, a baker, was to-day fined £5 and costs for calling Carl August William Moritz a German, and refusing to work with him. The two men were employees in Brobble's bakery, and during March, Cox, who has two boys at the front, refused to work with Moritz. This refusal led to a strike, after which Cox left his job, and Moritz was reinstated, and given an increase in wages. Moritz admitted in court to-day that his father was German-born, that his mother was of German descent, and that he was a full-blooded German, but, being born in Australia, he was a British subject. The magistrate considered the expression used by Cox defamatory. In addition to a fine Cox was ordered to pay £2 2s costs.

THE NORTH SEA FIGHT.

AUSTRALIA'S CONGRATULATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Commonwealth Ministry has received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. A. Bonar Law, a letter of thanks for its expression of Australia's satisfaction at the result of the North Sea battle. It reads as follows:—"I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram of July 6, and, on behalf of his Majesty's Government, to request that you will convey to your Ministers and to the people of the Commonwealth of Australia an expression of the satisfaction with which they received your message on the occasion of the recent naval battle in the North Sea. The message of sympathy with the relatives of those who have fallen in this battle is deeply appreciated."

VICTORIA AND THE WAR.

MOTION IN PARLIAMENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Legislative Council has adopted a resolution, expressing the inflexible determination of Victoria to assist in carrying on the war to a successful conclusion.

DEATH OF CENTENARIAN.

Mrs. E. J. Knapp, of Havant, The Oaks-avenue, Neutral Bay, died on Friday evening at the age of 101 years. She was born at Mount St. Jean, near the field of Waterloo, on June 12, 1815—six days before the battle of Waterloo. Her husband, to whom she was married in 1834, died in 1875, at Braidwood. He was attached to the staff of Sir Thomas Mitchell (Surveyor-General of New South Wales). The remains of the deceased were interred at Rookwood on Saturday afternoon.

WAR ANNIVERSARY.

A meeting in connection with the second anniversary of the war will be held in the Town Hall, Sydney, at 8 p.m., on Friday next.

P.L.L. NOMINATIONS.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The P.L.L. last night adopted the following nominations for the coming Legislative Assembly elections:—Willyama: Messrs. M. P. Considine, president of the A.M.A.; W. B. Driscoll, Mayor; J. Wright, M.L.A. Sturt: Messrs. J. H. Cann, M.L.A., and W. D. Barnett, secretary of the A.M.A.

WAR LOAN.

APPLICATIONS CLOSE.

BUSY DAY FOR BANKS.

Yesterday saw the close of applications for bonds in the new War Loan.

"It is too early to indicate what the subscriptions are likely to amount to," said the governor of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. Denison Miller) yesterday evening, "but this loan will be conspicuous at any rate for the number of small and middle-class investors who are supporting it very heartily throughout the whole country."

For the last few days the various banks have been crowded with applicants, and yesterday saw the final rush, to meet which extra assistance had been obtained from the various branches of the Commonwealth Bank. Yesterday's mail was a very heavy one, and apart from the mailed applications those made through the post-offices and various banks will have to be taken into account before the final result can be made known. In Victoria the War Council made special efforts in the direction of canvassing and appealing to the public, and a good result is also expected from that State.

With regard to small investors, the lead given by the Tobacco Company in taking up bonds for employees and allowing the latter to pay them off at 2s 6d per week for every £10 was followed by many big firms, and the responses generally were good. The Commonwealth Government's scheme permitting payment by instalments also proved popular. The tobacco companies' employees throughout Australia have taken up the loan as follows:—N.S.W.: 1282 applicants, £23,400 subscribed. Victoria: 831, £16,810; Queensland, 47, £860; South Australia: 30, £470; W.A.: 27, £600. This makes a total of 2197 employees, taking up £42,140. Fifty-two per cent. of the total employees have subscribed. The British-Australasian Tobacco Company Proprietary, Ltd., has lodged an application for £100,000 worth of bonds.

The Barnet Glass Rubber Company, Ltd., has decided to take up £10,000 in the War Loan, and the management and employees are taking up £3,250, making a total of £13,250.

The employees of Marcus Clark and Co., Ltd., have subscribed, through the firm's instalment scheme, for bonds amounting to £4560. The employees of Washington H. Soul, Pattinson, and Co., Ltd., have subscribed £1200, and the employees of Sargents, Ltd., have taken up bonds to the value of £2500.

The Grand Lodge of the United Ancient Order of Druids, Friendly Society, has invested a further sum of £5000 in war bonds, which will bring the sum invested to over £10,000.

TREASURER'S STATEMENT.

FIGURES EXPECTED TO-DAY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The subscription lists for the new War Loan closed to-day. When seen to-night the Federal Treasurer, Mr. Higgs, said it had been impossible, so far, to make up the figures. He expected, however, that the governor of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. D. Miller) would be able during to-morrow to give him approximate figures, and he would lose no time in making as full a statement as the details permitted.

Although the Treasurer could go very little further than this to-night, he intimated that he knew of about £6,000,000 having been subscribed in large amounts. This sum may be considerably increased by further information from Mr. Miller, and probably will be so. There was also evidence, Mr. Higgs added, of great success having attended the issue of the £10 bonds in Victoria. In New South Wales the small investors had responded less liberally than in Victoria. From the other States information upon this phase of the issue was still wanting.

WATER SUPPLY.

EFFECT OF THE RAIN.

The catchment area has benefited by the rain, but more is needed there yet.

Since the rain started on Friday, up till 6 o'clock last night, the registrations have been as follows:—Cataract, 1.66in; Broughton Pass, 1.87in; Wilton, 1.67in; Cordeaux River, 2.58in; and Sherbrooke, 2.16in.

There is now about 20,000,000 gallons in the Manly reservoir. The capacity of that reservoir is 80,000,000 gallons, so that a good deal more rain is required there, too, to begin the summer well.

WAR PENSIONS.

ANNUAL LIABILITY, £399,526.

10,135 CLAIMS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The pensions returns issued by the Commonwealth Treasurer, Mr. Higgs, give interesting particulars of the Commonwealth war pensions, maternity allowance claims, and old-age and invalid pensions.

Up to the end of July, 10,135 war pensions had been granted, involving an annual liability of £399,526. The liability in respect of the 114,851 old-age and invalid pensions in force is now about £2,900,000, while £52,560 is required to meet the 10,512 maternity allowance claims granted during July.

Referring in detail to war pensions, the return states that in New South Wales 5150 pensions have been claimed, and 3208 granted, an annual liability of £135,914. The Victorian figures are: Claimed 6002, granted 3563, annual liability £128,698. For the whole six States the figures are: Claimed 16,004, granted 10,135, liability £399,526.

TRAIN COLLISION.

SMASH AT LIDCOMBE.

A train collision occurred at Lidcombe yesterday evening, as the result of which slight damage was done to rolling stock, delay was caused to traffic, and two passengers were injured.

The 5.18 train from Sydney to Eskbank was standing at the points at Lidcombe when the 5.27 train from Sydney to Picton approached. The Picton train was travelling with sufficient speed to throw the rear carriage of the stationary train completely off the line, and the permanent way was considerably cut about. The damage to the trains, however, was not great.

The two passengers who were injured were seated in the carriage that was thrown off the line. John William Field, 24, a soldier now in camp at the Sydney Show Ground, was travelling to Penrith, where his people reside. He received injuries to the head and back. Miss Grace Stann, 23, of Manly, who was also going to Penrith to visit her sister, was thrown against the opposite partition of a compartment, and received a wound on the forehead. Both were taken to the Granville Cottage Hospital.

A breakdown gang was sent from Sydney to repair the damage to the permanent way and points, and soon the road was clear.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

A LARGE DEFICIT.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

The financial returns for July, the first month of the new financial year, were made available last night. The revenue for the month totalled £221,691, as against £210,334 for the corresponding period of last year; while the expenditure last month amounted to £354,964, as contrasted with £361,680 for July of the previous year. There was therefore a deficit on the month's transactions of £133,273. The accumulated deficit, which at the end of June was £1,361,031, now stands at £1,494,304.

BROKEN HILL FATALITY.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

Ronald Murray, a fitters' labourer on the Central Mine, was run over by a truck on the Central Mine this afternoon and killed. Deceased, who was 35 years of age, was a married man, and leaves two children.

DUTCH STEAMER SUNK.

STRIKES A MINE.

LONDON, July 31.

A message from the Hague states that the Koningin Wilhelmina (1964 tons), a mail steamer of the Zeeland line, struck a mine and sunk off the North Hinder Light. The vessel's stern is still above water. The passengers and crew were taken off by boats to the lightship.

Later accounts state that three of the crew perished and seven were injured.

ANGLO-ITALIAN TRADE

LONDON, Aug. 1.

Mr. McKenna (Chancellor of the Exchequer) announced in the House of Commons that an Anglo-Italian corporation had been registered for the purpose of furthering the commerce of the two countries. It had a capital of £1,000,000, and the Government was contributing an annual subsidy of £50,000 for ten years.

THE BLACK LIST.

AMERICA'S TRADE SENTIMENTS.

WASHINGTON, July 31.

It is generally believed the United States' protest against the black list is intended to convey to Britain the disapproval of the United States of trade discrimination, such as was laid down by the Paris Conference.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

LONDON, July 31.

The R.M.S. Khyber, which left Sydney on June 10, has arrived at London. The R.M.S. Makura, which left Sydney on July 6, has arrived at Vancouver.

The steamer Cacique has left San Francisco for Sydney. The American four-masted schooner W. H. Talbot has left Puget Sound for Melbourne.

MISCELLANEOUS WAR NEWS

Brigadier-General J. M. Gordon has received an appointment in the Munitions Department.

A Berlin message states that Mr. Taylor, of the American Embassy, has made an investigation and denies the German stories about shortage of milk for babies.

AUSTRALIAN SHIPS.

CARRIAGE OF WHEAT.

LONDON, July 31.

London shipping circles are surprised at Mr. Jensen's announcement that he has received the offer of six steamers, the offer being made direct to Melbourne. The announcement has aroused further discussion regarding the desirability of purchasing steamers. It is understood Mr. Hughes does not intend to make further purchases.

Some people are of the opinion it is by no means the cheapest way of moving the wheat crop. Others consider the Government competition will be unfair unless it is liable to the excess profits tax.

Meanwhile, there is great difficulty in securing steamers for the carriage of wheat. The Admiralty has released those under its control, among which are Mr. Hughes's purchases. Many more will be urgently needed months before Mr. Hughes's fleet is fully available, but the Admiralty has not released any additional steamers, on the ground that Mr. Hughes, by the purchase of his fleet, has obtained all he wants.

U.S. PRESIDENCY.

MR. C. E. HUGHES'S NOMINATION.

NEW YORK, July 31.

Mr. C. E. Hughes, in accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency, advocated protection, sufficient to maintain American standards of living.

He said that he favours woman suffrage, and a stronger foreign policy. "If the Government had really meant a strict bring-to-account threat, and had shown it was prepared to vindicate such a position, there would have been no Lusitania tragedy," he said.

Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, who was defeated by Mr. Hughes in the contest for the Republican nomination, strongly approves of Mr. Hughes's speech.

Some of the newspapers are disappointed that Mr. Hughes failed to declare against the German-Americans.

[The two principal nominees for the position of President are Mr. Woodrow Wilson (Democrat), the present President, and Mr. Charles E. Hughes, lately a Justice of the United States Supreme Court. The Socialists, Socialist Labour, and Prohibitionist parties may also submit nominations, but their candidates, usually, are not seriously considered. The election takes place next November.]

BOXING.

LONDON, July 31.

Jimmy Wilde knocked out Johnny Hughes in the 10th round at Kensal Green.

WATTLE DAY.

PICTURESQUE CELEBRATIONS.

FLOWERS FOR SOLDIERS.

What the rose is to England and the lily to France, the wattle may become to Australia and the young nation controlling her destinies. Though it is only a very few years since Wattle Day was included in the national festal calendar, the sentiment attaching to the dainty golden blossoms has already grown very strong, and the Wattle Day movement has spread to every State.

Sydney was a golden city yesterday. Nearly everyone wore a spray or boutonniere of wattle. The national flower was in evidence everywhere. Numbers of motor cars were garlanded with the blossom, and many tea rooms, restaurants, and shops employed it effectively in interior ornamentation, so that not alone the beauty but much of the fragrance of the country was brought to the city.

The Soldiers' Club was a perfect bower of wattle. Mrs. Birrell-Robertson and Mrs. Clunies-Ross, with a number of other workers, distributed sprigs of blossom to all the soldiers. At the railway station Mrs. Froggatt, assisted by Misses Froggatt, Cambage, and Peak, was in charge of the distributions. Mrs. Kettlewell was in charge of the party that visited the Randwick Military Hospital, Miss Kettlewell and others went to the garrison hospital; Mrs. Birrell-Robertson visited The Warren, while Mrs. Gormley and Misses A. Thompson, Cambage, Mitchell, Barling, and Butters attended to the troops on the Show Ground. The various convalescent homes were visited by parties directed by Mrs. Cecil Hordern, and the Misses Froggatt, Whiteman, Allen, and Guille. Mr. Maiden (president of the Wattle Day League), accompanied by Mrs. Maiden, Mrs. Kettlewell, Mrs. Spencer, and the Misses A. Thompson and Ward, visited the Liverpool camp. The soldiers at Cronulla and Menangle were not forgotten, crates of blossom being sent them by the league.

The Kindergarten Union took advantage of Wattle Day to sell buttons at a shilling apiece. The proceeds of that effort are to go toward providing more kindergartens for the children in the poorer districts.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Wattle Day was celebrated to-day, and the flower was on sale at stalls erected in many parts of the city.

RECRUITING.

Eighty-seven men volunteered at Victoria Barracks yesterday, and sixty-five were accepted.

A wet Monday generally means a falling-off in the best day's recruiting out of the seven, but in spite of the rain yesterday a fair number of men offered to change civilian garb for military uniform. Among them were an upholsterer, an ironmonger, an accountant, a couple of men from the railways, several labourers and clerks. Men from the country were not wanting and farmers and station hands from many parts of the State faced the recruiting officer. Others included a law student, a woolwasher, a merchant, a musician, a sheepbreeder, a shop assistant, and a tailor.

IN OTHER STATES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Of 88 men who volunteered to-day 47 were accepted.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Forty-three recruits were accepted in Queensland to-day. The enlistments now total 39,300.

PRESENTATIONS TO SOLDIERS.

At Hillgrove last week three returned soldiers—Trooper Goodwin and Privates Ed. Whalan and Fred. Hartnoll—were entertained, each being presented with a travelling bag. The presentations were made by Mr. J. C. Martin, president of the Hillgrove Football Club.

At the Ryde Town Hall on Saturday night Sapper H. W. Pietersen, Gunner P. Kingsmill, and Privates Henry Grangier and J. Armstrong were tendered a farewell social by the townspeople. Over 500 men have gone to the front from the Ryde district.

Gunner Douglas Walsh was entertained in the Goolagong Hall and presented with a purse of sovereigns.

BALLINA, Tuesday.

The Rev. N. N. Hunter, of the Methodist Church, was entertained by the congregation last night and presented with a purse of sovereigns prior to his departure to take up duty as chaplain on a troopship.

MELBA'S APPEAL.

FOR THE RUSSIANS.

ATTITUDE OF THE MUSICIANS.

The Musicians' Union, which was to have furnished the orchestral players over and above those already employed by J. C. Williamson, Ltd., at Her Majesty's Theatre (who also belong to the union), has pointed out that three afternoon rehearsals and a matinee performance constitute a burden in the cause of charity they are unwilling to bear, and that £3 3s for the actual performance, of which they would return one guinea by booking a seat each, would meet their idea of the situation. Mme. Melba and Mr. Hugh J. Ward have decided under these circumstances, the house being already sold out at one guinea, that the tax on the Russian Red Cross charity would be too great, and that the operatic scenes had better be given without orchestral accompaniment. Under the new arrangement, which it is felt that the public will accept in a cordial spirit of sympathy with the war movement, Mr. Frank St. Leger will play the score on a grand piano, and he left the military camp near Melbourne, where he is in training for the front, at Mme. Melba's telegraphed request, and arrived here on Monday. Mr. Ernest Truman has volunteered his services as organist, and rehearsals have already been conducted entirely to the diva's satisfaction. Owing to the heavy rain yesterday, there are still some 10s seats available in the gallery, in which connection all arrangements are duly notified in another column.

Yesterday Mme. Melba received three more cheques for £50, the donors being Mr. [illegible], M.L.C., Misses J. A. and Maude Perks (Bowral), and Mr. W. G. Jira. This makes 17 £50 donations to date.

At the performance of "The Belle of New York" to-night two boxes will be reauctioned for the matinee. These have been given by two of the successful bidders last Saturday—Miss Florence Young, who bid £40, and a gentleman who bid £90 in the name of New Zealand. The latter has placed a reserve of 50 guineas on the box.

The matinee will begin to-morrow at 2 o'clock.

MUNITIONS EXPLOSION.

TWO ARRESTS MADE.

NEW YORK, July 31.

Two railway warehouse officials have been arrested and charged with manslaughter as a result of the explosion of munitions.

Floating boxes of explosives continue to be a menace to shipping.

FINANCIAL.

THE UNION BANK.

The inspector of the Union Bank of Australia, Limited, has been informed by cable that at a meeting of proprietors, held in London on Monday, a dividend of £1/5/ per share, and a bonus of 10/ per share, together equal to [illegible] per cent. per annum, were declared, and that £71,374 was carried forward.

GOVERNMENT TRADING.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN EXPERIENCE.

The trading concerns of the Western Australian Government in place of showing an expected profit of £12,236, resulted in a net loss of £31,661. The revenue amounted to £604,316, being 5 per cent. over the estimate; the expenditure was £635,497, which was 12 per cent. above the estimate. The concerns in which revenue was greater than expenditure are ferries, hotels, steamships, sawmills, brickworks, quarries, Kalgoorlie Abattoirs, Metropolitan abattoirs and saleyards, meat stalls, refrigerating works, Perth, city markets, Albany cold stores. Deficits were shown by implement works, fisheries, milk suppliers, aborigines' cattle station.

AUSTRALIAN WOOD PIPE COMPANY.

The report of the Australian Wood Pipe Company, covering the year ended June 30, shows net profits amounting to £4229, which, with £540 brought forward, makes £4769 available. The directors propose to pay a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum, including interim dividend, absorbing £4290, and to carry forward £569. The following comparison may be made:—

	Six months ended June 30, 1914.	Year ended June 30, 1915.	Year ended June 30, 1916.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Mick Simmons, Ltd., was held on Monday. The balance-sheet and accounts for the year, particulars of which have already appeared, were received and adopted. Mr. J. Goodheim was re-elected a director, and Messrs. F. J. Smith and Johnson were re-elected auditors for the ensuing year.

The wool sales opened yesterday. 3668 bales were offered, and including private transactions 3802 were sold.

Good sound stapled lines of new clip greasy merino wool ruled 5 per cent. higher than at last auctions.

Crossbreds were firm at late rates.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company, Limited, held yesterday (Tuesday), Mr. John R. Hall in the chair, the report and balance-sheet, particulars of which have already appeared, was adopted. The chairman mentioned that the Commonwealth War Loan had been subscribed to, and the employees assisted to take up bonds. An extraordinary meeting followed, resolutions altering the articles of association being agreed to.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

AN AGENT'S POSITION.

C.T. writes:—

For some time I have held an agency for a firm outside of Australia on the following terms, viz., 5 per cent. commission on sales, no other remuneration, as other service rendered beyond securing and passing the order, do not handle the goods sold in any way, or collect any money, the goods being sold f.o.b. port of shipment, and drawn against through the usual banking channels. Am I an agent within the meaning of the Income Tax Act (Federal)?

Yes.

PROFIT ON A LEASE.

Your inquirer states a case:—

(1.) A bought a lease and business for £1000, and shortly after purchased the freehold of the premises. A then sold to B a new lease of 10 years, and business for £1500. In forwarding Federal return would it be right to deduct amount of the first transaction, viz., £1000, and show a profit of £500?

(2.) C bought a business and sold again at a profit. Is this profit taxable, or should it be considered as increase of capital?

(1) and (2): There is an increment of capital in each case, and under the Federal Act the increment is not included in income.

J.A.L.—A company does not pay Federal income tax on the whole of its profits, but on its undistributed profits. Each shareholder includes his dividend in his income tax return, and is assessed according to his total income. A company pays State income tax on the whole of its profits. The shareholder does not pay on his dividend.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The heavy rain which prevailed through the greater part of yesterday effectually prevented any considerable volume of business. On such a day as yesterday brokers are not encouraged by the houses. Groceries locally were without any quotable change of rates. The first quotation for new season's Alaska salmon was received. The cable gave the price of salt red Alaska 1lb talls at 32/7 per case of four dozen, on the freight basis of 24 dollars, and for flats 35/3. Cream of tartar and tartaric acid were again weaker. Cream of tartar was offering locally at 1/9, but there was little doubt that even that price could be bettered with a little pressing.

Oils also were slow yesterday. The local price of linseed was without alteration, but there was a firm disposition in the market, in consequence of a further rise of /0½ in the London price of Blundell, Spence's oil, making a rise of /1½ in two days. The cable quotation was 2/11¼ f.o.b. Turpentine and white-lead were steady at late rates.

As jute merchants continue extremely cautious with regard to credits, the volume of business passing in season's deliveries of cornsacks is small. Yesterday a few orders from the country for October-November delivery were booked at 8/9 net to rails. Woolpacks were weaker at 3/10 net. There was practically nothing doing in branbags.

S.S. ADELAIDE.

The Sydney Chamber of Commerce has received, by courtesy of the Premier's office, copy of the following cablegram from Sir Thomas B. Robinson:—"In order to dry dock steamship Adelaide it may be necessary to discharge stores and reload part of cargo. Owners of cargo should know this for the purpose of insurance. Am now considering advisability of putting supercargo on board during the voyage to Australia."

LONDON METAL QUOTATIONS.

The Australian Metal Exchange reports that the London metal (middle) quotations for July 31 were:—

Copper.—Standard, spot, £111/5/ (unchanged); three months, £109/5/ (£1 higher); Electrolytic, £125 (£1 higher) per ton.

Lead.—Soft, foreign, spot, £28/5/ (5/ higher); forward, £27/5/ (10/ higher) per ton.

Spelter.—Spot, £60 (unchanged); forward, £50 (£5 lower) per ton.

Tin.—Standard, spot, £168/12/6 (7/6 higher); three months, £169/7/6 (7/6 higher) per ton.

Silver.—Standard, spot, 30 9-16d, a rise of ⅛d per ounce.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday was 125 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The State wheat office advises that the following are the prices for wheat and flour:—

Wheat for export as grain: For Africa, New Zealand, and South Sea Islands.—5/1¼ per bushel, f.o.b.

Wheat for the manufacture of export flour.—4/9 per bushel on trucks, Sydney.

Wheat for flour for local consumption, and prime quality chick (that is, f.a.q. wheat).—4/3 per bushel on trucks, Sydney.

It will be observed that so low has the standard f.a.q. descended, that it is now classed as prime quality chick wheat. It might be retorted that prime quality chick wheat has ascended to the f.a.q. standard.

LAST WEEK'S EXPORTS.

Shipments of wheat, flour, and butter from the port of Sydney for the week ended July 29, according to the Customs-house returns, were:—

Wheat (bushels).—To United Kingdom, 135,255; South Sea Islands, 29. Total, 135,284 bushels.

Flour (200lb bags).—To New Zealand, 1946; United Kingdom, 2206; Hongkong, 500; South Sea Islands, 2584; British New Guinea, 12. Total, 7247 bags.

Butter.—The only shipment was a parcel of 21 boxes of 56lb to the South Sea Islands.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 2490 tons of wheat and 125 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 20,250 fat sheep were penned; the bulk of the yarding being good to prime quality, and consisting mainly of crossbred wethers, though the proportion of merino wethers showed a slight increase. There was a good attendance of the trade and a few outside buyers, and the market at the opening was very brisk at a decided advance for all good sorts. The rise, however, was not evenly sustained, and the values fluctuated materially, and the close of the market showed prices to be but slightly above those of last week, with inferior and useful sorts slightly weaker.

Quotations:—Prime crossbred wethers 39/9 to 46/9, extra to 49/6, odd wethers higher; good ditto ditto, 34/3 to 39/, seconds 31/ to 33/, inferior to 29/9; prime crossbred ewes 36/4 to 40/2, extra to 42/2, odd pens to 44/3; good ditto ditto, 30/ to 34/6, others, from 22/1; prime merino wethers 31/ to 35/6, extra to 37/, odd lots higher; good ditto ditto 28/ to 28/9, seconds 22/ to 25/, inferior from 15/9; merino ewes, from 24/ to 26/6.

In the section for fat lambs 5000 were penned, only a small proportion being of prime quality. For this class the demand was strong, and prices were occasionally on a higher level. Other sorts were dull of sale throughout at about recent values. Quotations:—Prime 31/ to 37/3, extra to 39/3, odd lambs to 42/; good, 25 to 28/; seconds, 21/ to 24/; inferior, from 15/. About 300 of this season's sold at from 15/ to 36/.

PRODUCE.

THE STORED BUTTER.

GOVERMENT PERMITS EXPORT.

Mr. Hall, on being interviewed regarding the reported export of Government stored butter, said that the statement was quite correct, and that permits for the sending away interstate of a percentage of the quantity now held had been given. At the end of last week there remained in the store between 5000 and 6000 boxes, of which the Coastal Farmers' Company held 2600, the North Coast Company 1500, and the Berrima District Company something under 1000—all companies which had given hearty support to the scheme, the two former companies putting in between them 14,000 boxes. "In view of the improved weather conditions, and the prospect of an early spring, I conferred with the Minister for Agriculture, and, with the advice of the expert officers of the department, arrangements were then made to allow holders to export a small amount of their stores. These men," continued the Attorney-General, "helped the Government by storing their butter when help was required, and now that the need for retaining the whole quantity there is past I see no reason to prevent their getting the slight benefit of the higher prices obtainable in the other States. This will, to some extent, compensate them for the extra profit they may have missed through putting their butter into store."

DAIRY.

COLD STORED BUTTER FOR MELBOURNE.

The Attorney-General, Mr. Hall, has granted permission to two Sussex-street houses to export to Melbourne portion of the butter which they hold in store under the terms of the winter supply scheme. It is claimed by some of the other houses which have disposed of their winter stocks in Sydney at from 140/ to 144/8 per cwt. that this action of the Attorney-General is most unfair. "If we were obliged to sell our butter at the New South Wales proclaimed prices," they ask, "why should these two particular houses be allowed to ship portion of their holding to Melbourne, where they will probably be able to secure 150/?" When spoken to regarding the matter, Mr. A. S. Jones, secretary of the Winter Supply Committee, said that Mr. Hall did not propose to allow all the cold stored butter to be shipped out of the State. The Attorney-General was of the opinion that there was more butter in store than would be wanted, and he was taking prompt action to dispose of the surplus in order that the Government might not have to make good any loss which the factories might incur as a result of their having backed up the Government in its winter supply scheme.

There was a further slight weakness in the price of new-laid eggs, which were offered at from 1/1½ to 1/2 a dozen. There was no change in case eggs, which continued to bring from 1/ to 1/1. Duck eggs were offered at the same rates as hen eggs.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

The wet weather had a depressing influence upon trade in forage and grain yesterday, and only a small volume of trade was passing.

A shipment of 2600 bags of onions was received from Victoria, and up to £5/10/ was demanded for the best samples.

Stocks of maize are accumulating, but so far holders have not been obliged to accept under 4/ a bushel for prime grain. A parcel of 1100 bags was to hand from the Nambucca River.

Quotations were:—

Oats.—Algerian feed, 2/7 to 2/8, milling 2/9 to 2/10, white 2/10 to 3/ a bushel.

Peas.—Tasmanian Grey, 7/ to 7/6; blue, 15/ a bushel.

RAILWAY MARKET.

Owing to the inclement conditions and an extensive yarding, there was no change in values on the opening of the month, but values in the case of forage were weaker, grain chaffs selling at slightly weaker rates, and lucerne attracting no special attention. Potatoes were much steadier, and a slight recovery was recorded. Choice Brownells made to 9/6 per cwt.

Produce in position comprised 134 trucks of forage, 5 of grain, and 14 of vegetables, while consignments outstanding were manifested at 105 of forage, 12 of grain, and 17 of vegetables.

The following sales were effected:—

Wheaten Chaff.—Ex Canowindra (9976), 3/4; Birchill, Canowindra (17991), 4/; ex Koorawatha (18850), 4/6; Campbell, Dunedoo (17472), 3/2; ex Cowra (1526), 2/; balance 5/3; Tourl Estate, Marryvale (3569), 4/; Lynch, Quandong (1604), 3/7; ex Wagga (2867), 4/; ex Millthorpe (14223), 3/9; Pepper, Tocumwal (11075), 3/7; Rain, Forbes (2494), 3/5; Beagrove, Forbes (12360), 3/7; Mitchell, Wagga (2022), 3/5; Bullock, Cowra (3291), 4/; ex Burrumbuttock (10071), 2/10; Gofford, Holbrook (8090), 2/7; Dunn, Bomen (11648), 3/; Hill-Woodstock (11719), 4/3, balance oaten, 4/; Pattison, Hareheld (13367), 4/3; Kirkman, Lyndhurst (12902), 4/3; Mitchell, Bomen (12285), 3/11; Pyrmont, Forbes (6201), 3/6; Rowston, Garmain (4367), 3/3.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

A weak market ruled generally for vegetables yesterday owing to supplies of most lines being in excess of requirements. Potatoes were 10/ per ton lower, and other root lines quiet.

The following were wholesale quotations:—

Cabbages, 1/6 to 4/6; cauliflowers, local, 2/6 to 5/; Melbourne, 3/ to 5/; lettuce, 1/ to 1/6 per dozen. Beetroot, 1/ to 2/3; carrots, 2/ to 3/; celery, 3/ to 4/; herbs, 1/3 to 1/6; leeks, 1/6; mint, 2/; parsley, 2/; parsnips, 1/9 to 2/; radishes, /3 to /6; rhubarb, 1/ to 1/6; spinach, /9 to 1/; white turnips, 1/ to 1/6; eschalots, 1/6 to 3/6; watercress, 2/ to 3/ per dozen bunches; Tasmanian carrots, 7/ to 8/ per cwt.

Beans, French (river), 4/ to 7/; peas, local, 6/ to 7/; choice, 8/ per bushel.

Pumpkins, local, prime, 6/ to 8/, small 1/6 per doz., /1 to /1¼ per lb, 6/ to 8/ per cwt; onions, 6/6 to 7/6 per cwt; Swede turnips, 3/ per bag, 1/6 to 2/6 per cwt; Sweet potatoes, 7/ to 8/ per cwt.

PIG SALES.

A moderate delivery of pigs was penned at Homebush Bay yesterday, and totalled 870 head, comprising all descriptions, with a majority of porkers. Buyers were in good attendance, and competition proved spirited for porkers, with prices for light and medium weights showing a firmer tendency on late rates, while heavier descriptions were not quite so strong. The demand for baconers and backfatters, although these were moderately supplied, was not so keen as recently, and values generally were easier.

The ruling values were:—

Prime weighty backfatters to £7/4/, good and heavy £6/10/ to £6/15/, medium £5/10/ to £6; prime light £4 to £4/10/, inferior from £3/5/. Prime heavy porkers £4 to £4/5/, good £3/15/ to £4, medium £3/8/ to £3/12/, others from £3/5/. Prime weighty porkers £3/3/ to £3/6/, good and heavy £2/15/ to £3, medium £2/6/ to £2/12/, prime light £1/17/ to £2/4/, inferior from £1/2/.

STOCK TRUCKINGS.

The following trucks have been ordered for the forthcoming Homebush stock sales:—

TELEGRAPHISTS' CLAIMS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Mr. Justice Powers, in the Federal Arbitration Court yesterday, continued the hearing of local evidence in the case Australian Commonwealth Post and Telegraph Officers' Association v Public Service Commissioner of the Commonwealth and another.

Cornelius Matthew Crowley, fifth class telegraphist, with six years' experience, said his present salary was £180 per annum. Under the claim he would receive £228, which he thought was a fair salary. He supported the claim for six-hour shifts on the ground that the work racked the nerves, made men irritable, caused them loss of sleep and appetite, and induced severe fatigue.

His Honor intimated that the hearing of the case would be continued in Sydney next Monday, and in Melbourne subsequently.

MONTHLY COAL EXPORTS.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The coal exports for the month ended yesterday totalled 300,979 tons, of which 231,717 tons went to Commonwealth and New Zealand ports, and 69,262 tons to oversea countries. This total is 27,993 tons greater than the quantity exported during June, and 11,722 less than the shipments for May last.

MINING.

HEAVY BUYING IN TRONGS.

The great features of yesterday's operations on the Stock Exchange were the buying and selling in Trong tin-dredging shares, and the fall in Edna May Deeps. Taking the latter first, they closed overnight at 31/3, but the bear element was in the ascendant at the beginning, and yesterday's opening sale was at 30/. A second cash sale was at an advance of /3; but the succeeding one, with a forward sale in between, was at 30/; and from that time until almost the close of the Exchange the sales were downward. Finally, the market closed at 28/3, or a fall of 3/ in one day. Nobody seemed to know why this had taken place; it was generally attributed to the market and to possible Melbourne influence.

But with regard to Trongs, the number of sales was just a score, and the first sale of the day—at 23/—was 1/9 higher than the closing transaction on Monday night. Shares went up to 23/9 during the morning, but dropped back to the opening level, and after lunch made a further drop, closing with forward sales at 22/3, though the latest cash transaction was at 22/3. Anyhow, the shares were at least 1/ higher than on Monday night. No definite cause could be assigned for the diligent dealing, but it is understood that private information has been received concerning an encouraging report on the property. The dredge is at present working outside the bored area, and will later go into the tested country.

Only one copper scrip sale was registered during the day, but half a dozen dealings took place in Barrier silver stocks, with the result that Broken Hill Proprietaries and B.H. Norths hardened, Broken Hill Souths and Junction Norths were steady, and Junctions were weaker. As to gold stocks, Edna May Golden Point fell to 2/9, and E. M. Centrals to 30/9. Ratrut and Kampong tin dredging shares were stronger, and Larut and Toongkaha weaker.

TRONG DREDGING COMPANY.

SPECIAL INVESTIGATION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The following statement has been made by the directors of the Trong Dredging Company:—"The directors of the Trong Company, with a view of ascertaining whether the dredge was working to the bottom, and whether it recovered the whole of the tin, decided to obtain the services of Mr. A. C. S. M'Leod to bore the ground worked. As Mr. M'Leod's services were not available, Mr. T. W. Horton volunteered to do the work, and has informed the board that out of fourteen bores which he put down in the worked ground, two approached the payable limit, but the other twelve were hopelessly poor. Mr. Horton added that the ground was patchy. The exact location of these bores is not certain; some of them were no doubt put down in the western part of the property, where the original boring shows considerable unevenness in values."

RAINSTORM.

FALLS ON THE COAST.

Although the principal factor in the recent rainstorm over New South Wales was no longer operating over this State yesterday, the weather in the eastern districts remained cloudy to showery, owing to condensation from the south-easterly wind circulation fronting an advancing high-pressure wave.

The resulting rainfall concentrated again in the metropolitan area, and reached its maximum at Undercliffe, where 137 points were recorded. At the Weather Bureau the showers totalled exactly one inch of rain, and 101 points were registered at Hurstville.

In other parts of the State the rain was, at most places, much lighter; but Katoomba reported a fall of 97 points, and 87 points were registered at Wollongong.

Along the coast and tablelands light to moderate rain was received at a considerable number of stations, but the distribution was very irregular in central and northern parts and on the highlands and slopes.

While the moist southerly winds were maintaining gloomy conditions in the eastern districts, fine, bright weather prevailed in the west, and frosts and fogs were numerous in the early morning in Riverina and on the central west plains.

The finer conditions were, however, extending eastwards only very slowly, and the indications favoured the occurrence of some further rain on the central and north coasts and on parts of the highlands. Some heavy falls should be included in the amounts.

GOOD FALLS RECORDED.

The rainfall in New South Wales during the month of July was satisfactory in almost every portion of the State, and, in some divisions, exceptionally large amounts were received.

A particularly gratifying feature of the distribution is the fact that the whole area between the mountains and the South Australian border, received substantially more than the average rainfall, and in the north-west the totals were, in some cases, over four times the normal amount. These splendid inland rains were due, chiefly, to the rather unseasonable activity of monsoonal rain-producing influence, operating in conjunction with an Antarctic depression to the southward. The two storm systems together formed a valley of low pressure from the Gulf of Carpentaria to Bass Strait, and as the moist tropical air flowed southwards into cooler latitudes, heavy condensation ensued.

East of the watershed, the rainfall was more copious than usual over most of the southern and central tablelands, and in parts of the other divisions, but much the greater portion of the North Coast, Hastings, and Manning division, and South Coast, recorded amounts less than normal, though the rainfall received was in most cases of a useful character.

At the Weather Bureau, 325 points were registered, as compared with the average of 489 points. Since the beginning of the year, the city rainfall amounts to 2045 points, which is 1313 points below normal, and 757 points less than was received during the corresponding period last year.

Over the greater part of New South Wales, temperatures during the period were in excess of the average owing to the inflow of tropical air, but some severe frosts were experienced, and a registration of only 10 degrees was made at Kiandra.

BAD ROADS IN THE WEST.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

The continuous heavy rains of the past few weeks have put the roads in the west in a state not seen for many years. In some parts traffic is impossible. Motorists from Sydney complain severely of the condition of the main road from just outside the capital to Mount Victoria. Traffic to Jenolan Caves from the Bathurst side has been impossible for weeks, owing to the boggy nature of the road between Oberon and the caves. Traffic has also been held up on the Sydney side approach to the caves, owing to a serious landslide on the Five Mile Hill. The bogging of a dray has also made the position worse.

WOLLONGONG.—Heavy rain fell throughout Sunday night and yesterday. Over 3 inches have been recorded since Saturday. On the catchment area the fall was much heavier, and has given a good rise to the catchment reservoirs. The fall will do a vast amount of good to young crops, and will be the means of filling dams on the farms.

PRICE FIXING.

IMPENDING PROCLAMATION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The following statement regarding the work of the Prices Adjustment Board was made to-night by the chairman, Mr. Catts, M.P.:—"This board has taken the total number of commodities which have been the subject of price-fixing regulations in the States of Queensland, New South Wales, and South Australia, where price-fixing tribunals have been in existence, and has recommended to the Commonwealth Government that this aggregate list should be proclaimed as foodstuffs and necessary commodities. Under our regulations this is an absolute necessity.

"We expect that this list will be proclaimed within the next few days, and that we shall then be able to set the Commissioners at work in these States in hearing applications for variations of prices or satisfying themselves that the existing prices are equitable; and in States such as Victoria, Tasmania, and Western Australia to set the State Commissioners at work making recommendations which will bring these States into line with the other States. This will make for uniformity of treatment in regard to the total list of goods over the whole Commonwealth."

MANUFACTURES.

COMPOSITION OF COMMISSION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Consideration was given by the Commonwealth Cabinet to-day to suggestions from both employers and employees' organisations that representation on the commission which is to visit the United States to inquire into methods of manufacture and labour conditions should be extended.

In referring to the matter after the Cabinet meeting, Senator Pearce said:—"Several requests have come to hand from organisations such as the Employers' Federation, the Chamber of Mines, the Sawmillers' Association, chambers of commerce, and kindred associations of employers in the different States, asking if they could be given representation on the commission. After having considered the requests the Ministry finds it impossible to accede to them. It is felt that on the employers' side the question involved is a manufacturers' question rather than an employers' question. Many of these organisations are not concerned in manufacturing, and in view of this we are unable to fall in with their wishes. In replying to them we intend pointing out that they should make their representations to the local chambers of manufactures, which will no doubt give consideration to them.

"The same thing, although to a somewhat lesser extent, has arisen in connection with the representation of the workers. It has been represented to us, for instance, that in Queensland the industrial council does not represent the majority of organised workers in the food-preserving industries, but that the Australian Workers' Union does. In this case, too, we have recommended that the organisations should confer together in regard to nominations."

CEMETERY WANTED.

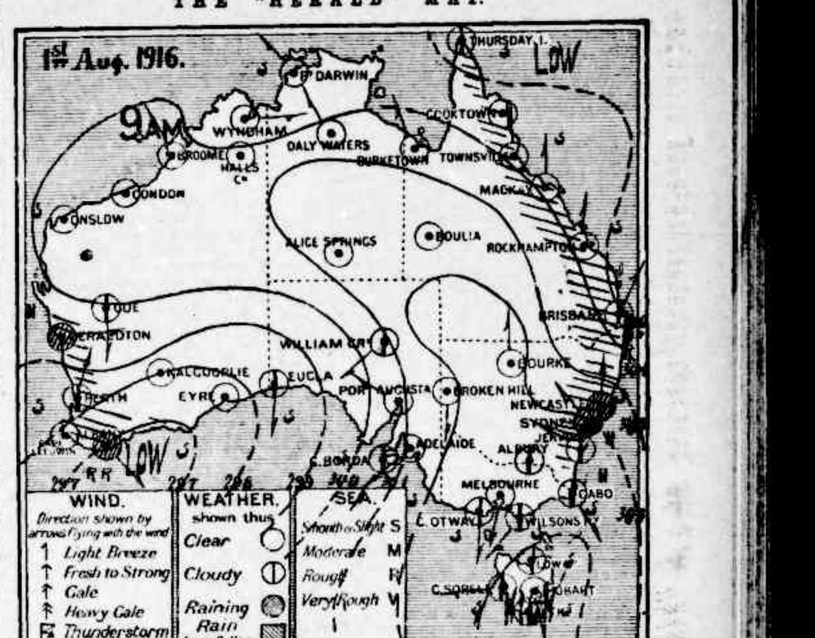
The North Sydney Council last night considered a letter from the leader of the Liberal party (Mr. C. G. Wade), who announced that his intention of introducing a deputation to the Minister was to assert once again the urgency for early action in regard to the provision of a burial ground for the northern suburbs, in view of the fact that the Gordon Church of England cemetery would be closed in less than nine months, and if authority for a tramway extension was necessary it should be obtained before Parliament adjourned.

The Mayor explained that Mr. Wade's scheme was in reference to a site at St. Ives. He (the Mayor) had approached the Director of Public Works, and arranged to have a sum placed on the Estimates to provide an approach to the Field of Mars cemetery along Fuller's-road, over the Lane Cove River. Later a railway might be obtained from Artarmon.

Alderman Brennan advocated a site about six miles from Pymble, on the Pittwater-road, but the council strongly supported the Field of Mars site, and determined to acquaint Mr. Wade of its choice.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



An interesting development has taken place in the different weather systems during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday. The centre of the high pressure, which was situated about Melbourne on Monday, has surged southwards, and gained one-tenth of an inch in barometric values. In conjunction with the surge of the "high," the tropical depression, which was over the Coral Sea on Monday, has moved southwards, and now appears of cyclonic character, with its centre about New Caledonia, while the southern portion extends as far as our north coast.

With these conditions, and, considering that the barometer is falling with a southerly wind, we should get heavy rain, with strong south-east winds in the central and north coast.

The Antarctic disturbance is moving steadily eastward; at 9 a.m. yesterday it had reached the South Australian border; while the centre was to the south of Albany, but so far it had only caused cloudy weather in the central State.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally westerly in the Western Bight; southerly winds; strong to gales between Sydney and Brisbane; fogs in the Straits.

J.M.S. NIKKO MARU.

Messrs. Burns, Philp, and Co., Ltd., managing agents for the Nippon Yusen Kaisha in Australasia, advise that the J.M.S. Nikko Maru arrived and berthed at Townsville jetty at midnight on Saturday. After discharging cargo, she sailed again at 6 o'clock on Sunday morning, in continuation of her voyage from Japan to Sydney.

It is probable that the Nikko Maru, although picking up 12 hours in the short run from Thursday Island to Townsville, will not arrive in time to berth at the wharf to-morrow, and may be expected some time on Friday morning.

HOWARD SMITH STEAMERS.

The Howard Smith steamer Cooma, which is to leave at 3 p.m. on Saturday next for the usual Queensland ports, will arrive at Brisbane early on the following Monday morning, in time for passengers to attend the opening of the Brisbane Show. On Wednesday, August 16, the company's fast liner Canberra will leave the northern capital for Sydney and Melbourne.

CARGO OF PINE.

After a fine weather trip of 62 days, the American four-masted schooner R. C. Slade reached Sydney yesterday from Eureka. She brought a cargo of 700,000 feet of oregon pine, which she will discharge in Snail's Bay.

SIERRA AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Mr. V. A. Sproul, managing agent for the Oceanic Steamship Company, is in receipt of a cabled message from San Francisco, stating that the steamer Sierra, which left Sydney on July 12, arrived at the Californian port on Monday last.

The Sierra is timetabled to sail again from San Francisco on August 15, and is due here on September 5.

VICTORIA, FROM AUCKLAND.

Messrs. Huddart, Parker, Ltd., have received cable advice from New Zealand that the steamer Victoria sailed from Auckland at 6 p.m. on Monday last, making her due in Sydney on Saturday next.

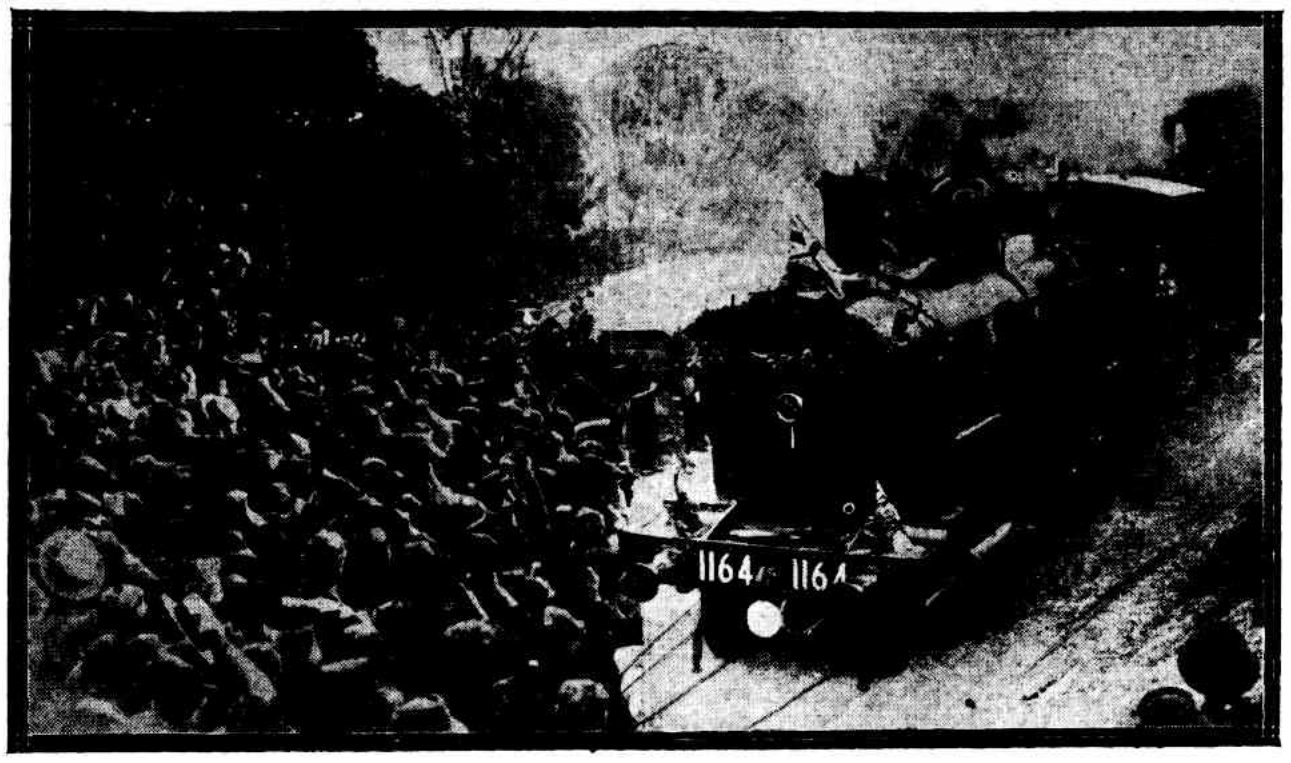
THE 200th LOCOMOTIVE BUILT AT CLYDE.



MONDAY'S CEREMONY AT THE ENGINEERING WORKS.

SPORTING

THE TURF.

The Kensington Racing Club holds a pony and galloway race meeting this afternoon, and the transit service by rail includes special trams from Circular Quay and the Railway Square loop, landing visitors at the racecourse gates. Owing to the number of entries several of the races will be run in divisions, necessitating a start at 1.30 p.m. The results may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap: First division, Bivity or Pride of Lancaster; second division, Prince Positano or Prince Ibex. Fourteen-two Handicap: Doughboy, All There, Real Silk. Flying Handicap: First division, Loud Report or Toinette; second division, Nooran or Fortune Hunter; third division, Try Again or Charter Laddie. Fourteen Hands Handicap: Lord Hope, Red Gipsy, Footprint. Encourage Stakes: Elsie's Pride, Blue Lilac, Persian Cup. Fourteen-one Handicap: Lord Barcaldine, Careymoore, Sir Alfred. Kensington Handicap: First division, Lady Whitton or Brown Eyes; second division, Lord Castlereagh or Yucca.

A.L.H. (Waverley).—There were only seven starters.

The starting price of Tinvane, in the second division of the Trial Handicap at Richmond, on Monday, was 7 to 2 against.

Our Brisbane correspondent telegraphs that the adjourned inquiry into the running of the Mountain King colt, Rosewood Lad, at Sandgate, on Saturday, was concluded yesterday morning, with the result that the colt, W. Robinson (trainer), and Charles Robinson (jockey) were each disqualified for 12 months.

The half dozen events on the card for the Canterbury Park August meeting on the 12th inst. attracted 108 entries on Monday, of which the Hurdle Race was responsible for 11; Flying Handicap 19, Park Stakes 24, Canterbury Handicap 15, Three-years-old Handicap 21, and Welter Mile 18.

Registration has been granted by the A.J.C. to the following race meetings:—Mulwala Race Club (August 23), Bourke District Hospital Benefit (August 16, 17), Narrabri Jockey Club (August 23, 24), and Dubbo Jockey Club (September 9, 11).

The Kembla Grange Racing Club's fixture for yesterday was, owing to the heavy rainfall, postponed until Friday next.

The brood mare Wilgamar, by Normanby, owned by Mr. J. C. Herbert, of Eugowra (writes our Forbes correspondent), broke her neck a few days ago. She was the dam of some good performers, among them, Othone, Wilton Rose, Royal Colours, and Derebin.

The following are the fixtures for the balance of the current year for the Menangle Park Trotting Club:—September 8, October 13, November 3, November 13, December 15. The fixtures for the same period in connection with the Menangle Park Pony Club are August 11, September 22, November 24. The racing dates for the current half-year are September 15, October 27, November 10, November 27, and December 8.

The declaration of final forfeit, yesterday, for the Australian Hurdle Race, to be decided at Caulfield next Saturday, leaves 14 acceptors, and, should all go to the post, the field will exceed by two that of last year, when Uxbridge was escorted home by Lord Grey and Flavel. Among the acceptors are Lord Grey, Jack Rice, Von Honreigh, and Wisconsin, who took part in last year's contest, and Sydney stables are represented by Jack Rice and Merrimax.

The Rosehill management has provided 720 sovs. prize money for its August meeting on the 19th inst., and for the six events on the card entries will be received by the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, up to 4 p.m. on Tuesday, the 8th inst.

Our Melbourne correspondent wires that the starting price of Prince Verdun in the first division of the Maiden Plate, at Moonee Valley on Saturday, was 25 to 1.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs that Jullundur, who was strongly fancied for the Australian Hurdle Race, struck himself while galloping at Flemington yesterday, and he was subsequently withdrawn from that event.

BEGA DISTRICT JOCKEY CLUB.

The report and balance-sheet submitted at the annual meeting of members of the Bega District Jockey Club showed a successful season's operations. Four days' racing was held, and £713 was paid in prizes. During the year the club contributed £126 to patriotic and charitable objects. The credit balance in the bank stands at £1270.

PONY AND GALLOWAY OWNERS AND TRAINERS' ASSOCIATION.

The postponed annual meeting of the New South Wales Pony and Galloway Owners and Trainers' Association was held last night at the School of Arts, Mr. J. Ptolemy presiding. It was shown by the report that there are 100 members on the roll, and the balance-sheet recorded that the association is in a good financial position. A resolution, moved by Mr. A. J. Doyle, that the incoming committee be instructed to deal with the question of starting large fields, with a view to reducing the number of horses, was adopted.

The following officers were elected:—President, Mr. J. W. Page, M.L.A.; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Gardiner, G. Moulden, and H. C. Hudson; committee, Messrs. J. Ptolemy, R. Batterby, T. T. Nelson, T. Kingsley, Jos. Miller, J. Morgan, M. Richards, J. Stewart, T. Stubley, C. Scott, G. Snow, and B. Stockdale; hon. treasurer, Mr. F. G. Perry.

WINNING SIRES.

PAST SEASON'S RECORD.

In the "Sydney Mail's" annual compilation of winning thoroughbred sires—published in the current issue of that paper—there are 352 stallions whose progeny won £300 or over during the late season (August 1, 1915, to July 29, 1916). The list is prefaced with 35 sires whose offspring earned £4000 or over. The total winnings of the 352 sires amounts to £645,736, and of this the before-mentioned 35 were responsible for £323,888. Noticeable in the list are several young sires in very prominent places for first-season horses. These are headed by Mr. William Brown's Persimmon horse, Tressady, who in his first effort got into the select 35. Cooltrim, Comedy King, and Syce (all first-season horses) are also in good places, while Kenilworth (second season) is in a high place (24th) for a beginner. Though Wallace has for years always been near the top of the tree, this is his first experience at the head of the list—a place frequently held by Maltster, who has dropped into fourth place; while his stud mate, Linacre (third season), is a good second to Wallace, whose average is flattering—to wit, £983 per race. The next best average (£942) goes to Chaucer, who was represented by two winners, both bred in England. Chaucer and other sires domiciled in England are marked with an asterisk, which denotes that their stock were bred in England and imported to Australia. The following 136 sires, with Bruce Lowe's stud numbers attached, are taken from the "Sydney Mail's" list. The winnings of their offspring amount to £529,098:—

A FALLING TREE CONE.

DAMAGES FOR INJURIES.

GRAFTON, Tuesday.

In the District Court yesterday, before Judge Docker, Walter Richards, draftsman in the Grafton Survey Office, sued the Department of Justice for £100 damages for injuries received through a bunya cone falling upon his head from a tree growing on the site of the police quarters, adjacent to the courthouse. Plaintiff was passing along the footpath when a cone weighing about seven pounds fell on him from a height of 30 feet. He was incapacitated from work for two or three months. The tree from which the cone fell stands six feet inside the enclosure from the footpath, but the branches extend over the footpath. It was planted for ornamental purposes 44 years ago.

The jury gave a verdict for the full amount claimed.

AMUSEMENTS.

VERBRUGGHEN-GOLL RECITALS.

At the Conservatorium Hall to-night and Friday evenings violin and piano recitals will be given by Mr. Henri Verbrugghen and Mr. Edward Goll. Music-lovers will have the rare opportunity of hearing these two artists in very interesting programmes. The sonatas to be performed are A Major (Bach), D Minor (Brahms), and the celebrated "Kreutzer" to-night, and No. 10 B Flat (Mozart), No. 7 C Minor (Beethoven), and a sonata by Cesar Franck on Friday. The plans are at Paling's, with special concessions.

CONSERVATORIUM OF MUSIC.

The third term of the Conservatorium session commenced on Monday, and it should be noted that evening classes for theory and harmony, orchestra, diction, and ensemble singing are now held. New students should now apply at the Conservatorium for enrolment. Subscriptions will now be received for the director's lecture-concerts, either for the term or for the balance of the session (two terms).

THE VIOLET EWART RECITALS.

To-night and Saturday evening Miss Violet Ewart will make her debut at St. James's Hall, assisted by Mr. Henri Staell, Mr. W. Reginald Goond, and Miss Joan Fry (accompanist). On Wednesday Miss Ewart's programme will include MacDowell's "Keltic Sonata," the Grieg Sonata for Piano and Violin (op. 45), and minor pieces of interest and charm.

VOLUNTARY WORKERS' CONCERT.

At the Protestant Hall, Crow's Nest, to-night, a concert and dramatic entertainment, under the direction of Mr. Harrison Allen, will be given in aid of the Lane Cove and district branch of the Voluntary Workers' Association. Messrs. Alf. Shea, Cyril Monk, Chas. Smythe, Cam Marina, A. C. Marshall, Will Caspers, Harrison Allen, Misses Dorris Ward, Mary Bourke, and Ella Crone (Mrs. Cam Marina) will assist.

SYDNEY CHORAL SOCIETY.

On Wednesday, August 9, the Sydney Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. W. Reginald Goodall, will perform the "Judas Maccabaeus" at the Town Hall, with full orchestra and a numerous body of voices. The soloists in Handel's martial oratorio will be Mme. Slapoffski, Miss Eugenie Boland, Mr. Philip Newbury, and Mr. A. E. V. Benham. The plan, at popular prices, is at Paling's.

MISS VERA CREE'S CONCERT.

Miss Ada Gee is arranging a meeting at the Hotel Australia for Wednesday next to forward a proposed farewell concert to Miss Vera Cree, before her departure for London to take up her scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music. Mr. Arthur Hull will address the meeting.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL CONCERT.

Miss Annie South (soprano) and Miss May Croft (mezzo-soprano), from Miss Ada Baker's studio, are giving a song recital in St. James's Hall on Wednesday, August 9, in aid of the Children's Hospital, Camperdown, which is urgently in need of funds. Misses Ella M'Kenzie, Dorothy Gill, Nellie Moss, Messrs. Harry Thomas, Warwick M'Kenzie, and Eric Jones will assist. Plan is at Paling's.

V.A. NURSING CLUB.

The Voluntary Aid Nursing Club will hold an entertainment (music, dancing, and cards) in Oxford Hall, Liverpool-street, on Monday, August 14, 1916, with presentation of certificates to members of the club. Part proceeds will go to Country Soldiers' Depot, Castlereagh-street.

BRITISH FOLK-SONG RECITALS.

Madame Henri Verbrugghen will give two British folk-song recitals at the Conservatorium on Monday, August 14, and Saturday, August 19, at 8.15 p.m. This English soprano's programme will include several 13th century ballads of the Hebrides Isles not previously heard in Australia. The plan will open at Paling's on August 4.

MR. COAD'S VIOLIN RECITALS.

The third of this series will be given at the State Conservatorium on Tuesday, August 22, at 8 p.m. An interesting concerto by the city organist will be played, other important works being violin Sonata in D by Corelli, "Zephir," by Hubay, and two Spanish Dances by Sarasate. J. Carlton Fay will be the accompanist. The plan is at Paling's.

MISS GRACE STAFFORD'S RECITALS.

At 2.30 and at 7.30 on Saturday, August 12, Miss Grace Stafford will direct a children's matinee at St. James's Theatre, in aid of the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Small Loan Fund. The late Ethel Pedley's "Dot and the Kangaroo," and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," will be features. The plan is at Paling's.

PETERSHAM RIFLE CLUB.

The Petersham Rifle Club held a successful smoke concert at the local Town Hall on 24th inst., over 70 members and friends from neighbouring clubs attending. Items were contributed by the Stanmore Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Hagarty; Mr. Bruce Clarke, musical monologist; Mr. Frank Outred, recitations; and vocal contributions by Messrs. G. H. Watson, Harold Turner, W. Stephenson, F. Outred, and J. Andrews.

MISS ADA BAKER'S STUDENTS.

In the Y.W.C.A. Hall on Friday evening the students of Miss Ada Baker held their ninth audition, when the successful items included "Amarella," Miss Annie Wilkins; "The Singing Lesson," duet by Miss Ada Baker and Mr. Draper; and an excerpt from "Norma" by Misses Rose Clarey and Dorothy Gill.

SIGNALLER TOM SKEYHILL.

So many requests have been received for Signaller Tom Skeyhill to extend his Sydney season of war-lectures that it has been decided to give a few more evenings. This week he will appear to-morrow (Thursday) night, and again on Saturday night. Dates for the following week will be duly announced. Signaller Skeyhill's story is one that every person who has had friends or relations in Gallipoli should hear. The booking is at Paling's.

COUNTRY NEWS.

COAL MINING AT DAPTO.

DAPTO, Tuesday.

The development of the newly-acquired Wongarville Mine by Messrs. Hoskins and Son, is proceeding apace. About 20 men are employed in excavation work for the two dams required for the coke-making industry. A start is to be made shortly with the construction of the branch line to connect the mine with the South Coast Railway. The shortage of cottages in Dapto is acute, and many houses are required to meet the requirements of the workmen. Messrs. Hoskins and Son are about to build a number of cottages adjacent to the mine and cokeworks.

A syndicate has secured the mineral lease of 3500 acres of land, south of the Wongarville proposition, and bores are to be put down to test the coal seams.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The City Council has granted increases of wages to its employees, most of whom will receive an extra ninepence a day, and some an additional shilling to their daily wage.

BREWARRINA, Tuesday.

The body of Mrs. Matthews, who had been missing since the night of July 17, was found in the river, about a mile below the town. The funeral took place yesterday.

CASINO, Tuesday.

Mr. J. C. Wearne has severed his connection with the "Richmond River Express," of which he was manager and editor. He received a presentation from the staff on Saturday.

DUBBO, Tuesday.

The Chief Secretary, Mr. George Black, visited Dubbo yesterday, when the committee of the district hospital waited on him and urged the erection of a new isolation ward at the hospital. The Minister replied that he would give consideration to the request when he returned to Sydney.

GULGONG, Tuesday.

Coonabarabran district has been made a separate parish in the Roman Catholic diocese of Bathurst. Father T. Doran has been appointed parish priest.

JUNEE, Tuesday.

From the pulpit of St. Luke's Church, Canon J. Studds announced his retirement from the ministry from October next. He has been 5 years in charge of the Junee Anglican district.

MANILLA, Tuesday.

The ratepayers have voted in favour of the proposed loan of £1500 for the construction of council chambers.

TRUNDLE, Tuesday.

Mr. L. A. Hewett, who has been relieving postmaster for the past seven months, has been appointed postmaster at Parliament House.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

Mr. John Saunders, clerk of petty sessions at Wollongong for about twelve years, has been transferred to Wagga. Mr. R. P. Green, of Cootamundra, has been appointed to Wollongong. Miss J. Brown, of the Sydney Girls' High School, and Miss a McFarland, of Mudgee, have been appointed to the Wollongong district school.

YOUNG, Tuesday.

At the annual meeting of the School of Arts a loss was shown on the year's work. The opinion was expressed that the earlier closing of hotels would beneficially affect schools of art, and there was talk of making better provision for card playing and other games in the free reading room for young men.

STAFF-SERGEANT STEAD.

MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES.

Staff-sergeant Herbert George Stead, who was recently mentioned in despatches, is the elder son of Mr. George Stead, general manager of the Midland Railway, W.A. He left Fremantle in the A.M.C. with the first contingent from that State, and along with his brother and three cousins went through the Gallipoli campaign unscathed. He was born at Yass (N.S.W.) 27 years ago, and went to Western Australia as an infant. After completing his education at Scots College, Perth, where he distinguished himself as an athlete and oarsman, he entered the service of one of the Western Australian banks, and at the time of his enlistment he was the youngest bank manager in that State. He was in charge of a city bank. His father, who is well known in this State, saw service in the Egyptian war. Sergeant Stead, who is 6ft 2in in height, is a nephew of Mr. Arthur Yeldon, captain of the Press Rifle Club.

TASMANIA.

PARLIAMENT OPENS.

HOBART (Tas.), Tuesday.

The first session of the nineteenth Parliament opened to-day. The Governor's Speech stated that 9300 men had enlisted. Ministers proposed to provide for absorption of returned soldiers into industrial and agricultural life, and a bill would be introduced providing for the acquisition of suitable estates and the development of areas of Crown lands as soldiers' settlements. Proposals would be made to co-operate with the Commonwealth Government in giving financial aid to those settlers.

MAN RUNS AMOK.

MARYVALE, Tuesday.

A man is alleged to have run amok at a corn pullers' camp on Palmer's selection, six miles from Maryvale Station early on Sunday morning. He shot one man and threatened three others. The latter, who rushed into the bush, state that, when they left, the man who had been shot was lying in a pool of blood, and his assailant was endeavouring to burn down his hut. Police have started for the scene.

DEATH IN THE BUSH.

QUEANBEYAN, Tuesday.

On Friday the body of a man, known as Dick Ward, was found in the bush near Gudgenby. The body was brought to Queanbeyan on Saturday, and an inquest was held before the Coroner, Mr. Gale. Deceased was last seen alive on July 17. It was stated that he could not have been dead more than five days when the body was discovered 300 yards from Glandale House, near the riverside. Deceased must have lain there for several days dying. A verdict of death from natural causes was recorded.

RED CROSS.

WORK OF THE AUSTRALIAN BRANCH.

COUNCIL MEETING.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A meeting of the central council of the Australian branch of the British Red Cross Society was held yesterday at the Federal Government House. Her Excellency, Lady Helen Munro Ferguson presided. The Governor and Lady Stanley were present, and the meeting was attended by representatives of all the divisions.

A resolution was brought forward in favour of admitting the press to the meetings of the council. By 28 votes to 23, an alternative proposal was carried that a full report of all resolutions come to by the council, and all business done, should be furnished to the daily press.

It was reported that a finance committee had been formed in London consisting of the High Commissioner (Mr. Fisher), Messrs. Arnold and Campion, and the Australian Red Cross Commissioners. All expenditure except that of a routine or emergency character will come before this committee. Advice had been received by cable that arrangements were in hand for the reception and placing in military hospitals of twenty nurses sent by the New South Wales division to assist the French Red Cross.

A request for a contribution to the Anzac Hostel in London was received, but it was agreed that this could not be made out of the Red Cross funds, as the hostel does not specially provide for invalid soldiers.

Her Excellency reported having received a cablegram from Lord Lansdowne, president of the British Red Cross Society, asking for the co-operation of the Australian branch in collections to be made upon "our day" on October 19. It was agreed that the various divisions should be invited to assist the appeal.

A remittance of £250 was voted for Red Cross work in connection with Australians in Mesopotamia, and it was also agreed that a consignment of preserved fruits and vegetables should be sent from the Australian Red Cross stores in Egypt to Busra for distribution amongst invalid soldiers.

A cable message was received from Mr. J. A. Murdoch (Sydney), who had previously announced his intention of retiring in September from his position as Red Cross Commissioner, stating that he felt the responsibility of resigning at this time too great, and that he placed his services unreservedly at the disposal of the council. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Murdoch for his generous offer, which was gladly accepted by the council.

Letters of thanks were received from the French Red Cross in London and Paris for gifts of goods and money from the Australian branch.

A request for an allocation of money to supplement the equipment for No. 11 Australian General Hospital was received, and £500 was voted for this purpose, the commissioners to be asked to keep the C.O. in funds.

Arrangements for providing Christmas presents for sick and wounded soldiers in hospitals oversea were left in the hands of the special committee convened by Lady Allen, who undertook the work last year, and it was announced that the P. and O. Company had generously offered to allot thirty tons of space for the gifts in the R.M.S. Karmala on September 19.

Her Excellency reported that she had received a request from the chairman of the British Red Cross Society for thirty representative women, members of the Red Cross and St. John, to help as probationers in military hospitals in England. It was agreed that the expense of their return passages should be borne by the society.

PASSPORTS.

THE NEW REGULATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A reminder was issued to-day by the Acting Prime Minister (Senator Pearce) of the requirements of the War Precautions Act regulations regarding passports. Persons over the age of 15 years, whether British subjects or aliens, and men or women, leaving the Commonwealth, are now required to be in the possession of passports; while after September 1 persons over the age of 15 years entering the Commonwealth must also be equipped with passports.

THE JEWELLERY EMBARGO.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

All States were represented at a deputation which waited upon the Minister for Customs, Mr. Tudor, to-day, of representatives of the wholesale, retail, and manufacturing jewellery trades. The object of the deputation was to endeavour to induce the Minister to withdraw the existing embargo on the importation of gold jewellery. Mr. Tudor, in reply, promised after receiving a deputation on Friday from the employees to submit the matter to the Cabinet. If people had large amounts of money to spend on imported jewellery, why not, he concluded, invest them in the war loan?

SCIENCE BUREAU.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

At the meeting of the Federal Cabinet to-day approval was expressed of a recommendation of the advisory council of the Science Bureau that a chemist should be employed in connection with the investigation of alunite. The council strongly recommends that this investigation should proceed, and that Mr. Janes, of the Melbourne University, should conduct the research work. This recommendation was endorsed. It was also decided by the Ministry to vote £200 for the apparatus required in connection with the investigation regarding yeast, which is being conducted by Dr. Chapman, of Sydney.

WAR QUESTIONS.

"Inquirer" (Auburn).—The amount of pay you are receiving is perfectly correct.

"Inquirer" (Randwick).—You must put neither Egypt nor France. Simply the words "On active service abroad."

"Signal" (Ashfield).—"E. E. F., on active service abroad," should be quite sufficient.

"M. L." (Marrickville).—Pay commences on the day the soldier goes into camp.

"A. Recruit."—Not unless the mother is wholly dependent upon you. If you have a wife or children, of course, they would receive a pension.

PRIVATE H. W. STROUT, D.C.M.

WINS FRENCH WAR CROSS.

"I would willingly hand over both my decorations to the man who did more to win them than I did," said Private Hubert Wallace Strout, D.C.M., winner of the French Military Cross, of the 1st Field Ambulance, A.I.F., when referring to the incidents which won him his decorations.

The returned soldier lives with his mother at 423 Dowling-street, Moore Park, and is a lucky man to have returned at all, for he was hit by the enemy over and over again. One piece of shrapnel was taken out of one of his legs—he has it as a memento—another bullet tore his leather pocket-book to pieces, which he had in his breast pocket just above the heart; a shrapnel bullet ploughed its way across his head, and another bullet went through his right arm.

His own story of how two nations conferred decorations upon him is that on June 28, 1915, he was standing behind the lines at the extreme right of Tasman's Post. He had landed with the first lot of Anzacs on that glorious April 25, and had gone through the landing, helping for weeks to transfer the wounded to places of safety. On this particular day word was brought in to his officer, Captain Kay, A.A.M.C. (who prior to going to the front was well known at Sydney Hospital as one of the resident surgeons), that a man was lying outside in No Man's Land with one of his legs blown off.

"The bearers of the 5th and 7th Light Horse were played out," said Private Strout, "owing to the extraordinarily heavy work they had just been called upon to do. You see, we were not attacking at the time, but were making what is known in military parlance as a demonstration, to hold the Turks whilst the British, French, and Colonials drove forward at Cape Helles. I offered to go out and bring in this man with one of his legs blown off, and my chum, Private Blaydon, of the 1st Field Ambulance, said he would come as well. In a short lull in the firing we crept out over the parapet into that ghastly No Man's Land where so many dead comrades lay, and when we reached what are known as the 'Twin Trenches' we found not only our wounded comrade but a trench full of wounded men. In spite of the fact that the Light Horse bearers were almost dead to the world with the work they had done, we signalled them for help, and, like the Britons they are, worn out though they were, they came to us, and together we managed to bring all the wounded in safely to our own trenches.

"It was during this job that a piece of shrapnel got me in one of my legs," said the ambulance man. "Of course, bullets and shrapnel were flying overhead all the time we were bringing our wounded back, but we came through unscathed except myself. It is here that I want to say that the man who pulled me through deserved the Victoria Cross, and all the decorations I got. Private Blaydon, when he found I was knocked out, hoisted me on his back (and he is a much smaller man than I am), and with me as his burden crossed nearly two miles of shell and bullet-swept ground, and at length brought me to our trenches. There is a man who is a hero if you like, and so far he has not been awarded anything."

Private Strout has been awarded the D.C.M., and the French President has bestowed on him the decoration of the Médaille Militaire for distinguished service during the Gallipoli campaign, but one wonders how it is that Private Blaydon has been passed over.

ACCIDENT AT A REHEARSAL.

STAGE EMPLOYEES INJURED.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

At Toowoomba yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Charles Morse, acting stage manager, and Mr. George Webb, electrician, who are with the Julius Knight "Under Fire" Company, were testing some explosives to be used in the performance the same evening, a serious explosion occurred. Both Morse and Webb were severely injured, apparently by pieces of wood or other articles. Mr. Morse received a compound fracture and dislocation of the left ankle, and also severe shock, and Mr. Webb a compound fracture of the right hand and severe shock. An ambulance party rendered first aid, and conveyed both to a private hospital.

COLLIERY EMPLOYEES.

REJECT TENTATIVE AGREEMENT.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

At a meeting of the Illawarra Colliery Employees' Delegate Board this morning the tentative agreement arranged at the compulsory conference was rejected.

OFFENCES AGAINST CHILDREN.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

At Christchurch the Grand Jury made a recommendation to Mr. Justice Denniston that in view of the fact that offences against children appeared to be increasing action be taken by which the persons accused would be retained in custody under inspection by doctors, and that when found incurable the authorities should consider the advisableness of an operation. His Honor said he was in accord with the general principles laid down.

NORFOLK ISLAND.

NORFOLK ISLAND, Tuesday.

The following were elected to the Executive Council at the elections yesterday:—Messrs. Sullivan, Quintall, Meade, Adams, Lindsay, Buffett, Charles Nobbs, Eddie Nobbs. Government nominees:—Messrs. Cox, Chapman, Stephens, Randall, Christian, Nobbs.

BARRIER UNIONISTS.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The "one big union" conference was continued yesterday. Resolutions were carried in favour of equal pay for the sexes, the immediate reduction of the hours of labour, and the protection and regulation of child labour, if not its abolition.

VENEREAL DISEASES BILL.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A Venereal Diseases Bill will be introduced into the Legislative Assembly next week.

UNEMPLOYED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Alleging that their plight was rapidly becoming desperate, representatives of the unemployed asked the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. O'Malley) to-day to push on with public works. Mr. Mulcaster, secretary of the unemployed committee, said that there were 3000 men out of work in Melbourne, including married and single men and members of unions over the military age. "The State Ministry is able to find £30,000 for a referendum to crush the pubs," he said, "but is unable to find work for men. Work must be provided, or there will be a tragic state of affairs, for the men are talking of blowing things up."

Mr. O'Malley said he would ask the Cabinet if it would make available money for the State Ministry to proceed with the water works at the naval base, and also push on with some of the Federal works there.

CASUALTIES.

RAILWAY FATALITY.

An elderly man, Thomas Grice, was killed at the Sydney Railway Station early last night. He had boarded the platform at the rear of a Hurstville train, and just as the train started he was seen to jump off. He fell between the train and the platform. The Civil Ambulance took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was found to be suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. He died immediately after admission. Deceased lived in Inverness-avenue, Penshurst.

A CEMENT GUN.

AN INGENIOUS DEVICE.

The "cement gun," which is described in "Engineering," is a device which has been fairly thoroughly tried in the United States and found to perform well such operations as the application of coats of cement mortar to surfaces in general. The mortar is applied by a jet action. In fact, the surface to be coated is bombarded by the cement—hence the name. The forcible impact is useful, as thereby attachment is facilitated and compactness secured. The coats may be quite thin—say one-eighth inch thick—or, by repeated application of the jet, the thickness may be increased to an indefinite total. As a flexible hose may be used to connect the machine and discharge nozzle, the operator is able to work upon surfaces in almost any situation. The cement gun is well adapted for such work as the application of cement-plaster coats to the walls and ceilings of fireproof buildings. The apparatus is operated by compressed air. The air is used to drive a small motor which supplies the power for the mechanical operation of a feeding-wheel, and also to supply the stream or jet which carries the material to its destination.

LONE PINE AND SUVLA BAY ANNIVERSARY.
"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."
A SPECIAL PARADE of RETURNED SOLDIERS will be held on SUNDAY NEXT, August 6, to commemorate the Glorious Deeds of those who Fell at Lone Pine and Suvla Bay.
Every Returned Soldier is requested to make it a point of honour to attend this Parade, and thereby show regard for the memory of their Fallen Comrades. They were flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone, and they died that we might live; that Australia might be Free. Glorious in life, more glorious in Death, while men love righteousness and hate iniquity the memory of their deeds will remain a precious heritage through all the days that are to be.
The Parade will fall in at the corner of Bathurst and Pitt streets at 10.15 a.m. sharp, and will march to St. Andrew's Cathedral, St. Mary's Cathedral, and the Central Methodist Mission, Lyceum Hall.
"They being Dead, yet Speaketh."
THOMAS BATHURST, Secretary Returned Soldiers' Association.

BUY AT MAROUBRA.

£1 DOES IT.

MAROUBRA IS THE LATEST AND BEST LAID-OUT OF ALL THE EASTERN SUBURBS.

The widest thoroughfare within 100 miles is the great Broad-road, 3 chains wide, running from Kensington to Little Bay, laid out by the late Hon. E. W. O'Sullivan when this part was all bush; and all estates there have been subdivided to fit in with this splendid approach.
The tram takes 28 minutes to reach Maroubra, 88 trams from Maroubra to the Quay daily, and more on Saturdays.
City water, gas and electric light all there, also up-to-date shops. Public and Catholic Schools, churches of all creeds, parks, tennis courts, picture show, and the finest surfing beach of any.
You will buy good building land on absurdly easy terms at Maroubra on Saturday, August 5, at one quarter the price you would pay elsewhere for similar land at Coogee or Bondi.
Present Values will double and treble in a few years.

ACCOUNTANCY.
ACCOUNTANCY.
The Examinations conducted by the various Institutes provide a splendid test of the efficiency of our methods of private and individual Home Study. ALL our Students are taught entirely by correspondence.
They compete at the Examinations with men coached by class and private coaches in all parts of Australia.
What is the result?
Here are the figures. Take these two Examinations.
Victorian and Federal Institute Exams., May.
Total candidates, 498.
We presented 138 of these.
Over one-fourth of the total (28 per cent.)
Our total passes—115 (ignoring partial passes).
Percentage of passes—84 PER CENT.
Can any thoughtful man doubt the efficiency of our Home Study methods on top of results like these—surely not.
The results are all the more telling when it is borne in mind that we only commenced coaching in Australia in 1913. The wonderful success achieved under our methods in New Zealand since 1897 encourage us to open in Australia and apply the same methods here.
After two years' work we coached
ONE-FIFTH of ALL candidates in Australia (1915).
At the May Exams. of the Federal and Victorian Institutes we coached over
ONE FOURTH of all the candidates.
By far the greater number of our new students come to us by recommendation of successful students.
If YOU are considering the study of Accountancy, obtain particulars of our methods in your OWN interests.

AUGUST GREETINGS FROM SNOW'S WINTER SALE.

"Pleasing ware is half sold," is an old saying; and there is another equally true old aphorism, which says—"What is ill bought is aye a source of trouble"—the aye in this case meaning always.

The rapidity with which the Bargains are going at

is sufficient evidence that the wares are pleasing, and although we are too busy to undertake to change any sale-bought merchandise the fact that everything offered during the Sale is up to our regular Quality Standard is a safeguard that nothing will be ill-bought at Snow's.

Why should anyone go to a less responsible Sale and pay more for Merchandise not so good and for Service not so dependable.

GABARDINES
AT SPECIAL SALE PRICES.

There are still plenty of 60in GABARDINES that were originally 13/6 yard. For this week only we are asking 9/11 YARD. Come early while choosing is good, for back goes the price to 13/6 yard as soon as the Sale is finished.

Another lot of GABARDINES in grey only, that would be exceptional Sale Values at Snow's Original Price, 5/6 yd. You can buy them at Snow's Sale for 2/11½ YARD. The width—56in.

40in GABARDINES, in fawns, greys, and blues. Usually 2/11½ yard. AT SNOW'S SALE, 1/11½. And please keep in mind that Gabardines will be worn for a good many weeks yet.

TWEEDS FOR THE END
AT SNOW'S SALE.

There's a table of them—showing a fine range of patterns. Usual Prices were 2/6 and 2/11; but while they last—SNOW'S SALE PRICE 1/6½ YARD—and very low-priced at that.

You have to thank "Conditions" for this Saving. Just as we thought of commencing stocktaking along came a shipment of 50 bits of BLACK and WHITE CHECK TWEEDS—that should have reached us in Late Autumn. We bought them to sell at 2/11½, but since then wholesale prices took another big jump. But you can buy them at SNOW'S TO-DAY FOR 1/11½ YARD. Less than Cost Price.
Others at equally Big Reductions. For instance—
Usually 1/9½, 3/6, 3/11, 4/11, 5/11 YARD.
SALE
PRICES 1/4½, 2/6½, 3/6½, 3/11, 4/11 YARD.

How about a FLANNELETTE BLOUSE to finish up the season. You can buy a BLOUSE LENGTH, 2½ YARDS LONG, FOR 1/—though original prices were up to 11½d yard. All designs in light and dark grounds. We sold on an average of 200 of these a day since the Sale started.

Take heed of the Saving Opportunities each day at

SPECIAL VALUES
UNDERWEAR DEPT.

The character of a Store is determined by several factors, chief among which is its ability to offer merchandise at a correct relation between quality and price.

Like all of Nature's most potent forces, this is invisible, and, being so, it secures its expression in effects and results.

THE ABILITY TO PRESENT GOOD VALUE—that's the principal factor in the undeniable success of the BIG NEW STORE.

To-day, as an example, we present the following special values from our Ladies' Underclothing Department.

Just glance through the list below, and you'll agree with us that our values end comparison.

Call in to-day and secure your share of these "business building" values.

MANCHESTER SECTION

DURING THE FAIR.

MANY A HOUSEWIFE WHO HAS SHOPPED AROUND SYDNEY HAS COME TO THE CORRECT CONCLUSION THAT REGULAR FOY PRICES ON HIGH-CLASS HOUSEHOLD DRAPERY ARE DIFFICULT TO MATCH FOR LOWNESS. HENCE, WHEN WE MAKE SPECIAL OFFERINGS IN HOUSE WANTS, IN HONOUR OF FOY'S AUGUST FAIR, THE RESULT IS MORE THAN EVER WORTH WHILE FOR HOUSEKEEPERS WHO HAVE NEW SUPPLIES OF TABLECLOTHS, SHEETINGS, AND LINENS TO BUY FOR THEIR HOMES, AND PARTICULARLY PLENTY OF TOWELS FOR PRESENT USE.

AGAIN TO-DAY AT FOY'S UNUSUAL FAIR VALUES IN

THE FASHION SECTIONS.

THE HUGE ATTENDANCE OF YESTERDAY SPOKE FAR LOUDER THAN MERE WORDS OF THE WONDERFUL MANNER IN WHICH THE REMARKABLE VALUES ABOUNDING AT FOY'S WINTER FAIR HAVE IMPRESSED THEMSELVES UPON A DISCERNING PUBLIC.

THE THRONGS AROUND THE COSTUME, MILLINERY, AND UNDERCLOTHING SHOW ROOMS, LEAVING OUT ALTOGETHER THE STEADY PURCHASING TAKING PLACE IN ALL OTHER SECTIONS, PROVED BEYOND A SHADOW OF A DOUBT THAT THE WONDERFUL SUCCESS OF THE AUGUST FAIR, 1916, IS DUE TO NO OTHER CAUSE THAN THAT ITS OFFERINGS ARE QUITE UNPRECEDENTED, AND ARE POSITIVELY GIGANTIC IN BARGAIN SIGNIFICANCE, AS WELL AS GIGANTIC IN COMPREHENSIVENESS.

LADIES,
THIS IS AN EVENTFUL DAY AT

HOW ONE WOMAN SOLVED
THE HIGH COST OF BREAKFASTS.

She found that high prices almost doubled the cost of breakfasts. Chops, steak, and bacon—all were high, and going higher.
What did she do? Serve less nourishing food because it cost less? No. She gave her family a food more nourishing than either meat or eggs—

IRELAND'S BREAKFAST FOOD.

It contains all the nutriment of fresh, clean wheat, and is prepared by a process which eliminates all indigestible elements. You can serve it 5 minutes after the water boils—and, take our word, "All the family will eat Ireland's Breakfast Food" with relish.
SOLD EVERYWHERE.
Your Grocer will be pleased to hear you ask for IRELAND'S BAKING POWDER,
IRELAND'S DUCHESS TEA,
IRELAND'S J.I.N. TEA,
IRELAND'S SELF-RAISING FLOUR.
The coupons in each package entitle you to free Cash Prizes—save them.

THE STORY OF THE NEW FASHIONS TOLD IN DAVID JONES' WINDOWS,

AND AT DAILY PARADES ON LIVING MODELS.

Two parades are being held daily at 11.30 a.m. and 3.30 p.m. Admission is by ticket, obtainable in Costume-to-order Dept. (2nd floor). We strongly advise those desirous of viewing a parade to apply for tickets immediately, the demand being so great that practically all available for to-day and to-morrow have already been distributed.

SPECIAL ATTENTION TO BARRACK-STREET WINDOWS.

Six Barrack-street Windows each show a different phase of the new fashions in "D.J." standard lines, i.e., goods "made by David Jones," in reliable qualities at moderate prices, in keeping with the times. For instance, in one Window are displayed

TWO STYLES IN A WHITE
CHINA SILK BLOUSE, AT ./11.

In addition to these two designs in one of the Barrack-street Windows are two others, showing in the Blouse Dept. (1st floor), in the same material, at the same price; and further styles still will be added as the season advances.

AS SHOWN IN WINDOW.
One is made with roll collar, finished with tabs, adaptable for wear high to neck or low and open, patch pocket on left side, shoulder yoke, long sleeves inlet with hemstitching, and finished with link cuffs. The other is an exact copy of a man's shirt, with soft turn-down collar, yoke at back, breast pocket, link cuffs, and box pleat down front.
Both are available in sizes 34 to 44 in. bust measure, at 9/11 each.

TWO OTHER STYLES
IN THE SHOWROOM.
Featuring in one the set-in sleeves, link cuffs, high stock collar, hemstitched shoulder yoke, and new centre piece from collar to waist hemstitched. The other also has set-in sleeves and shoulder yoke, shaped cuffs, high close-fitting collar with two picot edge frills, vest effect down front, finished throughout with hemstitching. These two are obtainable in sizes 34 to 42 in. bust measure, also at 9/11 each.

THE SPECIAL LINE FOR TO-DAY IS—

10/9 TUSSORE BLOUSE FOR 7/11.

One of the popular new styles for Spring and Summer wear, made of heavy-weight Tussore Silk, that will stand continued washing. The new Raglan sleeves have hemstitched cuffs, the roll collar with "V" neck can be worn high if desired, vest effect featured in front, with pearl buttons. Sizes 36 to 40 in. bust measure. Obtainable in Blouse Dept. (1st floor) every other day at 10/9.
BUT AVAILABLE TO-DAY ONLY AT 7/11.

TO-MORROW'S SPECIAL LINE.
On Thursday our standard 2/6 Ivory Jap. Silk in 27in. width will be obtainable at 2/2 yard.

THE LAST OPPORTUNITY TO OBTAIN
THE "D.J." SEWING MACHINE,
AT £5/12/6.

On and after August 31st we will be compelled to increase the price of this Golden Oak Drophead Sewing Machine to £6/5/. We have only a limited number available until the above date at £5/12/6. If you have never inspected this machine you are invited to do so now. It is capable of every class of work that is performed on any higher priced vibrating shuttle model, has complete set of modern attachments, and is guaranteed 10 years. Can be seen and tried without any obligation to purchase in Machine Dept., downstairs.

Full particulars of the Standard Values in Barrack-street Windows are given in our Advertisement on the Woman's Page.

WE PAY CARRIAGE
on all goods, except furniture, floor coverings, kitchenware, and hardware, to all parts of Australasia. Only on toys and tobacco when ordered with other goods.
